LOCAL MISCELLANY.

THE CHINATOWN CASES IN COURT.

The four Chinamen who were arrested on Friday night at No. 17 Mott-st. by Officer Edward Galligan, of the Fourth Precinct, were arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday. The policemen made affidavits against them, charging them with smoking opium. The Mongolians described themselves as Jun Hin, age 30; Sam Lung, age 26; Ah Hyck, age 25, and Ah Joe, age 38. The two first-named waived examination, but a lawyer who appeared for the others demanded a hearing and sought to disprove the allegation, claiming that Hyck, who is a laundryman in Brooklyn, went to No. 17 Mott-st., where the arrests were made, for the purpose of hiring a workman for his place, and that Joe, who is suffering from a tumor on his neck, was lying sick when taken in custody. Justice Smith decided that there was probable cause to believe the men guilty, and committed them for trial, each in default of $300 bail. Their trials will be had in the General Sessions Court next week.

Katie Kimm, age 18, of No. 24 Pell-st., and Lottie Ah Yin, age 19, of No. 30 Baxter-st., were next arraigned. Both are married to Celestials, but Katie is separated, it is said, from her husband. No denial was made by them that they are confirmed opium-smokers, but both averred that they were not smoking the drug at the time they were made prisoners. The complainant against the latter was Jeremiah Murphy, of No. 13 Mott-st., who stated that he watched them from a room opposite, No. 24 Pell-st., where they were found. The girl's lawyer contended that at such a distance it would be impossible to swear positively concerning the contents of the pipes, but the magistrate nevertheless held the women for trial. Mrs. Kimm was released on $300 bail, William A. Forbes, of No. 30 East Fourth-st., a carpenter, becoming her bondsman. Lo Sing and Ah Chung, who were committed for trial on the day previous, also obtained their liberty by furnishing bail. Quong Hing Young, a grocer, of No. 51½ Mott-st., who says he owns real estate of the value of $18,000, was accepted as surety.

Superintendent Jenkins, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, brought before the magistrate the girl Kate Crowley, who was alleged to be a frequenter of the Mott-st. opium joints. He informed the Court that a thorough investigation made by himself and Officer Young had failed to substantiate the charge. It was learned by the officers that during her confinement in the House of Refuge, Kate's conduct was admirable, and that just previous to her release she had charge of a class of other inmates. Since her liberation she had worked in Hines's tin-can factory, Nos. 13 and 15 Doyer-st., where she remained up to a short time ago, when she was suspended because of a slackness of work. She is over eighteen years old. Justice White, on these statements being put in the form of an affidavit, discharged the girl, who returned to the Society's headquarters, where she will be provided with a home.

A MARCH FROM TARRYTOWN TO YONKERS.

Company G, of the 7th Regiment, marched from the Grand Central Depot at 8:45 a. m. yesterday, for a day's outing. Captain J. C. Abrams commanded and forty-eight men fell into line. Besides the company there were seven or eight veterans who formerly belonged to the company, a surgeon, an ambulance—to carry the knapsacks when the men got tired—and a dozen invited guests. At Tarrytown the men disembarked preparatory for a march to Yonkers. Yonkers is about eleven miles from Tarrytown, but there was a look of determination on the faces of Company G that showed they meant to accomplish it or die. At 10 o'clock, the company and the Saratoga boys set out for Yonkers. Tarrytown was decked with flags, and every one was out to see the fun. Three drums and three cornets led the way, then came Company G, and then the boys. Flags decked the road, young men and maidens gathered on either hand to wave handkerchiefs, the silver Illonois glimmered on the right, and the scent of the sweet May blossoms was in the air. Old Judge Beach came to the door of his home. He said, as he slowly peeled a banana, that he had seldom seen a more glorious sight. The band was playing "Marching through Georgia," and the Tarrytown boys were whistling "One More River." Two miles from Tarrytown the company began to get fantastic. They piled their knapsacks in the ambulance; they wiped their faces with their handkerchiefs and said it was very hot; they took a rest; then, under the Captain's directions they went through a roadside drill.

