LITERARY NOTES.

The change in the editorship of The Pall Mall Gazette has accidentally brought out for Mr. Main's "Treasury of English Sonnets" two long reviews, but fortunately for the paper, whose entire staff is understood to have changed, both notices practically agreed respecting the merits of the work.

George Eliot, when she returns from Italy with Mr. Cross, will make her home at No. 4 Cheyne Walk, in Chelsea, the house in which Maclise lived and painted many years. Turner's last dwelling place is only a short distance away, and Carlyle's well-known house also is not far distant. A book on Chelsea and the homes of artists and writers who have lived there, was recently published in London.

The August Harper will have a poem by Mr. Longfellow on Robert Burns. It is to be the opening feature of the number and three illustrations have been made for it. This issue of Harper will have a truly midsummer character. M. D. Conway has written for it a paper on "A Martin Summer in the Garden of France," and the second of Mrs. R. H. Davis's series on "By-paths in the Mountains" will be given. Mr. Blackmore's remarkable novel, "Mary Anerley," which has just been made into a handsome book, reaches its conclusion. Henry James's "Washington Square" then comes into the foreground as the fresh story feature of this magazine.

Announcements: The newly discovered memoirs of St. Simon will be published in Paris at an early day. They are already in the hands of an editor..... Moses Coit Tyler will lecture before the Lowell Institute the coming year on topics connected with American literature..... The scene of "Salvage," the new No-Name novel, is laid chiefly on an ocean steamer which is wrecked during the passage from Liverpool to New-York..... Two more volumes are ready in the cheap edition of Ouida's novels which J. B. Lippincott & Co. give in preparation..... Professor Sayce is writing a history of cuneiform inscriptions and the labors that have been given to the translation of them..... The first edition of M. D. Conway's "Demonology and Devil-Lore" has been exhausted in England, and a new one is in preparation.

Dr. Jean Paul Richter, who wrote the sketch of Leonardo Da Vinci in Scribner & Welford's Lives of the Great Artists, and who is known to possess special knowledge of certain obscure points in the life of this man whom Mr. Hannicrton has pronounced "the greatest intellect of a great epoch," is about to publish the rest of some important examinations he has made of MS. works of Leonardo. He has found the original text of the "Libro della Pittura," which, though printed in many editions, has never been printed correctly. Besides this he intends to publish Leonardo's writings on sculpture and architecture, his philosophical maxims, humorous writings and some notes on his contemporaries, together with other matter. Along with the Italian version he will print a translation, with explanatory notes. The illustrations will comprise about 200 drawings in autotype. The work will be in two volumes of imperial octavo size.

The story of the romantic love of King William IV. of England, when he was Duke of Clarence, for Caroline von Linsingen, first published in Germany several months ago, has been translated into English and just brought out in London. After the clandestine marriage the Duke was unable to obtain recognition for Caroline as his wife and she married another man—a physician, through whose labors she had been raised from an illness thought to be fatal. The young Prince William expostulated in vain with her, one of his letters containing these words: "Wife surpassed by none, wife that alone filled, and will forever fill, my heart; wife with a soul of fire; you love for eternity, and only William, only your earliest love, can suffice for you. I am yours, yours alone, and no God, no devil, can part me from you. The Nation that loved me formerly now adores me; my brother is in my power; and this Isle is not my world if it do not worship you as I do. At this moment I am still your William, yours alone, and in your arms am at all times monarch of the world, though not a King's son. Be mine, or I shall curse even Virtue's self. O wife, my wife, I am ever yours; never shall another call your William husband." The story is published without any testimonial of its authenticity; indeed, the English translator takes trouble to decline all responsibility for anything except the fidelity of his version. But everybody in England seems to be talking about it.

MINES AND MINING.

FRIDAY, July 9—P. M.

Mining stocks generally continue to be weak and some of the principally active stocks again are lower. Chrysolite declined to 11¼ and Little Chief to 7¼. Amie was hardly steady at .84 after selling up to .87, and Leadville sold at .70. Silver Cliff was dull at 4½. Climax gained 5 cents at 2.55 and afterward sold at 2½. and South Hite was quiet at 1.50 @1.55. The sales of Hukill were at 1.50 and 1.55, closing weak. At the American Board Silver Nugget declined to 1.50 and was weak at the price. Auburn and Rock Creek was 5 cents higher at 1.20. Barbee and Walker and Battle Creek were steady, but dull at previous quotations. Among the low-priced stocks Durango was active and rose from .57 to .60@.59, and Moose fell from 72 to 68@70. Great Eastern was weak at 57, Calaveras at 53, Gold Placer at 60 and Buckeye at 31. Consolidated Virginia was lower at 3.45 and California was steady at 2.05. The market closed dull and uninteresting.
