LOCAL MISCELLANY.

TROUBLES OF THE STRIKERS.

The brewery men's strike continued yesterday principally on the part of the retail liquor sellers who have espoused the strikers' cause. At Wendel's Assembly Rooms about 200 men were gathered yesterday, idle and listless. A few speeches were made by the leaders to buoy up sinking hopes, but with little success. To-day these men will be used to distribute circulars, and in other ways to create enthusiasm among the members of the trades-unions of this city and its vicinity to make the demonstration meeting which is to be held early next week in Cooper Union a success. The business of the brewers' employes' strike seems to be carried on almost entirely now by the retail liquor sellers and many of them express themselves as tired with the length of time which has elapsed since the beginning of the strike. In accordance with the desire to bring the difficulty to an adjustment, Justus Schwab offered a resolution at the meeting yesterday in Turn Hall, that a board of arbitration be appointed, composed of three brewers, three brewers' men and three retail liquor sellers. This board, if the brewers will consent, will have power to settle the trouble. The keepers of beer shops say that while they have now 500 retailers in their union, it is desirable to make these overtures to the brewers, but they do not regard them as signs of yielding on their part.

Nearly all the iron molders, sixty in number, employed in the Morgan Iron Works at the foot of East Ninth-st., struck Thursday for an increase of 10 per cent in wages. This demand was made soon after the men had been given one hours' holiday on Saturday in answer to the request for a half holiday. The average wages paid the molders have been $2 30 a day, and John Roach the owner of the works refused to make any further concessions. The strikers chose a time to quit work when the enormous casting of a condenser for a large walking-beam engine was to be poured which required the skill of the shop. When it was known that the casting would be undertaken with the small number of men left in the shop, the anxiety of the strikers became intense, and they remained near the foundry yesterday to see if it would prove a failure. No ovations have yet been made by the firm to the strikers, and an attempt will be made to replace the men, who say that no other workmen can be procured, as all the molders in the city are in the union, and will not go to work. The strikers will hold a meeting to-day at No. 163 First-ave.

The 400 boiler makers and 300 blacksmiths employed in the Morgan Iron Works have announced that they will strike next Monday unless their pay-day is changed from Monday to Saturday.

PAWNBROKERS PLEADING POVERTY.

The Law Committee of the Board of Aldermen, Alderman Hawes, chairman, yesterday listened to those who are interested in the question of increasing the license fee of pawnbrokers from $50 to $1,000, and requiring a bond of $10,000, instead of $1,000. J. P. Solomon presented petition which, he stated, was signed by more than eighty pawnbrokers, protesting against the proposed increase. He declared that the increase was unreasonable and exorbitant. It did not require a capital of $75,000 to carry on the business honestly.

B. Kahn, of No. 87 Delancey-st., said he was in favor of the increase. There are pawnbrokers who will receive pledges at as late an hour as 2 a. m., but they will charge $1 extra nominally for the gaslight. [Laughter.] Isidor Lindeman opposed the increase on the ground that it would place the business in the hands of a favored few.

"How many pawnbrokers would give up business if the license was increased to $500 or $1,000?" asked Alderman Hawes.

"A large number," was the reply. "They could not pay it. All who signed the petition presented here would have to get out."

E. G. Lemon, of Sixth-ave., said that he signed the petition, but he would not leave the business if the license fee was raised. Mr. Lindeman said he had been a good many years in the business and was still a poor man. Others spoke in the same strain. It was noticed, however, that many of these who pleaded poverty wore costly diamonds.

B. Moris said he often advanced three-quarters of the value of the articles pledged, and added that he sometimes advanced as much as five-quarters of the value. This was received with a shout of laughter from the bystanders.

The hearing was then closed, and the committee will report at the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

COMMISSIONER COLEMAN'S PLANS.

Commissioner Coleman got in his carriage at an early hour yesterday morning and started for another tour of the city. He made a special inspection of Water-st., Cherry-st. and other streets in the Fourth Ward and in the wards bordering on the East River. When he reached the Department stables at Avenue C and Seventeenth-st., late in the afternoon, he said that he found the streets in great need of being cleaned, and would therefore proceed by the old methods of cleaning the streets as fast as possible. As nothing had been done in this direction for two weeks by the old bureau, it would take ten days or two weeks to accomplish this.

