sailors. The owners disburse very small amounts of money in this country for supplies, labor or repairs. Take, for instance, the 30,000 first-cabin passengers who go abroad this season. At the lowest calculation each one will pay $150 for the round trip, and thus $4,500,000 is paid to foreigners. These passengers will take with them for spending money an average of at least $3,000 each, or a total amount of $90,000,000. In addition a large number of second-cabin and steerage passengers will take out of the country at least $20,000,000 more in cash and passage ticket money. At the lowest calculation there will arrive at this port during 1882, 600,000 immigrants. These pay about $30 each for passage, a total amount of $18,000,000, which fully one-half is paid for tickets purchased by friends in this country. Here is, at the smallest calculation, a total of $125,000,000 taken out of the country, and very little is brought back by the immigrants to take its place.

THE EXTENT OF PLEASURE TRAVEL.

R. J. Cortis, manager of the White Star Line, was asked for his opinion as to the limit of outward travel. "It is impossible," he said, "to say what is the limit of pleasure travel from this country to Europe every season. Last season all of our vessels had their saloon accommodations taxed to the utmost from May until September, and notwithstanding that we have added more steamships of greater capacity we are obliged to turn away many. We have been obliged to take our officers' rooms for passengers. All of our steamers sailing from now until the middle of July are practically full. The Baltic is run as an extra steamer from here every fourth Saturday. She brings out immigrants, but has the saloon fittings on board, and they are put up here so that she can carry cabin passengers back. The great increase of travel is due to the fact that the people have had a few prosperous years, and made money. Besides our regular patrons we have many Americans from the Western cities. They ask advice as to what amount of spending money they should take with them. Notwithstanding that travelling and living is cheaper in Europe than here, the Americans throw away a great deal of money. They are accustomed to do the same at home."

"The demand for saloon accommodations," said Vernon H. Brown, of the Cunard Line, "is much larger this year than previously. Our steamers have 33 per cent greater saloon accommodations than some other steamers, and yet we are full up to to the middle of July. The Servia on her next two trips will carry out full passenger lists, and the Gallia will do the same. It seems to make no difference how large steamships we have, or how many extra trips we make, the demand increases with the facilities offered. I recognize our regular patrons among the passengers, but of course there are many new faces among them. There is a larger percentage of Western people travelling than heretofore. Our new steamship, the Aurania, which we hoped to have ready this spring, has been delayed, owing to the strikes of the mechanics. She will be of the same size and quite as fast as the Servia."

THE DEMAND GREATER THAN THE SUPPLY.

Mr. Gibson, passenger agent for the Guion Line, said: "The demand is from 40 to 50 per cent greater than last year for saloon accommodations, and even with the new and fastest steamships, the Alaska and Arizona, we cannot accommodate it. This demand is no doubt in part due to the success of our new steamships. The Alaska, which sailed recently, had not a vacant berth. All of our other vessels sailing from now until the end of June are pretty full. We have a large number of Australians going to Europe with us, who have come by way of San Francisco. There is also a large increase of travel among the distinctive Americans from this city, from the West and from New-England. It is wonderful where all the passengers come from to fill the new ships which are coming into the trade."

"The steamships of the Inman Line which will sail from here between now and July 8 are full," said Mr. Kirk, passenger agent of the company. "We have only accommodations left for two or three passengers. We have a large number of passengers going out on our vessels besides our regular patrons. Many of our patrons came to this country in sailing vessels and have not been home since."

"It is remarkable," the passenger agent of the Red Star Line, to Antwerp, said, "what swarms of people come here every day to secure passage to Europe. We have to turn them away. We have had to send a large number to the American Line, from Philadelphia. Our steamships sailing between now and July 1 are full. The increase of travel with us is about double what it was last year. The Belgenland, which sails June 17, has only a few berths in the second cabin left. The improvements made in our second cabins, especially in the new vessels, have induced a large number who could not be accommodated in the first cabin to accept that accommodation. We find the increase in our trade comes mainly from Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Indianapolis, and Boston and other New-England cities, as well as from New-York. Many people who formerly spent the season at Saratoga, Long Branch and other places now go to Europe."

