LITERARY NOTES.

Professor Seeley's volume on "The Expansion of England" is in the press of Macmillan & Co.

The twenty-second thousand of "John Inglesant" is being sold in England.

Mr. Henry James's article on Anthony Trollope in the forthcoming Century is described as an engaging mixture of reminiscence and criticism.

The French Academy has given to Madame Bigot (Miss Healey) its second prize for her novel of "Marca," which was published here under the title of "A Mere Caprice."

A second volume in the series of Topelius's "Surgeon's Stories" is in the press of Jansen, McClurg & Co. This is a romantic study of the period of Swedish history succeeding the death of Gustaf Adolf.

During the next three months of summer, while publishers are idle and theatres are given over to silence and dust, The Critic will sally forth fortnightly instead of weekly. With the 22d of September it will again take up its accustomed course of publication.

Mr. John Sartain, the veteran engraver, has written on engraving as an occupation for young women, and it will shortly appear in The Continent. It will be accompanied by several of the engravings made in response to the offer of three prizes for the best specimens of wood engraving from the members of the classes in the Philadelphia School of Design for Women.

The edition of Chaucer upon which Professor T. R. Lounsbury is engaged will be one of the most scholarly and useful contributions to the literature of poetry yet made in America. It is edited in such a fashion as to be as delightful to the ordinary reader as it is valuable to the student. The editor has revealed with unexpected fulness the beauty and strength of the old poet's verse.

Mr. Howells and Mr. James are mentioned by The Literary World as "novelists of first-rate abilities, writing with second-rate purposes on second or third-rate materials." "Nothing," it adds, "that either Mr. Howells or Mr. James has yet written has earned him a foremost place among writers of fiction; and though quantity of performance must be taken into account as well as quality, in estimating a writer's rank, yet we count no 'reaction' 'foolish,' and trust it will not be temporary, which tempers a wild and patriotic adulation into just and sober criticism. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, even in literature."

M. Maxime du Camp long ago, when but a budding poet, sent some of his verses to Victor Hugo, and received in reply a note thanking him for his "beautiful poems." A chill succeeded the first glow of the young writer, for he realized upon a rereading that the verses were wretched. Then came a wise friend to "press the lesson home": "Poor boy, it is really too bad to laugh so cruelly at children! If Hugo read your verses he thought them wretched; he tells you, on the contrary, that they are good. He pours out for you a glass of his strongest praise, he intoxicates you, and makes of you a claqueur for his next play! I have seen more than fifty letters like this, written by him to idiots without either rhyme or rhythm. So long as he is adored, what does the adorer matter to him?"

NEW-YORK MILITARY ACADEMY.
FORT WASHINGTON, N. Y.
Established 1854.
Superintendent—JOHN B. HAYS, M. D.
REOPENS SEPT. 4, 1883.
A Boarding School of the highest grade, where three-fold end, and scrupulously followed, is aim; mind, at an early age, the intellect of youth by science, the will by obedience, all the feelings by religion; never separating these three great requisites, instruction, discipline, religion, while doing for every profession.
Situated on Washington Heights, about ten miles up the Hudson. Its reached by the Sixth Avenue Elevated Road to 155th-st. Carriages are always in waiting, or, by timely notification, the superintendent meets the arrival of any train.
A more beautiful and healthy place—on an eminence commanding the most delightful scenery—or more attractive surroundings, are not found above the far-famed banks of the Hudson. Its buildings are unusually homelike.
There are forty acres of land attached to it, shaded and intersected by oak groves, affording ample space for playgrounds.
French, German, and Spanish spoken.
