THE COURTS.

MRS. MERRILL IN EUROPE.

FURTHER TESTIMONY IN REGARD TO HER ECCENTRIC HABITS.

The contest of the will of Mrs. Caroline A. Merrill was continued yesterday by the reading, in behalf of George Merrill, the contestant, of the deposition of Dr. Gregorio Fidell, of Rome, who was the physician of Mrs. Merrill while she was in Rome. The doctor said that she was suffering from heart murmurings, eruptions and fatty degeneration. She drank champagne and other wines to excess, and frequently was intoxicated. This brought on sleeplessness and a condition of mind when she would weep like a child and complain that women were robbing her. She showed great violence toward a Sister of Charity who came to attend her once when she was sick. In 1876 she appeared listless, and seemed to care nothing for what went on around her.

The deposition of Eliseri Franceschini, "Chevalier of the Crown of Italy," and keeper of the Hotel d'Europe, in Rome, was read. While Mrs. Merrill was at his hotel, in 1875, he said, the bills for her wine amounted to 20 to 50 francs a day. On a warm day she would wear five or six shawls when she walked out. When Dr. Smith, a priest, began to visit her, the deponent said, he obtained control over her, and she was a changed woman. Frequently he would spend three or four hours with her in her room; as soon as he was announced, she would have wines and liquors sent up to the room. She was generally intoxicated after dinner. The courier said that one day she threw her plate down with her "his conduct was so bad that he had a mind to throw him out of the window."

Joseph Tuckerman, in his deposition made at his Paris residence, said that when he first knew Captain and Mrs. Merrill they talked of George as if they intended to make him their heir. When Mrs. Merrill came again to Paris in 1868 she was much changed. She talked wildly about the failure of Green & Co., which, she said, killed her husband. She said she was writing a book that would astonish the world. Mrs. Mary Ellis, a boarding-house keeper, of Paris, deposed that Mrs. Merrill acted very strangely while living with her in 1868. The occupants of the house were kept constantly aroused by her queer sayings and doings. She said that Mr. Gray, a banker, had murdered her husband by keeping from him 3,000 francs that were due, and she had come from America to insult the banker. This deposition repeated statements about Mrs. Merrill's singular mode of dress and habits of eating and drinking.

A SUBSTITUTED JUROR.

THE VERDICT INVALIDATED BY HIS PRESENCE.

Judge Neilson, in the Brooklyn City Court yesterday, decided a case of considerable interest, as it involves the validity of a verdict where an unknown man is substituted for one of the jurors. The case was that of John R. Dayton and Roger W. Waldo against William H. Church, in which a verdict was rendered for the plaintiffs. Subsequently the defendant discovered that one of the jurors, Addison Chapman, whose name was on the panel, had not served on the jury, and that his place had been filled by an unknown man. Chapman claimed that he had asked the Alderman of his ward, William H. Waters, to get him excused from jury duty, and had no knowledge of the man who served in his place. On the ground of this and other alleged irregularities a motion was made to set aside the verdict. On this motion Judge Neilson has rendered his opinion.

The Judge says that this irregularity deserves serious attention. By what corrupt management the substitution was brought about it has not been discovered, and the name, age, residence and occupation of the pretended juror remain unknown. Some clue to the matter perhaps, be inferred from the crime he has committed. Several cases of substituted jurors are then referred to, and the Judge says that by a strong concurrence of authority he is brought to the conclusion that in this case the verdict cannot stand. It was the verdict of eleven men, and besides, the stranger who personated Chapman was with the eleven jurymen in their room, taking part in their deliberations, apparently entitled to their respect and confidence; and, whether his influence was good or evil, his presence there was improper. The verdict is therefore set aside, but without costs.

DRAWING LOTS FOR A MARRIED LIFE.

