REFUSING THE COMMUNION.

A NEW PHASE OF THE NEWMAN TROUBLE.

THE WINE PROFFERED BY DEACON FOSTER TURNED ASIDE—WHAT DR. NEWMAN SAYS.

After the morning sermon at Dr. Newman's church yesterday the communion was administered. Several of those who were gathered in front of the communion table did not partake of the communion emblems. Among these was the wife of one of the prominent members of the anti-Newman party. This occasioned some comment from the fact that the wine was proffered by Deacon Foster, who is a staunch and aggressive friend of Dr. Newman. Apparently Deacon Foster took offence at this. At the close of the evening service the husband called him aside, and assured him that his wife did not feel at the time that her spiritual condition justified her partaking of the communion, but meant no discourtesy. Deacon Foster did not appear entirely satisfied with the explanation.

To a TRIBUNE reporter Dr. Newman said that the matter had no personal significance, and was in no wise attributable to the recent troubles. The husband of the lady, when spoken to about the matter, said: "To show you that the church troubles do not prevent our partaking of the communion from the hands of those who are our opponents, so far as the Newman question is concerned, I will tell you this: At the meeting of the Board of Deacons previous to the last, Dr. Newman proposed that the administration of the communion on the usual Sunday should be dispensed with, because he had been told that several members of the church would refuse to partake of it, owing to the dissensions. The anti-Newman deacons would not consent to the omission of the ordinance, and voted against the proposition. The Newman deacons voted for it, but were in a minority." A lady member of the church said that on the previous communion Sunday twenty-five members had declined to receive the communion because of the trouble with Dr. Newman.

In all the pews of the church yesterday were placed copies of The Church Union of February 29. Dr. Newman's name appears among the list of contributing editors. The paper contains an article by Dr. Newman on Egypt. On another page is an article headed "Dr. Newman," which speaks of him in flattering and eulogistic terms. It professes not to enter into a discussion of the merits of the case for or against Dr. Newman but indicates that the writer believes that Dr. Newman is in the right. It concludes with the following expression:

We do earnestly pray that this unfortunate affair may be settled speedily, and that the light of the church and its eloquent and faithful pastor may shine as a beacon through many years.

JUMBO AT THE MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.

HIS MEAL OF ONIONS AND HIS TOBACCO CHEWING—BARNUM'S ADVANCE GUARD.

The menagerie belonging to Barnum's show arrived yesterday from Bridgeport in several detachments. The pet of the children, Jumbo, came with the advance guard that took up its quarters at the Madison Square Garden as early as 8 o'clock in the morning. Along with Jumbo were a female elephant with an elephantine baby, and a dwarf elephant from Burmah about the size of a stout Shetland pony. Jumbo seemed delighted to find himself in a show building, for he is an inveterate beggar, and the apples, cakes and candies which the children buy for him are almost a necessity of his existence. When THE TRIBUNE reporter saw him a number of circus men entered the tenting also, and the little eyes of the huge beast twinkled with pleasure when he saw a crowd around him. He left the hay that he was lifting lazily to his mouth and extended his trunk for a gift. There were no apple men around, as he knew well; but he wanted something else, and this was a chew of tobacco. To gain this his trunk was wreathed about in the most coaxing, beseeching, tender styles, until a piece of tobacco was put in it. He blew it into his open mouth, and his eye twinkled again with satisfaction.

"I can tell a worse story than that about Jumbo," said Mr. Hamilton. "Half an hour ago he ate a bushel of raw onions, of which he is inordinately fond. He chews tobacco, he eats onions and he drinks whiskey when he can get it. I do not affirm it as a fact, but scientific men say that in all probability his exceeding gentleness and liking for animality are the outcome of these little weaknesses, which after all are only amiable frailities."

The elephant mother fed in a pleading uncivilized manner, keeping a corner of her eye upon her young hopeful and stopping her absorption of hay whenever any one he towed a placeful up upon the rotundities of his body. The other forty elephants were in another part of the building, and all seemed cheerful in spite of the cold. The greatest sufferer from this was an immensely tall giraffe, who had on clothes like those of a race horse, protecting all his body save his legs below the knees. His long thin neck and small-bird-like head gave him an irresistible comic appearance in this costume. His stall was close to one of the furnaces heating the building and he got his head as close to it as he could, but in spite of this he seemed to suffer. He was gentle and affectionate, glanced at the crowd with his large mild eye and rubbed his long nose against a friendly hand stretched to caress him.

"He is the last of ten. The fact is, they cannot live in this climate," said his keeper.

BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS.

