THE MONEY MARKET.

SUNDAY, June 18—P. M.

The exports and imports of merchandise at New-York last week make a comparison with the movements of the same week of 1881 that is unfavorable to the port's balance, and they show that the favorable comparison of the movements of the preceding week was as exceptional as we then called it. A decrease of $2,746,105 in the value of the exports and an increase of $2,968,997 in the value of the imports add $5,715,102 to the wrong side of the port's balance of trade, as compared with the week a year ago. The value of the merchandise imported last week is $10,918,124, being $2,968,997 less than for the same week of 1881, and the value of the merchandise exported from New-York for the week is $5,302,476, being $2,746,105 less than for the week of last year. The result of the movement is a debit against the port of $5,615,648 for the week of this year, against a credit of $99,454 for the week of 1881. For the twenty-four weeks since January 1 this year the value of the merchandise imported is $38,744,148 greater than for the corresponding time in 1881, while the value of the merchandise exported is $32,413,329 less; difference against the port, $71,157,477. For the twenty-four weeks of last year the imports exceeded the exports only $24,312,618; this year the imports exceed the exports $95,470,095; difference, as before stated, $71,157,427. Last year the specie imports at this port to date amounted to $29,787,064; this year to $1,868,476; decrease, $27,918,588. This year the specie exports to date amount to $32,536,634; last year to $5,139,856; increase, $27,396,778—a difference in the specie movement to the credit of the port of $55,315,366.

The following shows the imports and exports, other than of securities, at New-York since January 1, for 1881 and 1882:

The weekly bank statement published yesterday makes a handsome showing of gains in cash—$3,510,000 specie and $986,100 legal tenders—but the true condition at the close of business last Friday was even better than the statement. The Sub-Treasury operations and the exports of gold during the week resulted in adding $2,683,500 to the banks' specie reserve; but that sum in the statement averages only $1,620,000; to it add $1,900,000, the amount which a week ago we estimated to be the specie surplusage over the amount reported by the statement of that date, and the result is an average gain in specie of $3,520,000, against $3,510,000, the amount of gain reported by yesterday's statement. Hence the banks begun this week with specie amounting to about $58,000,000, instead of with $57,884,900 as reported. The currency movement at the Sub-Treasury last week was unimportant, resulting in a gain of only $70,279, exclusive of receipts from Washington, but the balance of the interior movement was about $1,000,000 in favor of the city, so that it is probable that the legal-tender average of the banks is a rising one, although an increase in the deposits of about $300,000 more than the other changes call for is an indication that a good proportion of the currency receipts consisted of National bank notes. The week's movement, as reported, results in an increase of $3,502,075 in the amount of the surplus reserve, and leaves it at $8,637,400, against $8,008,400 at same date 1881.

The following are the comparative totals of the statements of June 10 and June 17:

	June 10.	June 17.	Differences.
Loans.....	$318,427,500	$317,403,000	Dec. 1,024,500
Specie.....	57,884,900	61,394,400	Inc. 3,510,000

Circulation.....	18,592,100	18,502,000	Dec. 90,100

The following shows the relation between the total reserve and the total deposit liabilities

	June 10.	June 17.	Changes.
Specie.....	$54,374,900	$57,884,900	Inc. $3,510,000
Legal-tenders.....	25,919,400	26,905,500	Inc. 986,100
Total reserve....	$80,294,300	$84,790,400	Inc. $4,496,100
Reserve requir'd against dep'sits	75,158,975	76,153,000	Inc. 994,025
Surplus.....	$5,135,325	$8,637,400	Inc. $3,502,075

The banks now hold in cash—specie and legal-tenders—$9,294,900 less than the sum held a year ago. The loans now are $29,101,600 less than then and the deposits are $39,695,000 less; so that the reserve required by the 25 per cent rule now is $9,923,900 less than it was a year ago. But the surplus of reserve now is $629,000 greater than it was then, and the proportion of total reserve now is 27.56, against 27.32 per cent at the same date of 1881.

The following are the totals of the statements at the corresponding date for preceding years:

	1879.	1880.	1881.
Loans.....	$269,901,000	$286,070,100	$346,568,000

The monetary situation last week only drifted toward even greater ease, and call loans at the Stock Exchange ruled as near 2 per cent as any other figure. The extraordinary and by no means healthy condition of the money market is largely due to the displacement of investments in Government bonds and the straining of Treasury resources to retire so rapidly the interest-bearing public debt. Since the 1st of June, the Treasury has paid for about $12,000,000 of bonds, of which sum $9,795,050 has been on account of the 112th call, which only matured on June 7. There still remains unpaid of the 106th to the 112th call, inclusive, $11,332,500. A large "short" interest that has existed in the stock market has exerted some influence in making low rates at the Stock Exchange, because of the demand to borrow stocks, but that interest was considerably reduced last week, and for some little time at least will not again prove so important a factor in the local situation. The Custom-House returns for the week ended yesterday report an export of specie and bullion of only $1,162,388, including $1,011,263 is gold bars and coin. Probably some error has been made in the report, because it is reasonably certain that the steamers which sailed on last Wednesday took out gold bars valued at $1,420,000. In calculations on the bank statement we have used the last-named figures, although we print the official figures in the commercial statistics—if wrong, next week's returns will correct them.