When asked what change would be made in the system at the expiration of that time, he replied that he preferred to work out his plans to making a formal statement of them. In general his plan was to get the streets clean and then keep them clean, and not allow the dirt to accumulate. Without directly asserting so he intimated that he would adopt some system of getting the work done by contract. So far the new Commissioner has had no headquarters save the office at the stables, but in a few days he expects to open an office in the neighborhood of the City Hall Square.

INDIAN CHILDREN GOING EAST.

Sixteen Indian boys and seven girls from the Normal and Agricultural Institute at Hampton, Virginia, arrived in this city yesterday on their way to Berkshire, Co., Mass., where their vacation will be spent. They are principally of the Sioux nation, but some are representatives of the Pawnees, Rickarees, the Absentee Shawnees, the Gros Ventres and the Menomonie Indians. Some of their names are "Thomas Wildcat," nineteen years old, chief of the "Absentee Shawnees," "Long Arm," "Frank Yellowbird," "Laughing Face," "Famani," or "One-who-hoots-when-he-walks," "Little Bear," "Forest Leaves," "Louisa Tasagramawin," the translation of the last name being "Cold-when-she-walks." The visitors, whose ages range from twelve to twenty-two years, were taken to the house of Riley A. Brick, of No. 25 East Thirty-eighth-st., where they were met by the Rev. Dr. Watkins, of the Church of the Holy Trinity, and the Rev. Mr. Baker, of St. Luke's Hospital.

ARRESTS WITHOUT EFFECT.

The trial of the Police Commissioners was continued yesterday before the Mayor. The testimony of the policemen who had made arrests for violations of corporation ordinances was continued. One policeman said that he arrested a man for throwing oyster shells in the street. When he remonstrated with him, the man told him to "go to — and do it himself." He took the man before Justice Duffy, who discharged him and told him not to let the officer catch him the next time. Justice Morgan discharged one woman who was arrested for throwing ashes into the street. He said that if the Commissioners would clean the streets officer it would not be necessary for poor people to throw ashes into the streets.

The Mayor then adjourned the Court until Tuesday at 11 a. m.

THE ROCKAWAY HOTEL LITIGATION.

Rumors have been in circulation as to the probability of the big hotel at Rockaway being opened for this season's business, but they cannot be traced to any responsible source. It is claimed by some persons that if a new receiver is appointed by Judge Westbrook, who will hear arguments in the matter to-day at Kingston, the house will be opened. Others say that if the District-Attorney had not interfered it would have been opened by the present receiver—Mr. Rice. Independent of these statements the friends of the originators of the enterprise, Messrs. Attrill & Smith, claim that if they had a chance to act in the matter, without the embarrassment of other interests, they would be able to open the house.

ATTEMPT TO DROWN A POLICEMAN.

James Collins, Edward Reilly, Michael Hart and Andrew Deegan were tried yesterday, in the Court of General Sessions, for assaulting Policeman Finley and throwing him into the East River, at the foot of Thirty-sixth-st. Five men who witnessed the occurrence from a rowboat testified that the prisoners had nothing to do with the assault, and that Patrick Hart, a brother of one of the prisoners, struck the officer and threw him into the river. Michael Hart, one of the prisoners, admitted that he saw his brother knock the officer off the pier. The witnesses also testified that one of the prisoners jumped into the river and saved the officer from drowning. Judge Cowing directed the jury to render a verdict of acquittal.

A SCANTILY CLAD PURSUER.

A man clad only in a pair of drawers, in hot pursuit of another man and vigorously shouting "Stop thief," startled many residents in Carroll, President and Van-Brunt-sts. Thursday afternoon. Michael Cunnan, of No. 51 President-st., while asleep in the afternoon, was awakened by a thief in his room. The thief rushed down stairs with Cunnan's clothes, and the latter followed in hot chase. Among others who tried to stop the thief was Police Captain Leavey, who was rolled ingloriously in the dust. The man, who gave the name of Thomas Brady, was finally compelled to seek refuge in a stable, where he was captured, and Cunnan was enabled to dress so as fitly to appear in the streets.