At three miles, eight men and a corporal started ahead of the others. The Tarrytown boys couldn't understand. Then a shot was fired. It was only skirmishing, but the boys began to get excited. Then another shot came from the front. The Tarrytown boys rushed between the opposing forces and swore there should be no fight. It was all very well, they said, but these young men must not slaughter each other so on this bright spring morning. What would their mothers say in New-York when the mangled corpses were brought home at nightfall. The captain said sternly that soldiers must do their duty, no matter what the consequences were. The boys said they didn't care; there should be no slaughter while they were there. Then the captain whispered that the cartridges weren't loaded, whereat the boys got mad, and the company weren't no soldiers anyway, and, scowling fiercely, went back to Tarrytown. Thereafter Company G had it all their own way. They went to Dobb's Ferry where the Union Club gathered in front of Dr. Hasbrouck's to receive them. There they were told that they were "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of their countrymen." The house was that in which George Washington signed the preliminaries of peace. There was great shouting. There were sandwiches and lemonade, and then there were six miles left to Yonkers. Company G arrived there intact at 5 o'clock. They had a dinner. They had lemonade. They had speeches. They arrived in New-York at 8 o'clock covered with honor and glory—and dust. To-day they are resting.

THE CONSECRATION OF ST. THOMAS'S.

The consecration services of St. Thomas's Church, to which reference was made in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, will be held on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. In the exercises it is expected that several Bishops and other distinguished clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church will participate. Owing to the indisposition of Bishop Potter, it is not probable that he will be present. Bishop Stevens, of Pennsylvania, will preach the sermon. The clergy of the parish are Dr. William F. Morgan, the rector of the church; Alexander McKay Smith, Robert Lowry, Charles R. Treat and R. E. Gaucher.

In conversation with a reporter of THE TRIBUNE last night, Dr. Morgan said that the gift of $60,000 which was necessary to raise the mortgage lien had been contributed by upward of 200 persons whose names were known, and by a collection on last Sunday, when $2,000 was obtained. The gifts were mostly small, although there was one of $3,500. There were several of $1 each. The free-will offering, Dr. Morgan added, was more gratifying to him than if a few of the wealthier members of his congregation had subscribed the entire amount. The value of the church property now is nearly a million dollars, while the land and building only cost about $350,000. The site of the building at Fifth-ave. and Fifty-third-st. faces 100 feet on the avenue and extends 237 feet on the street. The corporation also owns a chapel and house valued at $100,000.

Dr. Morgan has been the rector of the church for more than twenty-six years. He was called from Norwich, Conn., where he erected Christ Church, which was designed by the architect of St. Thomas's Church. That church bears about the same relation to Norwich that St. Thomas's does to this city.

EXHIBITION IN AID OF THE PEDESTAL.

A number of artists, editors and ladies met yesterday afternoon at the house of Mrs. Burton N. Harrison, in Lexington-ave., and organized an Art Loan Collection Committee in aid of the Statue of Liberty, the object being to hold early next winter an exhibition in aid of the Pedestal Fund. The following officers were elected: President, Eastman Johnson; vice-presidents, Noah Brooks, R. Swain Gifford and John Swinton; treasurer, Joseph B. Gilder; secretary, Montague Marks. Among the other members of the committee are Barnet Phillips, William M. Chase, Frederick Diehman, J. C. Beckwith, Carl Schurz, A. St. Gaudens, J. Q. A. Ward, John La Farge, E. L. Godkin, Mrs. William M. Evarts, Mrs. Brayton Ives, Mrs. William L. Whitney and Mrs. Burton N. Harrison. Sub-committees were appointed on Paintings and Sculpture, on Prints and Coins, on Oriental Art, on Jewelry and Metal Work, on Ceramics, Carvings and Furniture, on Location, and on Publication. Committees of ladies are to be selected on Lace, on Fans, on Costumes, on Needlework, and on an Album of Art Sketches, to be disposed of at the exhibition. A number of honorary vice-presidents are to be appointed, and it was resolved to secure a director to have the general management of the undertaking at a salary of $1,500. A second meeting of the committee will be held at Mrs. Harrison's on next Saturday evening. The post of director has been offered to a well-known artist of this city.

COMPROMISING A FELONY.

