THE COURTS.

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

THE OCTOBER TERM TO BEGIN ON MONDAY—BUSINESS BEFORE THE COURT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The Supreme Court of the United States will convene for the October term of 1883 on Monday. All the Justices are expected to be present. The number of cases on the docket today is 1,011, an increase of fifty-four over the number docketed at this time last year. The number of cases which have been argued or submitted, but not disposed of, and which the Court now has under consideration, is sixteen, as follows: The three civil rights cases of the United States against Stanley, Ryan and Nichols; Robinson et al against the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company; the United States against Singleton; Mary and James Boro against the County of Phillips; the Providence and New-York Steamship Company against the Hill Manufacturing Company; the State of Louisiana ex rel Folsom Brothers against the Mayor, etc., of the City of New-Orleans; John Gilfillan against the Union Canal Company, of Pennsylvania; the United States against Fisher; the United States against Hamilton; the United States against Gale et al; the United States against Mitchell; the important Texas land case of William C. Walch, Commissioner, against William Preston, involving the title to the Mercer Colony lands; and the still more important case of the County of San Mateo, Cal., against the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, which involves questions of vital interest to all corporations throughout the United States.

No cases have been assigned for the first day of the term, but rules to show cause in certain mandamus proceedings are returnable on that day as follows: No. 2, original ex parte in the matter of the Canada Southern Railroad Company, petitioner; No. 6, original ex parte in the matter of the Winthrop Iron Company, petitioner; and Nos. 3 and 4, original ex parte in the matter of the State of Iowa, petitioner, and in the matter of the State of Illinois, petitioner. These are petitions for writs of mandamus to compel the Commissioner of the General Land Office to furnish statements of account between the United States and the States of Iowa and Illinois respectively, for the purpose of ascertaining what sums of money are due those States under the 5 per cent clauses of the acts admitting said States to the Union, and other laws of Congress. It is maintained by the petitioners that on lands which have been located and purchased with military warrants the 5 per cent which the United States agreed to pay to them on sales of public lands within their limits has been persistently and unlawfully withheld; and that they are legally entitled to have a statement of their accounts with the United States in order that their claims may be paid.

Among the cases which have not been assigned for an early day in the term, or which occupy an advanced place on the docket, are the legal-tender case of Juliand vs. Greenman, which will probably be reached on October 9; the case of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company against Manuel Pattees, collector, assigned for November 5; the case of Frederick Frelinghuysen, Secretary of State, against John J. Key, also assigned for November 5; the case of the Spring Valley Works against the Board of supervisors of the City and County of San Francisco, assigned for November 6; and the Brooklyn Bridge case of Abraham R. Miller against the Cities of New-York and Brooklyn, which stands No. 189 on the docket.

There is still much doubt whether the legal-tender case will be argued when it is reached on Tuesday. No briefs in the case have yet been filed in the clerk's office, as the rules of the court require, and nothing has been heard from counsel in reply to the usual notification. The delay in bringing this question to adjudication seems to have been due in great part to the unwillingness or inability of Governor Butler to fix a day for the argument.

OBTAINING DAMAGES FOR BEING SHOT.

In the Passaic County Circuit Court at Paterson yesterday a jury awarded William Williamson $1,000, the full amount for which he had sued Henry Bauman for shooting him. The affair occurred on Sunday, May 13. Bauman, who is a State detective, kept a liquor shop at Riverside, and Williamson went into Bauman's place and procured a drink of liquor without difficulty, in spite of the fact that it was Sunday and that the proprietor was an officer of the law. He had no money except six cents and a counterfeit half dollar, and the barkeeper, whose name was Bush, accepted the six cents in payment for the liquor. After Williamson had left the place Bauman arrived, and in a few minutes Williamson, who was proceeding on his way, found himself overtaken by the detective and his barkeeper, who accused him of attempting to pass counterfeit money and arrested him. Williamson struggled and Bauman drew a revolver, and in the scuffle Williamson was shot in the back near the shoulder. He was taken to a hospital, where his wound confined him for many days. He was rendered unable to work and his family became destitute. An indictment for atrocious assault and battery is now pending against Bauman, which will be tried during the present term.

WHY THE ROMANCE WOULDN'T WORK.

From The Chicago Tribune.

"Is the literary editor in?"

The horse reporter looked up and discovered a very pretty young lady standing in the doorway. "No," he replied, "he is not. The literary editor is a very affable wild-of-the-wire man in rather tight pants, and the extent per week to which he is not in would surprise you if you only knew about it. He flits with airy grace through the building once or twice a week, and then, like a beautiful vision with box-toed shoes, is gone."

"I would like to see the literary editor," said the young lady. "I want to compete for The Tribune's $10 prize for the best story. Do you think I would have any chance to win it?" and a pair of soft brown eyes looked wistfully into those of one who would soon be talking another bite of hard tobacco.