"Our saloon passenger traffic is fully 15 per cent greater than last year," said Mr. Schwab, of the North-German Lloyd, "and 25 per cent greater than in 1880. A larger number of second-cabin passengers are going over, the majority of them being Germans who have made their fortunes and are going home to visit their friends. These people came over here twenty years ago in the steerage. The Elbe, on her recent outward trip, had 200 in the second cabin. From my observations I think the passengers are carrying much more spending money than they formerly did. The sale of excursion tickets is very large."

Mr. Richards, of the Hamburg-American Line, stated: "Our saloon passenger traffic is 20 per cent greater than last year. We have been running two extra steamships every month. There is a large increase in the issue of drafts and letters of credit. The tourists seem to be more liberal than heretofore. Fully two-thirds of the tickets sold are for the round trip. Our saloon passengers mostly land at Cuxhaven. Our second-cabin passengers go directly to Hamburg, because of the lower fares on the German railways, expense being of more moment to them than time. The Herder and Gelert have both been fitted with new and powerful machinery and are now running. The Hammonia, the fastest of the line, will be out in August. Our other steamers will be laid up for general overhauling in the fall."

APPLICANTS TURNED AWAY.

"We have to refuse applicants for passage," said Mr. Duvil, passenger agent of the General Transatlantic Line to Havre, "as we have not sufficient accommodation. I doubt if our larger steamers will meet the demand, which is fully 25 per cent greater than last year. Besides our regular patrons, we have a number of new American faces and people from the interior who have made money. We also have a large number of Italians from Texas, who, afraid of the Texan fever, are going back to Italy. Nearly all of them have drafts for $7,000 or $8,000. We also notice the tendency of tourists to take money with them to spend on the other side."

F. Le Boulanger, passenger agent of the Bordeaux Line, states that the passenger traffic to Bordeaux and Southern France and Spain surpasses first anticipations, and that the demand for accommodations is constantly increasing.

The passenger agent of the National Line, with steamships running to Liverpool and London, states that the passenger traffic from New-York surpasses anything in the history of steam navigation, and if it increases in the same proportion steamships will not only have to be larger, but will have to make more frequent trips.

Mr. O'Connor, passenger agent of the Monarch Line, said that all of his steamers are full up to July 8.

The same facts in regard to increased passenger traffic were repeated by the agent of the Anchor Line, the vessels of which are all nearly new.

Similar statements showing that the present season's exodus to Europe is unprecedented were made by agents of all the companies consulted.

THE COURTS.

A LARGE JUDGMENT REVERSED.

William Schultz, by William H. Schultz, his guardian, brought an action in December, 1877, in the Superior Court, against the Third Avenue Railroad Company to recover $20,000 as damages for injuries received by being run over by one of the company's cars. Schultz was a small boy. It was claimed on his part that he was thrown by the conductor from the car, upon the platform of which he had been riding, and that he fell in front of the horses of another car going in the opposite direction. Two of the boy's ribs, both his arms, one of his legs and his collar-bone were broken, and he suffered other severe and permanent injuries. The company claimed that the boy was stealing a ride and had jumped off the car. The jury found a verdict for the boy for $15,000—one of the largest sums ever awarded in this class of actions in this city.

The principal witnesses for Schultz were two discharged employes of the railroad company, Francis Reilly and James Morton. The company claimed that these two men had conspired with young Schultz and his father to defraud the company. They swore that the brakes of the car that ran over the boy were out of order to such an extent that the car was not under the driver's control. The company afterward instituted criminal proceedings against Reilly and Morton, which are still pending. On the trial the company attempted to show by a witness named Plass that upon another occasion, not long before this accident, Reilly endeavored to procure Plass to make a false statement in regard to the condition of a car on this road, that the liability might be fixed upon the company. This testimony was excluded and the company rested the appeal chiefly upon this point. The case was tried in January, 1880. In June, 1880, the General Term of the Superior Court affirmed the judgment. Last week the Court of Appeals reversed the judgment and granted a new trial, on the ground that the testimony of Plass should have been admitted in evidence. Messrs. Stillwell & Swain represented the boy Schultz, and Messrs. Lauterbach & Spengler the railroad company.