In a lawyer's office in Newark yesterday a defalcation of over $13,000 of the assistant cashier of a Broadway clothing house in this city was settled for by the payment to the firm by the father of the defaulter of the amount stolen. The defalcation was disclosed to the firm a fortnight ago by a woman in New-York with whom the clerk had been intimate, and upon whom he had spent a considerable portion of the stolen money. Becoming frightened at the increasing proportions of the defalcation he refused the woman any further supplies of money and sought to avoid her, whereupon, out of revenge, she made known to his employers the fact that they had been systematically robbed, and the clerk, when questioned, acknowledged the truth of the charge. The young man lives in Newark, where he has a wife and child, and his father lives in Morristown. Last week the latter was informed of his son's dishonesty and met a representative of the firm in Newark. Papers had been made out for the son's arrest, and he was placed in charge of an officer. The father consented to mortgage his property in order to pay the amount embezzled in consideration of the abandonment of criminal proceedings by the firm, and yesterday he paid the money over, and the clerk received his discharge from the firm, and was released from arrest. The defaulter is about thirty years old, and has been in the employ of the firm between six and seven years.

THE GRAND ARMY ON DECORATION DAY.

Thirty-two posts of the Grand Army of the Republic will participate in the parade on Decoration Day, and with other organizations the Grand Army Division of the procession will be fully 8,000 strong, the largest parade that has ever been given. At a meeting of the division staff and special aides in Earle's Hotel last evening, it was decided that the Marshal and staff should adopt the old armory uniform, soft hat, black belt, sword and side arms. On the morning of Decoration Day Abraham Lincoln Post will decorate the statue of Lincoln in Union Square with special ceremonies, and an address will be made at 7:30 by General Horace Porter. Major J. B. Homer will be Marshal. Assistant-General Langdon last evening reported the full list of the organizations to march in the Grand Army Division. These are: Kane Post No. 10, sons of veterans; Peekskill Academy Cadet Corps, Colonel C. J. Wright; 24 New-York Fire Zouaves, Commander McCollough; 10th Regiment Veterans, Colonel J. W. Marshall; Lincoln Guard, W. H. Jones commander; 60th Regiment Veterans, Colonel T. J. O'Donald; 5th Regiment, N. Y. Vol. Veterans, Captain J. C. Vols., Captain Charles Bonneman; Hawkins's Zouaves, Captain Charles Currie; Brooklyn Marines, under Commodore Upshur. Most of the veteran associations will appear in their old-time uniforms, and the 24 Regiment Line Zouaves will have three stands of colors and the bottle-flag first to reach the road works at Yorktown. The 13th Brooklyn Regiment has agreed to march in the procession, but it will be placed in the militia division.

Captain Ferdinand P. Earle, treasurer of the Citizens' Auxiliary Committee, acknowledges the receipt of the following additional contributions for Decoration Day:

C. Vanderbilt	$50	Samuel Wilde's Sons	$10

NYACK, March 12.—Considerable feeling exists among the Grand Army members and their friends against the trustees of the Oak Hill Cemetery, for issuing an order forbidding the Grand Army posts from parading on the cemetery grounds on Decoration Day. As a matter of justice to the trustees it should be stated that they acted strictly in accordance with a resolution passed by the plot-owners at their annual meeting on August 7, 1882.

HENRY TRAUSSLER'S MENTAL CONDITION.

Henry Traussler was taken yesterday before Justice Donohue, in the Supreme Court, Chambers, on a writ of habeas corpus, in order to obtain his discharge from the asylum at Middletown, where he has been confined during the last three years. Traussler was indicted and tried for an attempt to shoot a man connected with the Thalia Theatre. He was found not guilty on the ground that he was of unsound mind. After the trial he was committed to the asylum. It is asserted in his behalf that he is now sane and safe to be at large. Justice Donohue appointed a referee to take testimony in the case. Several doctors who have in other cases recently testified to the sanity of persons confined in asylums, testified that Traussler, though very excitable, was perfectly sane. Samuel Ehrenfried, who was for a time confined in the asylum with Traussler, also testified that he had never seen anything wrong in the latter's conduct. Traussler testified that he had often been pleased at the asylum. He said that the authorities once consented to let him go, but as it was winter, and he did not think he could support himself immediately, he decided to remain in the asylum. When he did want to go, he was not allowed to do so. The case was adjourned without a fixed day.

A SHOPLIFTER AT O'NEILL'S.

A short stout woman dressed in black was accused in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday of stealing three cambric handkerchiefs from the dry-goods store of B. O'Neill & Co., at No. 869 Sixth-ave. She sobbed bitterly. Diamonds flushed in her ears and a crimson plume trembled in her hat. She said her name was Janey Chace, thirty-eight years of age, and that her home was in Norwich, Conn. She was visiting friends in this city and had done considerable shopping, having spent about $80 in O'Neill's in the last two or three days. She pleaded guilty and said the devil must have possessed her. James Skipton, O'Neill's superintendent, appeared as complainant.