Colonel R. C. Morgan, brother of ex-Police Justice B. T. Morgan, and late Commander of Phil Kearny Post, No. 8, Grand Army of the Republic, in this city, who died on Thursday, was buried yesterday by the Post, with full military honors, according to the Grand Army ritual. Services were held at the Episcopal Church of the Annunciation, in Fourteenth-st. The pall-bearers were Comrades James Toher, John McCadden, James Gibney, Charles F. Golden, Adam Newkirk, D. L. Cook (an old schoolmate of the dead Commander), and Michael Gleason. Among the officers present were Generals Martin T. McMahon, H. A. Barnum, James R. O'Beirne, Anson G. McCook and Daniel E. Sickles; Commanders and Past-Commanders McEntee, of Dahlgren Post, Jacobs, of Joe Hooker Post, Lehman Israels, of Abraham Lincoln Post, and John W. Jacobus and Isidor Isaacs, of Sedgwick Post. The members of the Memorial Committee, Grand Army of the Republic, for New-York city, met at the 22d Regiment armory and proceeded to the church in a body. A large floral ship from the Appraiser's Department, a palm branch from a Philadelphia Masonic lodge, of which Colonel Morgan was a member, and a floral pillow were among the decorations. The latter bore the legend, "Our Commander, Phil Kearny Post, No. 8, G.A.R.—Last Roll Call." The body was buried in Greenwood Cemetery, the pall-bearers carrying the coffin on their shoulders to and from the church, and from the cemetery gates to the grave.

WILLING TO ABOLISH "FREE LUNCHES."

At a meeting of the Manhattan Temperance Association held at Cooper Union yesterday afternoon, Mrs. M. Hatfield Searles delivered an address on the "The Foundations of Law." Mr. Gibbs said.

On Wednesday last, Mr. Kavanagh, vice-president of the Liquor Dealers' Association, of this city, with a companion, came to me and stated that the liquor-dealers would assist the temperance people in so amending the present laws governing the liquor business as to prevent free lunches and music in saloons. They know full well that there is now no hope for them from either of the political parties, and that since the last prop was being pushed from under them they must flee to us for assistance. Mr. Kavanagh explained the situation to me, but I expressed no opinion. I think it is a favorable sign of the times when liquor men are forced to turn to temperance advocates for favors.

The audience at the American Temperance Union meeting in Chickering Hall was small, and the seats on the platform were poorly filled. The address was delivered by the Rev. J. E. Oakley, of the Forty-fourth Street Methodist Episcopal Church. He said:

Welcome the Roosevelt bill and all other measures that in any degree help the cause of temperance; but we must draw the line somewhere of concession and half-hearted action.

MR. BEECHER NOT GOING ABROAD.

THE TRIBUNE recently published a statement on the authority of Major Pond, who manages Mr. Beecher's lecture tours, to the effect that Mr. Beecher proposed going abroad in the spring or summer and lecturing in England. Before his sermon yesterday morning in Plymouth Church, Mr. Beecher said that the statement had been industriously circulated that he was going to England this spring. The first knowledge he had of it he gained from THE TRIBUNE. He had ransacked his memory and looked over his affairs, and he was compelled to dissent from THE TRIBUNE, much as he liked it. He had never thought of going. He was there once and had as much lecturing as he wanted. By referring to this he did not want to convey the impliication that he would take notice in the pulpit of the hundred and one things said about him in the newspapers, but the congregation had rented the pews and had the right to know that with occassional absences he would, until the middle of July, stand in his own pulpit for the purpose of giving religious instruction.

THE REV. MR. GOSS IN A BOWERY MUSEUM.

The Rev. C. C. Goss held a meeting in the Dime Museum, at No. 190 Chatham-st., last evening. The place was filled with that class of people which flourishes in Chatham-st. and the Bowery. Those who occupied seats in front evidently came to hear what the preacher had to say; but to the Bowery boys in the rear of the hall the plaster-of-Paris Egyptian mummy and the alligator had charms which Mr. Goss was unable to counteract. The singing was the most popular feature of the evening, and when at the close of the meeting, "There is Rest for the Weary" was sung, every voice took up the refrain. In response to Mr. Goss's exhortations fifteen young men signified their intention of leading better lives.

A CHURCH NINETY-FOUR YEARS OLD.

The Forsyth Street Methodist Episcopal Church celebrated its ninety-fourth anniversary yesterday. Bishop Harris presided at a reunion love feast at 10 o'clock, and Bishop Andrews preached at 11 o'clock. In the afternoon there was a reunion of former pastors and members of the church.

Next to the John Street Church this is the oldest of the denomination in the city. The land on which it is built was confiscated from the Tories and sold by the State to a citizen, and by him was conveyed to the church association. The original parchment deeds are in the possession of the trustees. In 1873 there was a debt of $64,000 upon the property. In 1879 the Rev. A. C. Morehouse was appointed to the church, and the debt has been reduced to $29,000.

DOINGS OF THE WORKINGMEN.