"I can't exactly tell," said the horse reporter. "It is more or less difficult, by simply looking at a person, to judge of her power of weaving from her surging brain the style of romance for which this paper is at present casting $10 worth of bread per week on the waters. The possession of a sealskin sacque, a dress, a hat with a long feather on it, and a pair of high-heeled shoes might indicate literary ability of a high order, and then again it might not. I would have to try and pick out a budding Tennyson by the cut of his pants, or fish up from the realms of obscurity a mate to Harriet Beecher Stowe with only a collection of sealskin sacques and $4 bangs to guide me."

"Here is my story, sir," said the young lady, handing over a roll of manuscript. "Could you read it now?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply, in a cheerful tone, "I can dive through that in about three minutes."

For a few moments there was silence. Then the horse reporter looked up from the manuscript to the maiden. "Does this duck finally marry the girl?" he asked.

"Tommy Fresh, or whatever his name is?"

"Do you mean Vivian Dare?"

"Yes, that's him. Does Viv finally corral Lurline Lo-senair?—I mean the one that is always talking about the identity of the ideal. I'll bet she's a daisy for ice-cream; that kind always are."

"You probably refer to Natalie Montresor, the heroine," said the young lady in a somewhat frigid tone. "Yes, they are united by the indissoluble tie of matrimony."

"By the what?"

"By the indissoluble tie of matrimony—they are wedded."

"Oh, that's it," said the horse reporter. "I thought they had fallen off the shot-tower together, or something like that. But you're driving a little too far from the pole, sis, when you talk about marriage being an indissoluble tie. As long as $6 will start a divorce suit the indissolubility of the matrimonial tie will have to take a back seat in one of the top rows."

"Do you think my story will answer?" said the young lady.

"I don't exactly like the ending of it," replied the horse reporter. "Just read that last sentence to me."

The young lady took the manuscript and read as follows:

Not a breath of wind, not the faintest suggestion of a zephyr even, stirred the leaves of the linden trees—made crimson and purple and gold by the magic of an early frost—under which Vivian and Natalie were standing. The golden haze of an October morning was cutting the Hills with its glory, and as Vivian bent his head and pressed on the beautiful face that was upraised to his the betrothal kiss, he said to her, "I will never leave you again."

"Vivian said that, did he?" asked the horse reporter.

"Yes, sir."

"Said in October, right after a frost had knocked the leaves endways, that he would never leave her again?"

"Yes, sir."

"That won't do. No young man with a head like that gets into our chaste columns. Why, he ought to have left her before noon that day."

"Why?" asked the young lady. "I really do not understand you."

"Tale story has 'em out there under the trees on a frosty October morning, doesn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"That's no place for a young man who has the true Saxon spirit. He ought to be over on the Board of Trade buying corn. Any young man who puts in his frosty October mornings making love will gather no moss."

"Then you don't think my story would be accepted?"

"Hardly—at least in its present state. You had better make Viv tell Natalie that he loves her with a wild, mad passion that makes him stub his toe when he thinks about it, but that he cannot ask her to be his bonny bride until after the baseball championship is decided. That kind of an ending would have the true Chicago tinge."

"Good day, sir," said the young lady.

"Bon jour," replied the horse reporter. "Saw your story into shape and come around again."

THE JEWISH NEW YEAR.

The pious element in Jewry on Tuesday celebrated in synagogues and temples the combined festivals of the New Year and Yom Terumah—the memorial of the blowing of trumpets. In the temples of the reformed Jews there were impressive liturgical services in which trained musicians and singers took part, and performed set pieces based on quaint traditional melodies which have an Oriental luxuriance of ornament and an Oriental pliantiveness of cadence. In the synagogues of the orthodox Jews solemn prayers were chanted antiphonally, according to the accents that have come down from time immemorial, and descendants of Levi "lifted the horn" and blew from the rude Schofar such exceeding long sirains as made the children of Israel tremble, while the thunder roared, the lightnings flashed, Sinai smoked and Moses talked with the Almighty.

THE MONMOUTH PARK ASSOCIATION.

CHARGES OF POOL-SELLING AND OF ILLEGAL LIQUOR-SELLING TO BE INVESTIGATED.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Oct. 3.—There have been all sorts of rumors circulating throughout Monmouth County for several weeks in reference to the probable indictment of the Monmouth Park Association for allowing liquor to be sold on the grounds contrary to law, and for pool-selling. It is claimed that the liquor licenses at the Park lapsed at the death of William J. Bradley, the superintendent of the Park, they having been granted in his name. On this claim the charge of illegal liquor-selling is based. The subpoenas for the appearance of witnesses before the Grand Jury, which is now in session, were issued to-day. They are all returnable Friday morning. Judge Samuel T. Hendrickson, State Senator John S. Applegate, of Red Bank, Sheriff John S. Thompson and County Clerk Joseph C. Arrowsmith are among the persons subpoenaed.