One of the amusing bits of testimony that occasionally enliven the court-room was given before the Surrogate yesterday, in the contest of the will of John B. Jantzen. The decedent was one of the firm of Jantzen & Brother, hatchers in Centre-st., and the two brothers had been much attached to each other. The decedent left all his property, in value about $50,000, to the surviving brother, and two sisters are contesting the will. George W. Brown, one of the witnesses to the will, testified yesterday to some of the peculiarities of the brothers, with whom he was well acquainted. They had always been considered queer fellows, he said, and for many years kept "bachelor's hall" together, and all the traditional ills that ever fall to men under such circumstances beset them. Their napkins were stolen, their spoons were continually losing themselves, dirt accumulated, the food was ill-cooked, beds were either damp or sheetless, and general discomfort prevailed. At last the witness said the brothers held a consultation as to the best means of remedying their evils. "I have it," suddenly exclaimed Jasper, as if a new idea had occurred to him, "let's get married." "What, both of us?" asked John. "Yes," Jasper answered; "It'll do just as well if one of us gets married. Let's 'draw cuts' and whoever gets the small be." John agreed to this; they "drew cuts," and the lot to marry fell to Joseph. "But he marry," was asked by counsel. "He took his wife," the witness answered amidst the laughter of the listeners.

DECIDING AGAINST MRS. FOSHAY.

The suit of Mrs. Mary Pettigrew and others against Mrs. Jane Foshay, which has been on trial for nearly two weeks before Judge Lawrence, in the Supreme Court, Circuit, was concluded yesterday. Mrs. Foshay, who had been divorced from her husband for her adultery, had lived with John W. Pettigrew for several years, and at his death put in claims for administration as his widow upon his estate of $100,000. The claim of marriage rested upon testimony that in New-Jersey, the laws of which do not prevent the marriage of divorced persons, they had promised to take each other for husband and wife, and that they had continued to live as such. The plaintiffs, the heirs and executors of John W. Pettigrew, brought this action to have the defendant enjoined from prosecuting her claims before the surrogate. Sixteen questions of fact were submitted to the jury, upon fifteen of which they found for the plaintiffs. They found for the defendant that she had been domiciled in New-Jersey at the time of the alleged marriage.

A SECOND TERM OF TEN YEARS.

William Miller, alias "Wash Goody," pleaded guilty in General Sessions yesterday to a charge of burglary in the first degree. On the night of October 28 he broke into the room of a guest at the Cosmopolitan Hotel and stole $60 and a gold watch. Miller is well known to the police, and only a few weeks ago was released from State Prison after serving out a sentence of ten years for burglary. In September, 1870, he was found in the bedroom of Frederick Wohlgemuth, at No. 89 Clinton-place. He had a fight with the occupant and escaped. Chased by the police, he took refuge behind a tree in Washington-square, and with a revolver in hand, managed to keep three officers at bay for half an hour. Finally he was captured. At that time there was an indictment standing against him for attempting to kill a police officer in a successful effort to avoid arrest for having stolen property in his possession. Judge Cowing sentenced him to State Prison for ten years.

CIVIL NOTES.

Two sisters of Miss Louisiana St. John, the eccentric millionaire who lived in a wretched manner in an Elizabeth-st. tenement house, and left the bulk of her immense fortune for benevolent objects, filed in the Surrogate's Office yesterday a notice of contest of the will.

Mrs. Lucy E. Clayton, who owns property in Grand-ave., near Myrtle-ave., Brooklyn, has begun an action in the Supreme Court, Kings County, to enjoin the Brooklyn Elevated Railway Company from proceeding with its work in Grand-ave.

In the Kings County Circuit Court, yesterday, the suit of Jacob Randolph against Cornelius J. Bergen to recover the amount of a promissory note for $1,000, with interest, was tried. The defendant admitted the execution of the note, but claimed that it was made under an agreement to pay the first year's interest in advance and the sum of $35 as a bonus. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff of $1,245.

GOVERNOR BISHOP SUES THE GAZETTE.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 7.—Governor Bishop brought suit against The Cincinnati Gazette Company today for $50,000 damages alleged to have been sustained from false, slanderous and malicious libel published by the defendant on October 14th, charging him with a corrupt bargain and consorting with Democratic Police Commissioners Sutton and Dorsey to oust Commissioner Weber in order to hange control of the Police Board, and also a second libelous publication charging that Governor Bishop had become the submissive tool of a characterless set of adventurers.

"ANOTHER METHOD."—Guest: Something for you! Way, "Attachance" is charged in the bill!—Waiter: Yes, sir; but gentlemen usually consider their owe it to themselves. Guest: And pay it to you—eh? A bright idea that! But I've a brighter. I will "consider" that I owe it to you, and—pay it to myself!—Funny Folks.