"What do you think of this woman?" he was asked by Justice Duffy.

"I think she is a shoplifter," was the answer. A fresh burst of tears greeted this reply.

"You had better send for your friends and have them bail you out," said Justice Duffy to the accused woman.

"Oh! I wouldn't let my friends know of my disgrace," she replied. She was held in $300 bail for examination.

HANDED OVER TO GREAT BRITAIN.

Among the names on the passenger list of the steamship Greece, of the National Line, which sailed yesterday, were those of Edwin H. Wadge and Thomas P. Jones. The latter is an officer employed by the British Consul to keep watch of Wadge, who was extradited on a charge of forgery. The prisoner was taken to the steamer by Deputy Marshals Holmes and Jeffreys, and was handed over to Officer Jones. Wadge has had an eventful career, having served five years' imprisonment, and at other times having held a good position in society. His time in New-York was about equally divided between the Fifth Avenue Hotel and Ludlow Street Jail. When he first came to this country he appeared to have money enough for all his wants, and he lived in good style. He started a sporting club, which for a time prospered. He admitted that he had been convicted of mining frauds in England, but denied that he had committed any extraditable offense. Commissioner Osborn, Judges Brown and Wallace, and Secretary Folger successively passed upon his case before he was sent back to England. He departed apparently in good spirits.

ASSETS OF THE MANHATTAN FIRE.

The assets of the Manhattan Fire Insurance Company, which remained its risks in the Phœnix Company of Brooklyn last fall, preparatory to closing up its business, have not been sufficient to meet all its liabilities. The amount of the deficiency is about $15,000, and it may be reduced slightly below this sum. The whole capital stock of $250,000 has been lost. Some of the stockholders hope that the trust of the president, Andrew J. Smith, who was arrested on Friday on the charge of perjury, preferred by the Superintendent of Insurance, may afford a basis for civil suits against Mr. Smith for the recovery of a part at least of their losses.

"No suit has been begun yet," a director of the company said yesterday, "but I am not sure that the stockholders may not recover something in this way. It depends mainly, I think, on the facts that may be brought out on the president's trial. Nothing probably will be done until then."

THE CREDITORS OF EDWARD MERTENS.

A meeting of the Committee on Admissions of the Stock Exchange was held yesterday afternoon to act on the claims presented by members against the seat of Edward Mertens, who recently disappeared. Claims amounting to about $78,000 were considered; those that were allowed fell a little short of $30,000. The creditors in the Stock Exchange will receive from the sale of the membership nearly 50 per cent of their claims. Mr. Mertens had been for nearly three years a member of the firm of Pondir & Co. of No. 20 Exchange-place, which was dissolved early in March. It is understood that he gave notes for about $75,000 in settlement with the firm. It has been reported lately that these notes had been given to a large operator in stocks who had placed them in his broker's hands. They were not presented at the meeting of the committee yesterday.

SULLIVAN AND MITCHELL.

The sparring exhibition to be given at the Madison Square Garden to-morrow evening is the one topic of conversation in "sporting" circles. John L. Sullivan, the champion, is to meet, for the first time, Charles Mitchell, the Englishman.

Two weeks ago William Madden, who is Mitchell's manager, took his protégé to Saratoga to train for the meeting. Sullivan also has been taking good care of himself in Boston. Madden and Mitchell returned to the city yesterday afternoon and went to the Sinclair House. Mitchell was looking rather tired, but he declared that he was in excellent condition. Barring accidents, he said, he would be able to give a good account of himself on Monday. He had come to America to meet Sullivan, and he intended to do his best. He thought that Sullivan also would show what stuff there was in him, and that the four rounds would be sported in spite of the fact that gloves were to be used. Madden said that his man was in first-rate trim. Joseph Coburn has retired, for the present, at least, from the business of travelling exhibitions of boxing as well as from the prizering. He will respect the old "White House" at Broadway and Thirty-third-st. this week.

HARVARD DEFEATED BY YALE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

NEW-HAVEN, May 12.—No athletic event ever takes place in New-Haven which possesses the same interest as the first Yale-Harvard baseball game of a season. Between two and three thousand persons were present at that which occurred this afternoon at Hamilton Park. Most of them believed Yale would win; but all remembered her defeat at this time last year, and were uncertain as to whether the new team could stand the excitement without, in college phrase, "getting rattled." Many ladies were present, and on the left of the field was a rather small representation of Harvard students. The game was an unusually quiet one. The only runs made were in the first inning; and, during the rest of the time, the only demonstration was the clapping of hands over some good play. Harvard being fairly applauded even when an error would have given Yale two runs.