The Central Labor Union met yesterday afternoon in Odd Fellows Hall. The Cigar-makers' Progressive Union reported that the strike against Straiton & Storm was in a satisfactory condition. Resolutions condemning the action of the International Union in bringing men from the country to work for Straiton & Storm were carried. A bill was reported from the Committee on Labor Bills amending the eight hour law by affixing a penalty of a fine of $100 for the first violation, $200 for the second, and $300 for the third. Senator Daly had refused to introduce the bill, and had informed the committee that he would not introduce any labor bill.

A meeting of the New-York Association of Engineers was held yesterday at No. 352 West Thirty-fifth-st. There was a fair attendance. The subject of the laxity of the Inspector of Boilers was commented on. One member made the statement that the boilers in the barges belonging to the New-York Central Railroad Co. had never been inspected. Another said that under the present law that if a man was changed from one boiler to another, even though both boilers belonged to the same owner, his license had to be renewed. "If this law had been enforced," he said, "I should have had to pay last week $12 for licenses, while my entire earnings were only $9 70."

The Board of Arbitration and Strikes, of the New-York Protective Association, held a consultation with a committee of Nyack shoe operators yesterday. The meeting was secret; but it was stated that unless an arrangement is soon made between the locked-out buttonhole operators and their employers, a strike of the lasters will be ordered.

A meeting of the Tugboatmen was held yesterday at Military Hall, to hear the report of the Committee on Hospital Dues. The matter was laid over until next Sunday. The general spirit of the discussion was in favor of retaining the dues.

The committee appointed by the New-York Protective Association to visit the dry goods merchants of Catherine and Grand sts., and see if they would consent to close their stores at 6 o'clock except on Saturday, reported yesterday that fifteen firms had agreed to close their stores. E. Ridley & Son and two other firms that had declined, will be boycotted.

The students of the De La Salle Institute, at No. 48 Second-st., indulged in an oratorical contest yesterday that lasted nearly three hours. The prize, a gold medal worth $25, offered by Manhattan College, was won by Philip E. Revill over fifteen competitors. The speeches were interspersed with songs by the choir.

Semon, age thirty, of No. 253 West One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth-st., while climbing the stairs leading to the elevated railroad station at One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth-st. and Eighth-ave. at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, missed his footing and fell to the ground, a distance of thirty feet. He was killed almost instantly.

DAMAGED IN A HURRICANE.

The three-masted schooner Lucy Graham, which was towed into this harbor yesterday by the steam towboat Hercules, sailed from Satilla River, Ga., on February 17, with a cargo of lumber. She was caught in a hurricane off Body Island on February 23, and lost her main and mizzen masts and a part of her deck-load. The vessel was then headed for the capes of Virginia and was towed into Hampton Roads last Tuesday. From Hampton Roads she was brought here.

A memorial was addressed to the State authorities asking that the old battle flags be sent to the organization to be escorted in the Decoration Day parade by the uniformed company of the old regiment, which is organizing. Dr. James F. Ferguson, the old surgeon of the Zouaves, was appointed a committee to go to Albany with the memorial and endeavor to obtain the colors. After the adjournment a "camp-fire" was held.

BROOKLYN.

Thomas Wood, age three years, was burned to death yesterday at his home, No. 531 Manhattan-ave., from his clothes taking fire.

The reports in yesterday's papers in regard to the illness of Henry J. Cullen, jr., were exaggerated. While his condition, at one time, excited a alarm, his speedy recovery is now looked for.

The anniversary of the birth of Robert Emmet will be celebrated by the Irish Nationalists in the Brooklyn Rink to-morrow evening. Bernard Peters will preside, and Charles W. Brooke will be the chief speaker.

A Baptist missionary meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the First Baptist Church in Pierrepont-st. Addresses were made by the Rev. Drs. Burlingame and Clough, the latter for twenty years a missionary among the Telugas of India, where a large number of converts were made in a short time.

Mr. Talmage yesterday received into the Tabernacle Church 130 new members, mostly by confession of faith. This, he announced, made a total membership of 3,107 persons. The Rev. J. LONG ISLAND.

BANFORT.—Many cases of scarlet fever of a malignant type are reported.

LONG ISLAND CITY.—Davren's Hall was crowded last evening by the taxpayers of the First, Second and Third Wards, who met in connection with the secession movement in Astoria. Edward McCollum, president of the Long Island City Board of Health, was chairman. He stated briefly the objects of the meeting, and said that while the people of Astoria had just grounds for complaint, he thought it unwise for them to leave the city. Mr. Mosher moved that a committee of five from each ward be appointed to confer with the Citizens' Committee of Astoria. Ex-Alderman Gleason approved of Mr. Mosher's suggestion and it was adopted. The chairman was given three days in which to appoint the committee of fifteen. The advisability of calling the attention of the Grand Jury to the criminal negligence of the Board of Assessors in failing to assess personal property, was discussed, but no definite conclusion was reached.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH IN AMERICA.