VENTURESOME MARINERS.

The William R. Grace, a craft of three tons burden, now lying at Burling-slip, will soon start on a voyage to London. The crew will consist of two men, who propose to start June 23, and expect to reach their destination in thirty days. The boat is 20 feet over all, 19 feet keel, 5½ feet breadth of beam, and 2½ feet in depth. It is brigantine rigged, and carries eleven cotton duck sails. The provisions will be carried in lockers, arranged around the inside of the shell of the boat. There is a compartment in the bow filled with cork to make the boat more buoyant in rough weather, and it is rendered additionally safe by the presence of air-chambers.

ALMSHOUSE MISMANAGEMENT.

At the meeting yesterday of the Supervisors of Westchester County, the committee on the management of the County Almshouse, by the Superintendent of the Poor, reported that the account books at the poorhouse had been kept in a very unsatisfactory manner; that in those known as the Town books, leaves had been torn or cut out, while others had been pasted together. On calling for an explanation in the matter, the committee was told that these mutilations and obliterations had been made in consequence of the leaves getting dirty or blotted, and that the entries which were made upon them had been correctly transferred to other pages. The committee, however, found on separating the leaves so pasted together, that the entries had not been properly copied. It was also reported that the charges that whiskey had been purchased by Mr. Ackerly on two occasions and charged against the county as tea and coffee, were correct; that fraudulent certificates and vouchers as to the nature of the article bought had been made out and allowed by the committee of the Board; that the products of the farm had been disposed of and not properly accounted for on the books, and finally that the superintendents had been afforded ample opportunity to refute the charges made against them, but had failed to make any defence in the matter.

The report of the committee was adopted by the Board, and the committee was directed to present the facts in the case to the Governor for his consideration and action.

THE DOCTORS' CONVENTION ENDED.

The American Institute of Homœopathy held its closing session yesterday morning at the Hotel Brighton. The Board of Censors was completed by the election of Dr. Rush, of Salem, Mass. Following a suggestion in the President's annual address, it was resolved to add a Bureau of Pathology to the Bureau of Anatomy and Physiology. A memorial service for members who had died in the course of last year was then held and addresses made by Drs. Burgher, Dake, Morgan, Talbot and Smith, of New-York. The president, Dr. J. W. Dowling, made a few parting remarks and the Institute then adjourned sine die.

In the evening the members of the Institute were given a reception at Delmonico's by the New-York County Homœopathic Medical Society. Dr. J. Ridley White, President of the Society, and Dr. Carlton, the Vice-President, with their wives, received the guests, who were presented by Dr. Dowling. Several hundred persons were present.

THE BUNKER HILL ANNIVERSARY.

ORATION BY ROBERT C. WINTHROP AT THE UNVEILING OF THE PRESCOTT STATUE.

BOSTON, June 17.—The celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill was confined almost exclusively to Charlestown, although little business was done in other parts of the city. In Charlestown there was a large and successful parade of "Antiques" early in the morning. In the procession were groups representing the Minute Men of 1775, Washington and his Generals, and other historic subjects.

At 1:20 the Bunker Hill Monument Association conducted the exercises attending the unveiling of the statue of Colonel Prescott, which stands on grounds near the monument.

The oration was delivered by Robert C. Winthrop, who displayed at one point in his address the sword worn by Colonel Prescott at the battle. In conclusion Mr. Winthrop said:

It is a most interesting part of the story of this day, that when Prescott proceeded to the headquarters of his Commander-in-Chief, General Ward, at Cambridge, and reported the results of the exploit which he had been ordered to conduct, and had conducted, he asked, perhaps rashly, but with characteristic courage and confidence, that if he could only have three fresh regiments, with sufficient supplies and ammunition, he would return and retake the hill. I know not whether he was ever on this spot again from that hour to the present. But he is here at last! Thanks to the generosity of our public-spirited fellow-citizens, and thanks, still more, to the consummate skill of a most accomplished American artist—second to no living sculptor of the world—who has given his whole heart, as well as the exquisite cunning of his hand, to the work—he is here at last, "in his navit as he lived!"