The game began at 3 o'clock, with Yale at the bat. The second ball pitched was knocked by Hubbard into the right fielder's hands, but was muffed. Hubbard soon stole second, and, as Griggs was being put out at first, got to third. Hopkins hit to second base, who threw home to prevent Hubbard's scoring; but a skilful slide secured the score within three minutes after the beginning of the game. Hopkins got second by Lovering's missing the ball thrown by the catcher, and his third by an error pitched by Nichols over catcher's head. A base hit of Terry's, between first and second bases, brought Hopkins home, while one passed ball gave Terry third and another home. A fly of Souther to centre left Jones on third and Childs on second.

The first Harvard batter was Baker, who went out on three called strikes. The next, Nichols, after six balls and two strikes, hit to Griggs at short, who fumbled and gave him a base. Trying to steal second, Nichols was put out by a swift throw of Hubbard. Smith got first on balls, and Lovering made third out by a foul tip. In the next inning Carpenter went out on a fly to second, Hubbard went to first and out; Griggs to first on balls and was put out by Lovering while running to second. When Harvard came to the bat, a fumble of Hopkins would have given Allen first but for a good catch by Childs.

In the third inning a bad throw by Hopkins to second was thrown at close distance to Smith, who, in turn, made his second error of the year. Both Hopkins and Jones were caught at second by a throw from first. Harvard went out in one, two, three order. A grounder by Souther, in the fourth inning, was fielded by Hodge, but was stopped by Bacon, who threw him to first, and Souther got to first, where he was left.

In the fifth inning three men knocked in succession to Terry, who took the two flies and made an assist to first. The sixth inning was marked by a double play of Lovering, who stopped a grounder in time to touch Jones as he ran to second and then threw to first; and in the next inning exactly the same thing was repeated. Baker's catching alone in the seventh saved one or two runs. In the ninth inning both sides went out in one, two, three order.

That Harvard was clearly out-played is shown by the fact that not one of her nine reached second base during the game. The separate positions on each side were played about equally well with the exception of pitcher and catcher, where Yale was superior. Hubbard made better stops and Jones had more strikes called on him. Yale batting was the strongest. Lovering made the only two hits for Harvard. The best fielding on the Harvard nine was done by Lovering and Baker, the latter having especially had balls to stop. On the Yale team Terry showed to advantage in catching flies; Childs made several difficult catches at first, and Hubbard played his usually strong game. Following is the score by innings:

Foul hits—Yale, 1; Harvard, 3. First base on balls—Yale, 1; Harvard, 1. Left on bases—Yale, 6; Harvard, 5. Passed balls—Allen, 1. Wild pitches—E. Nichols, 3. Umpire—William McLean.

AMATEUR ATHLETIC MEETINGS.

The annual handicap meeting of the Crescent Athletic Club was held at the Manhattan Grounds, Eighth-ave. and Fifty-sixth-st., yesterday afternoon. The attendance was small. In the one-mile bicycle race three out of the four riders were thrown from their seats. It was won by L. Stearns in 3:29 4-5. The 300 yards race was won by C. I. AMUSING RACES AT ROCKAWAY.

THE HUNTING CLUB STEEPLECHASES—A BRILLIANT GATHERING OF SPECTATORS.

The spring meeting of the Rockaway Hunting Club took place yesterday at Far Rockaway, and was made the occasion of a pleasure excursion by several hundred fashionable people who went down on a special train of nine cars. There was also a general attendance of the residents of Far Rockaway and the farmers of the vicinity. The Race Committee were J. D. Cheever, N. G. Lorillard, W. J. Emmett, Pierre Lorillard, jr., John Sanford, F. Gray Griswold, E. La Montagne, George Work, J. R. Keene and S. S. Sands, jr. John G. Heckscher, E. C. La Montagne and Cornelius Fellows were the judges, and A. P. Montant, astride of a frantic black charger, was Clerk of the Course, at intervals warned "everybody off the track." The contests were interesting and sometimes comical.