HOW IT BECAME AMERICAN IN THOUGHT—ITS MISSIONARY WORK.

The Rev. Julius H. Ward delivered the second of a course of lectures on "The Episcopal Church in America," at Calvary Church, Fourth-ave. and Twenty-first-st., last evening. He said in part:

In the English Church, from the time of the coming of the English colonies to America down to the time of the American Revolution, there was a change from a hitherto bitter spirit on the part of Christian people to a spirit wider, more tolerant. The great difficulty in America with regard to the Episcopal Church during the colonial period arose from the fact that the Puritans deeply feared the advent of the Episcopacy because they felt that the British Government would be behind the coming of the Episcopacy to this country. This feeling was so intense that the outbreak of the American Revolution, which nearly destroyed the English Church in the colonies. Churchmen here felt compelled to take the side of the King. The Churchmen were the Tories and the Puritans the Federalists, of that day. The bitterness of ecclesiastical feeling had the added bitterness of political hostility. In Trinity Church, the services was maintained for the most part during the war by equivocation on the part of Dr. Inglis in the prayers for the King. But the congregations generally were broken up and the ministers driven away, and in 1783, when the war ended, the Episcopal Church among the colonists was utterly and thoroughly dispersed. The churches had in many cases been burned and the clergy and people were scattered. Samuel Seabury, the first American bishop, was secretly consecrated in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1784, and returning to this country, organized the Diocese of Connecticut. Other bishops were consecrated in 1787 in England, and a feeling arose against Bishop Seabury for going to Scotland to be consecrated. The difficulty was, however, settled at a convention in 1789. The Church slowly increased, more bishops were consecrated, and by the efforts successively of Bishops White, Hobart, Moore and Doane especially, who were all Americans with strong American predilections, the Church was developed on lines of American thought and feeling.

The period from 1832 to 1835 was a memorable one in history. In 1832 the great Goethe died, and the British Reform bill was passed. In 1833 the Tractarian movement was started, Thomas Carlyle began to be known, Ralph Waldo Emerson began to think on the transcendental philosophy and French priests brought a new broad church element of life into the Gallican Church. In those years came the culmination of the work for the American Church in the development of the missionary work. In 1835 the Episcopal Church became a missionary church, and it was declared that every person baptized in the church thereby became a missionary. We are largely indebted to Bishop Doane for this. It was his foresight which led to the organization of the American Church upon a missionary basis. From that time forward the interest of the Episcopal Church in missions has been as long and as broad as the Church's consecrated life.

A TRIBUTE TO SALMI MORSE.

The Rev. S. Thomas Williams preached at the Salmi Morse Memorial services held in Christ's Free Congregational Church, at No. 352 West Thirty-fifth-st., last evening. In the small congregation was Miss Mary C. Blackburn. The preacher said in part: "Salmi Morse was a man of generous, noble nature. His labors, his fears, his hopes were great. His only object was to benefit his fellow-men, and had New-York City done as it ought it would have had an opportunity to discover the true royal nature of this man. In his endeavors to bring on the "Passion Play" in this city I knew that Mr. Morse was actuated by pure motives only. He said to me, 'It is my way of preaching the Gospel to the masses, and I believe it to be the best of all methods.' Let no man say that Salmi Morse wished to bring true religion into disrepute. He had more true honesty and manhood and Christianity in him than the whole multitude of Pharisees who opposed him. If he had faults let us forget them and emulate his many and noble virtues. I cannot and will not believe that he rushed into the presence of the God he loved with the terrible crime of self-murder on his soul."

THE COUNTY COMMITTEE CHAIRMANSHIP.

The question of the election of a permanent chairman for the Republican County Committee is still the absorbing topic among the members of that body and a good many Republicans who seldom take an interest in politics except near election. The suggestion has been made that John J. O'Brien withdraw as a candidate and William Dowd be named. The friends of O'Brien say that this proposition comes too late; that Mr. O'Brien's character has been assailed, and he cannot honorably withdraw from the canvass.

The caucus to be called by Mr. O'Brien may possibly take place on Tuesday evening, but is much more likely to be held later in the week. It is intended that this shall be the means of settling the contest for chairman. In all or nearly all the Assembly districts caucuses will be held in advance of the general caucus, and the matter will be thoroughly discussed and voted on. There is a good deal of feeling displayed on both sides. Mr. O'Brien, Bernard, Biglin, Robert G. McCord, William H. Towniey, Colonel Charles S. Spencer, and other friends of O'Brien met yesterday up-town and discussed the situation. No new views were advanced. The various districts were canvassed and the strength of each candidate discussed.

The bullet struck Di Lorenzo in the left hip, inflicting a wound that will probably prove fatal. He was taken to the New-York hospital.