And now, before I proceed with any poor words of my own, let the statue speak for itself, and display the noble form which has too long been concealed from your impatient sight! The genius of story presents him to us now, in the light Dunkan coat and broad-brimmed hat which he is known to have thrown on during the intense heat of the day and of the battle in exchange for the more stately and cumbrous uniform in which he had marched from Cambridge the night before, and which may be seen dropped beneath his feet. His eagle gaze is riveted with intense energy on the close approaching foe. With his left hand he is hushing and hooding back the impetuous soldiers under his command, to await his word. With his right hand he is just ready to lift the sword which is to be the signal for action. The marked and well remembered features, which he transmitted to his son and grandson, and which may be recognized on at least one of his living descendants, have enabled the artist to supply, amply and admirably, the want of any original portrait of himself. Nothing more powerful and lifelike has been seen on this hill since he was here before. And that very sword which so long adorned the library walls of his grandson—the historian—and which is now one of the treasures of the Massachusetts Historical Society, one of those "crossed swords" whose romantic story has so often been told in verse and in prose—that same sword, which, tradition tells us, he wrenched with it from his side, while, waving it aloft, he "cut the button on the coat," or, if it may have been, "the whites of the eyes," of the advancing enemy in their original onslaught, he first gave the word "Fire!"—that same sword I am prepared to hold up at this moment to your view; it, indeed, I shall be able to hold it, while it seems ready to leap from its scabbard, and to fly from my hand, to unsheathe and become the trusty old musket and weapon! No blade which ever came from the forges of Damascus, Toledo, or Genoa, was ever witness to greater personal prowess, or was ever wielded by a braver arm.

Prescott stands alone here now. But our little Museum—to be reconstructed, I trust, at no distant day of ample materials and adequate dimensions—already contains a marble statue of the glorious Warren. The great first martyr of the Revolutionary battle, are now both in place. Around them, on other parts of the hill, in other years, some of the gallant lead to who rushed to their aid from other states, or from other parts of our own State, will, it is hoped, be seen—Pomeroy, and Stark, and Reed, and Knowlton, with Putnam at the head of them all. They will be welcome, when ever they may come. Primarily a Massachusetts battle, it was peculiarly, also, a New-England battle; and all New-England might well be represented on these heights. But the premium of honors of this occasion are paid, as they are due and long, long overdue, to our grand Massachusetts Middlesex, farmer and patriot. He has returned, and with three fresh regiments only, as he proposed, but with the acclamations of every soldier and every citizen within the sound of what is being said, or within any knowledge of what is being done, here, to-day. He has retaken Bunker Hill; and, with it, the hearts of all who are gathered on it at this hour, or who shall be gathered upon it, generation after generation, in all the untold centuries of the future!

LEGISLATIVE WORK.

PROPOSED EXPENDITURE OF PUBLIC MONEY—THE FIFTH AVENUE PAVING BILL IN THE ASSEMBLY—THE NEW CAPITOL.

[FROM THE REGULAR CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE.]

ALBANY, June 17.—The bill for the repavement of Fifth-ave. excited an interesting debate in the Assembly to-day. Mr. Trimble, the author of the bill, represents a district in New-York inhabited by wealthy and cultured people. A year ago the district was represented by Edward Mitchell, a man of great talent, who steadily devoted himself during his term to earnest efforts to protect the taxpayers of New-York from spoliation. He was rewarded by the Conkling managers of the district, who ordered Mr. Trimble to be sent in his stead to Albany. Mr. Trimble during his term has constantly voted for the various bills to deplete the treasury of New-York. Early in the session he proposed his own special bill of plunder—the Fifth Avenue Repavement bill. It provided for the expenditure of $600,000, and that the work should be done by a commission consisting of Charles Johnson, Samuel Lowden, and Commissioner Thompson, of the Department of Public Works. Erastus Brooks and others fought the bill with such vigor that Mr. Trimble was compelled to accept their amendment limiting the expense to $220,000 and putting the work solely in the charge of Commissioner Thompson. Mr. Trimble succeeded in having the bill amended by the Senate to its original form. Back it came from the Senate in this shape to-day. Mr. Trimble at once moved that the Assembly concur in the amendments of the Senate. Mr. Hamilton moved that the Assembly nonconcur and that a conference committee should be appointed. After a long debate the motion to nonconcur in the amendments was lost by a vote of 43 to 49. There were fourteen of the twenty-four New-York members who voted against Mr. Hamilton's motion.

