THE COURTS.

PROFANING A CHURCH EDIFICE.

A woman who gave the name of Sarah Jackson complained on Saturday to officers of the Eighth Precinct that she had been inveigled into the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church in Washington-square and there assaulted by two men. The officers who went to the church found the evidences of a carousal in a pitcher of beer and several glasses which stood on the desk of the Sunday-school superintendent, but the men who were sought had gone. David Oliver, the janitor of the church, tried to propitiate the officers with beer, but they refused it and arrested him. When brought before Justice Murray at the Jefferson Market Court, Oliver acknowledged that he had allowed men and women, who paid him small sums of money, to frequent the church. Justice Murray, after reprimanding Oliver severely, sentenced him and the woman Jackson to Blackwell's Island for six months.

TROUBLES OF RIVAL CORNET PLAYERS.

Apollo Zanichelli and Rafaelle Stearci, both natives of Italy, are rival cornet cornet players. During the season Zanichelli has been engaged with the band at the Mountain House, Englewood, N. J., while Stearci has been connected with the band on the the steamboat Grand Republic. On a warrant issued by Justice Flammer, Signor Zanichelli was arrested yesterday morning, after a week's search, and arraigned before the Justice at the Tombs Police Court to answer a charge of violating the laws in challenging Signor Stearci to a duel. Justice Flammer committed him to the Tombs for examination. Zanichelli stated that Stearci was jealous of Mademoiselle Angelina Ciella, a vocalist, to whom, it is said, he is engaged. They both belong to the "Mutual Society of Music," which meets at No. 10 Stanton-st., and Stearci got jealous of him one day when Mademoiselle Ciella came there to sing. He said he was not particularly impressed with the lady's beauty, and when Stearci spoke of it, he replied that, "if she were a handkerchief, he wouldn't use her to wipe the sweat off his face." At this Stearci got angry, and called him "a cur and a coward" before the society. When he reached home one evening soon after this affair, his landlord told him to look out, as Stearci was lurking in the dark hall with a drawn dirk. Thereupon he got some powder and quietly laid a long train in the hall. Setting fire to it, it suddenly flashed up and so scared Stearci that he ran out into the yard amid peals of laughter. He acknowledged sending the challenge, but had no idea that he was violating the law.

CIVIL NOTES.

Suit for divorce, on the ground of unfaithfulness, has been brought by Mary Shank against her husband, Oswald Shank, of No. 222 Johnson-ave., Brooklyn.

Christian Berg, a notary public, sues John H. Cordes, in Brooklyn, for $2,000 damages, caused by the injurious statement of the defendant that "Christian Berg was called to make a will, and when he drew it the man was dead, and he put a pen in the dead man's hand and made him sign the will."