FLUCTUATIONS IN CHICAGO MARKETS.

EFFECTS OF A WRONG TRANSLATION OF A CABLE DISPATCH.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—First strong and then weak describes the course of the Produce markets today. Wheat for November went up to 98¾, and for December 100¼. Before night, however, most of the advance had disappeared. This morning the employees of the Board posted the Beerbohm cable so that it read that the weather in England was wet and stormy and winter wheat 1 shilling 6 pence higher. So considerable an advance in England naturally made the party for higher prices here exuberant, and the "bears" a little less disposed to sell. The private cables, however, all told a different story, saying that the advance was only 6 pence in winter wheat.

So great a discrepancy led to an inquiry, and it was discovered upon investigation that the person in the Board of Trade Secretary's office, who had made the translation of Beerbohm's Cipher had made an error, and had put the advance a shilling too much. The error was corrected, but it created not a little comment. It was for awhile regarded as singular. The probability, however, is that it was simply an error made through the carelessness of the clerk. It is altogether unlikely that there was any motive in it, but the incident was an illustration of the way in which little occurrences sometimes considerably affect the course of speculation. The error in the translation of the cable was not the only circumstance which tended to advance the market at the opening. The French news which had appeared in the morning papers under flowery head lines set the crowd to talking about a foreign disturbance—and foreign disturbances are just one thing that the wheat "bulls" dote upon.

The movement of wheat out did not improve to-day, and now it is pretty certain that there will be a large increase in the stock at the end of the week. Only 12,000 bushels of wheat were shipped, less than one-fourth of the amount received. The feeling to-night is a "bearish" one, although "puts" and "calls" were selling so close to the market that it was evident that the crowd on the curb was pretty evenly divided in its opinions of to-morrow's action. Some of the signs which a fortnight ago pointed to an uphill (even if very slow) movement in the price of wheat have disappeared. For instance the receipts have not fallen off as they did fair to then; the shipments have not increased as they promised to. Still the best houses even if "bearish," are not advising their customers to sell, while some good ones are advising purchases to customers whom they know have patience and money. The conservative traders are continuing themselves now-a-days with attempting to "call" the turn for a day, and are advising customers merely to scalp the market. This is the feeling of the traders in wheat.

The Corn crowd is composed of nine radical operators. In this pit there are prophets who predict a ten cent advance, and others who promise a ten cent decline. The receivers appear to figure with the "bulls." The scalpers, especially the provision scalpers, are ranged with the "bears." Shaver Jones and the other wheat men in the pit turn in provisions, are large sellers. There appears to be lots of corn left, for it comes in here at a great rate. There were nearly a half million bushels received to-day. It is also going out at a great rate; not as fast quite as it comes, but pretty fast. There is no fear here of any manipulation on this grain, although private dispatches from New-York advise preparation for it. So long as corn arrives at the rate of 500 cars and over every twenty-four hours, and each car contains nearly 1,000 bushels, the local crowd is not going to worry itself over any manipulation about the corn-pit. The holdings in the country do not appear to be decreasing much, either in the wheat or corn country.

Wheat closed at night ⅛@¾ cent above last of his figures; October at 96 cents, November at 97½ cents, December at 99¾ cents. Corn closed ⅛@¼ cent lower than last night's; October at 48⅝ cents, November at 47½ cents. The figures on the corn were the same.

Provisions for October are brought a trifle higher than last night; pork 2½ cents, lard 5 cents, ribs 10 cents. The options, other than October, all showed a decline for the twenty-four hours—a fact which makes it very plain that already there is a natural or an artificial squeeze on October product. The trade in provisions is very small. Only 509 barrels of pork and 100,000 pounds of ribs changed hands on the call, while the sales of wheat and corn aggregated 2,000,000 bushels; but everybody is selling down to the conviction that the rise and pork are in Armour's possession, and that there is shortage enough out to create a stampede. October lard closed at $7 85; November at $7 62½; October pork at $19 50; October ribs at $6 05. Ribs are advancing faster than the other products; for while there may be some differences of opinion as to where the pork is, there is no one who pretends that the short ribs do not lie in Phil. Armour's cellars.

The Leadville Consolidated Mining Company has declared a dividend of 5 cents per share, payable October 15, 1883. Transfer books close October 9 and reopen October 17.

Bullion valued at $30,000 was received in this city yesterday from the mines.

Father de Smet superintendent writes to the secretary of the company, September 19: "I herewith enclose you express company's receipt for bar No. 167, containing 758 1-5 ounces gold, the result of run of mill for first half of September. This is average so far a little better than the previous month. . . . Everything is going ahead and looking about as usual. The mill is running along smoothly and doing good work."