The Legislature is becoming generous in its senile old age. Today the Senate passed Senator Brennan's bill appropriating $300,000 for continuing work on the exterior walls of the new Capitol. Already this year the Legislature has appropriated $1,000,000 for the structure; and when the Legislature met there was $2,900,000 remaining unexpended of the appropriation of last year. It is thus virtually proposed to expend $1,200,000 upon the great building the present year.

There was a long and inconclusive debate in the Senate on the bill to tax life insurance companies. Senator Woodin and others opposed the bill, while an argument in its favor was delivered by Senator Winslow. The further consideration of the bill was then postponed till Tuesday next.

The Senate to-day passed the bill virtually excluding the testimony of informers in cases against lottery men and sellers of obscene literature. The Assembly recalled from the Governor the bill against the adulteration of molasses and honey and again passed it. Mr. Brennan's bill appropriating $8,000 for the Seamen's Retreat on Staten Island was ordered to a third reading by the Assembly.

Her Ladyship: "They tell me you have made quite a large amount by the Derby, Thomas. I suppose you will be settling down and getting married, now?" Tom the groom: "Not if I knows it, yer ladyship. I've seen too much of married life with missuses; beggin' yer pardin."—[Moonshine.

NOT AN INHUMANE WORK.

A LETTER TO MR. BERGH ABOUT THE CONEY ISLAND TOURNAMENT.

The following letter, which explains itself, was sent to Henry Bergh Thursday:

NEW-YORK, June 16, 1881.

HENRY BERGH, Esq.,

My DEAR SIR:—My attention has been called to certain articles in some of the daily papers to the effect that, as the president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, you had asserted your intention to break up the tournament of the New-York State Association for the Protection of Fish and Game to be held at Coney Island, commencing next Tuesday, and that I, as president of the last named organization, had returned the compliment by threatening to cause your arrest.

I deem it explicitly to state that any such action has ever been contemplated upon my part. Had we the advantage of personal acquaintance with each other such an unfortunate rumor could not have found its way into print.

The association which I represent is largely composed of the most influential citizens of this State, gentlemen who have honorably held seats in the State and National Legislatures and in the Executive chair, and also including the representative business men of the several cities, towns and hamlets in this State, and I am one of those who have been foremost in concerted efforts not only to protect but to propagate and multiply our fish and game. That such gentlemen should be associated with the cock-fighter and dog-fighter is neither just nor creditable to the persons making such charge.

Nothing will afford me or the association which I represent greater pleasure than to assist, our society in preventing anything which shall bear the resemblance of cruelty. The resolution recorded upon to the effect that birds were to be dragged or mutilated could only originate in ignorance of the character, customs and purposes of the state organization.

I assure you that the courtesy will be shown you and adjutants who are at odds with the tournament, and that both the interest in game was sustaining an enhancement consequent on your proceedings, and that the members of the Association will prove courteous of public assistants in the home to which you are invited. I, I expect, hold, etc.,

ALEX. CHASE.

Mr. Bergh has written a letter to the New-York State Association for the protection of fish and game in reference to the proposed tournament. He takes exception to the word "protection" in the society's title, because, according to Webster, protection signifies "protection against which it is intended to be thing is contrary to the spirit of the tournament. He declares his belief that the sport is as inhuman as the bull-fight, not to be killed to pass the time away, and concludes by stating that the sooner the society changes its name to one which you are chosen it, the sooner will it be in a position to receive the support of humane people.

ALEX. CHASE.