After the shipment of gold by Wednesday's steamers, the foreign exchange markets were very dull, and after the mails for yesterday's steamers were made up the market was quoted "weak," but without change in rates for actual business. There is some talk about a better supply of commercial bills, but the record of merchandise exports does not confirm the statement, and as yet we fail to discover that bankers are disposed to draw their bills against a future supply at rates that will not permit a covering by specie shipments if required at maturity of the bills. An early movement of the winter-wheat crop, at exportable prices, unquestionably will diminish the amount of gold shipments that otherwise must be made to meet our merchandise difference; but the immediate effect of the movement in our local money market is likely to be overestimated. A movement of the crop to the seaboard necessarily will make heavy drafts on us for cash, and so far as the immediate situation is concerned would simply result in sending this money to the West instead of exporting it to Europe. Already at the West and South, New-York exchange is weakening and any important movement of produce will quickly mark the exchanges against the East.

The commercial and mercantile situation was not changed during last week. The season of the year when it usually is dull having arrived, there is little outside of speculative movements that calls for comment. Speculations in grain were conducted with less vigor, and wheat was decidedly lower, but corn was somewhat higher than a week ago, and hog products were smartly advanced. Yet the clique in wheat has not yet let go its hold on the markets and nothing is known of its intended movements for the future. In the meantime there evidently is a strong disposition to "bear" the market, which may be just what the clique is inviting, as a growing "short" interest certainly adds strength to its position, whether that position is now well established or not. The cotton speculation was dull, but prices show some advances on the week. In the meantime the exports do not improve, having been from all the ports 32,173 bales for the week, against 34,196 bales for the preceding week, and against 41,309 bales for the week of 1881. The total export movement since September 1, 1881, has been 3,316,978 bales, against 4,257,708 bales for the same time of the preceding year. Yet notwithstanding a decrease of 940,730 bales in our exports, the total European stocks of cotton at date are 1,257,998 bales, against 1,322,100 bales at same date 1881—a decrease of only 64,112 bales. The quantity afloat for Europe by latest advices is, of American, 137,000 bales, against 326,000 bales at date last year; of Indian, 409,000 bales, against 296,000 bales; of other countries, 24,000 bales, against 45,000 bales; total, 570,000 bales now, against 667,000 bales at date last year. These facts, which have been progressive all the season, are well worthy of the attention of speculators in cotton. The labor troubles have not been quieted; on the contrary there were further outbreaks of dissatisfaction and new strikes during last week. As a result of the prolongation of the iron-workers' strikes at Pittsburg and the West, prices for iron have hardened, and consumers and manufacturers show more disposition to operate in advance of wants. The same is true in the anthracite coal market, and a possible better demand for anthracite iron, and some fears that there may be trouble in the anthracite coal regions, have created a better demand for coal and better prices are obtainable. But as both causes which have produced this result are exceptional, the seeming improvement cannot be regarded as healthful.

The stock speculation lost only little time at the beginning of last week in marking a new departure. For the first half of the first day of the week the dealings in the general market were characterized by renewed depression. A strong buying of three or four stocks, and notably of Lake Shore, however, turned the tide before nightfall, and the first day of the week closed with the "bulls" in full possession of the speculative position. The battle was fought and won on Monday. After that the advance was almost continuous, although at different periods there were developments of weak spots, but they did not affect the general situation. Lake Shore and Central and Hudson stocks evidently were the objective points of the movement, and after it was fairly started the disposition generally was to let those stocks that might grow weary drop by the wayside, and not handicap the speculators with unwilling followers. The advances over the prices a week ago range from 5 to 10 per cent for a majority of the active stocks, and although the transactions recorded only amount to 2,208,118 shares for the week, against 2,162,969 shares for the preceding week, there was nothing like the excitement been seen since the last week in March, when Lake Shore rose from 110 to 120⅛. The dealings in Lake Shore amounted to 291,460 shares, or nearly one-seventh of the whole business, and it sold at 102⅛@112½ @111¾. Central and Hudson advanced from 127¾ with dividend to 133⅞@133 ex-dividend of 2 per cent. For the greater part of the week both of the stocks named were scarce for delivery, and commanded premiums ranging from 1-64 to ⅛ per cent per diem. Among the coal stocks Central of New-Jersey led with an advance from 66⅞ to 75½ and the others followed; Delaware, Lackawanna and Western sold at 118¾ up to 126¼ (125½ or within 5 points of the highest price it brought in 1881 and 16 per cent higher than in 1880. While the entire market for the most part was jubilant, Denver and Rio Grande, Louisville and Nashville and the Northern Pacific at times dragged, but they all show advances on the prices of a week ago. The feature at the end of the week was that, following so large and rapid advances, the disposition to realize profits was not sufficient to cause any material reaction from best figures.