In the first race, for half-bred hunters, distance one-half mile, $10 entrance, play or pay, with silver plate added, there were five starters. George Work won with the Long Island Stable's chestnut gelding Mercury, beating E. D. Morgan's Kathleen, ridden by Belmont Purdy, by a short head. N. G. Lorillard's Sinbad was third, E. C. La Montague's Plemette fourth, and E. Zorowski on "The Dude" got badly left behind.

There were five John Gilpins in the second race, which was for farmers' horses. Some of them were saddleless and almost bridleless. F. Horton's Puck came in first, followed by C. Piper's Hempstead Boy. W. Smith's Sorrel Jack was bound to make a little fun, and ran away with his rider, charging a wire fence several times, at last falling down and throwing his rider, who, the bit having broken, clung frantically to the horse's ears.

There were seven starters in the half-mile flat race for pole ponies. Stanley Mortimer won with his Incognito, J. D. Cheever on P. Lorillard, jr.'s, Ah Sin being second, and George Work on Puck coming in third.

The fourth race, a steeplechase for the Queens County Cup, was exciting. George Work won with Bombost, by Bonnie Scotland—Benlota. J. D. Cheever was thrown opposite the grand stand. Mr. Zorowski, with Lorillard's spider, was second. The heavy weight steeplechase for half-bred hunters was won by E. C. La Montagne's Plemette, ridden by George Work, there being seven starters. Mr. Zorowski, on Mr. Lorillard's Grimaldi, was two lengths behind.

The last race was made interesting by the fall of Mr. Work, who had ridden splendidly and was a favorite. He was somewhat scratched and bruised. The race was won by Stanley Mortimer's Hobson's Choice, J. D. Cheever's Gilana being second, and La Montagne's Rosalind third.

E. D. Morgan's and A. Belmont, jr.'s, four-horse breaks brought parties from Hempstead. Among those present were: A. H. Stevens, Mrs. Belmont Purdy, Miss Purdy, E. N. Dickerson, Judge Brady, Miss Heckscher, Miss Work, J. H. Cheever, Charles Cheever, Miss Gertrude Cheever, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard, Mr. Hannah Townsend, the Misses Rives, Mr. and Mrs. Frank White, Miss Bolton, Miss Montague, Miss Lamson, Miss Louise Ryder, F. THE LARCHMONT YACHT CLUB.

The first regular meeting of the Larchmont Yacht Club for the season of 1883 at the club house was held at Larchmont Manor last evening. The club house was aglow with lights, and in the sheltered avenue before it lay a fleet of yachts. The house was crowded with members of the club and their guests, and early in the evening a supper was served. Then came the club meeting, at which fifty members were present. The following were recommended for membership by the Committee on Admissions and elected: Jay Gould, J. L. Mott, jr., James Whitely, Henry B. Cole, S. D. Marshall, G. Kortright, Emil M. Sauer, J. E. Schermerhorn, W. E. Connor, George H. Belcher, E. Austin Gilbert, Henri Watson, Walter Thompson and G. I. Strong. Among the yachts lying before the club-house were the Rover, Grade, Kalpie, Blanche, Cruiser, Curlew, Vivid, and Newsboy. Lawton's Glaire. To-day there will be a match race off the club house between the Cruiser and the Vivid. George J. Gould has presented a $400 cup to the Larchmont Club, to be sailed for by yachts between forty and sixty feet long, the cup to be held by the yacht winning it three times. Mr. Gould's sloop-yacht Fanita belongs to this class. The Fanita has been put in trim and it is thought that Mr. Gould will enter her in most of the races this season.

The Larchmont Club has refitted its club-house in a fine style, and laid out two tennis courts on the grounds surrounding it for the use of the members and their lady friends. A new dock has been built for the use of yachts at a cost of $150, and preparations have been made for a lively season. The club started in to-day with a membership of six. It now numbers 313 members exclusive of those elected last night and has a fleet of 109 yachts. There are 8 steamers, 16 schooners, 32 sloops, 23 open jib-and-mainsail boats and several smaller craft. Government buoys have been placed in Larchmont Harbor and there will soon be a new Government survey made of the waters.

SHOOTING AT CREEDMOOR.

The attendance at Creedmoor yesterday was larger than on any previous day this season, and, owing to the favorable condition of both wind and weather, the scores made were exceedingly good. The matches were shot for the purpose of enabling competitors to qualify and compete for a place on the American Team which will shoot in the return international match at Wimbledon in July next. A score of 80 out of a possible 105 was necessary to
