WEDNESDAY, June 9—P. M.

The directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company, at their regular meeting to-day, voted that "under all the circumstances at the present time" it was inexpedient to declare a dividend. The usual statements of revised figures for the preceding quarter and estimates of the current quarter were submitted, and it was the results shown by them that ruled the question of a dividend. The revised statement for the quarter ended March 31, 1886, shows the "net revenue" for that quarter to have been $299,100 less than the estimates submitted March 10, and that therefore the deficit in earnings from the amount of dividend declared and paid in scrip was $592,611 instead of $293,343, as appeared by the estimate.

The following compares the estimate with the actual:

Quarter ended March 31, 1886.	Estimate of March 10, 1886.		Actual by report June 9, 1886.
Net revenue		$1,050,000		$750,847
Deduct
Interest on bonds	$123,590		$123,615
Sinking fund	19,991		19,991
		$143,491		$143,606
Net revenue		$906,509		$607,241
Less dividend 1 per cent		1,199,852		1,199,852
Deficit for quarter		$293,343		$592,611
Add surplus of Dec. 31, 1885		4,102,180		4,102,180
Surplus of March 31, 1886		$3,808,837		$3,509,569

The president explains the falling off from the estimate in the net results of that quarter as being "due principally to the judgment against the Western Union and Gold and Stock companies, amounting with interest and costs to $193,933 50, for taxes levied by the State of New-York, for 1881, on the entire capital stock, represented by property in thirty-eight States, ten Territories, the Dominion of Canada, Great Britain, the Island of Cuba, and the high seas. These taxes were paid a few days before the last estimate was made, in the confident belief that if paid we would be able to obtain an act for their refund. They were not, therefore, taken into the estimate." For the quarter ended September 30, 1885, the revised figures showed a falling off from the estimate of $199,500; for the quarter ended December 31, 1885, the revised figures were $235,500 less than the estimate, and now for the quarter ended March 31, 1886, they are given with an explanation at $299,000 less than the estimate, making the actual revenue for three quarters, ended March 31, of the company's fiscal year $734,027 less than the amount as estimated by quarters. It will be seen that the decline from estimates has been progressive: $199,500, $235,500, and $299,100; and it would be a happy circumstance if explanations changed the fact.

Now for this current quarter the estimate of net revenue is set down at $1,000,000—$50,000 less than the estimate of the preceding quarter and $249,100 greater than the actual proved to be. It is hoped that at the end of the next quarter there will be no necessity for an explanation of a discrepancy between the estimate and the actual of the current quarter such as has occurred in the preceding three quarters. By this statement the surplus for the quarter is equal to little over 1 per cent. The following compares the estimate for the current quarter with the actual of the corresponding quarter of 1885:

Quarter ending June 30.	Actual, 1885.	Estimated, 1886.
Net revenue	$1,380,672	$1,000,000
Deduct
Interest on bonds	$123,768	$123,615
Sinking fund	20,000	20,000
	143,768	143,615
Net income	$1,236,904	$856,385
Less dividend	1,199,843
Surplus for quarter	$37,061	$856,385
Add surplus for March 31	4,296,943	3,509,569
Surplus for June 30	$4,324,004	$4,365,954

As the current quarter will complete the company's fiscal year, we are able to give its results, subject only to such corrections as may occur in the estimates of this quarter's returns, and compare them with the results of three preceding years as follows:

YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1886.

Actual net revenue for three quarters—July 1, 1885, to March 31, 1886	$3,015,973
Less interest and sinking fund	430,838
Net balance for nine months	$2,585,033
Dividend paid—three quarters 4½ per cent	3,399,572
Deficit	$814,537
Add estimated surplus for current quarter	856,385
Surplus for year ending June 30, 1886, over 4½ per cent	$41,848
Surplus for year ended June 30, 1885, over 6½ per cent	$166,536
Surplus for year ended June 30, 1884, over 7 per cent	498,916
Surplus for year ended June 30, 1883, over 6½ per cent	1,914,124

The company's statement of March 10, 1886, said: "Of the surplus at the close of this quarter of $5,008,088 54 [the scrip dividend for that quarter not having been charged off] as shown in the statement, there have been invested in the construction and purchase of lines and other telegraph properties up to the beginning of the quarter $4,388,986 12, which will probably be shown to have reached four and a half millions by the close of the quarter, with a probability of requiring further investments of considerable sums at an early date." Hence the surplus now reported—$4,365,953—reflects a debt of greater or less dimensions.

Represented by amount of transactions, to-day's stock market was about as dull as was yesterday's but the dealings were characterized by a different tone. From the opening figures were higher and strong, but it was not till in the last hour that any material advances were made, and in that hour the transactions amounted to over 100,000 shares out of the day's total of 281,885 shares. All of the usually active speculatives participated in the advance: Northwestern, St. Paul, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Lake Shore, Michigan Central, Central and Hudson, and even Western Union despite its statement. New-York and New-England was especially active and sold at 38⅝ to 40¼. Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo was specially and noticeably weak with more than a usual amount of business; it declined from 34⅝ to 33½, and closed weak at 33¾. It is difficult to conceive of a reason why in the face of the general strength the stock should have acted so, unless it be supposed that the insiders were unloading; and if reports concerning the property are true, we know of no reason why they should desire to sell at current prices. For the greater part of the day the market wore a healthy appearance and the temper was encouraging. Whether or not the operations of the last hour, when prices jumped up 1 per cent and were without any new development to give a stimulus, is another question. The movement did and it did not appear to be the result of a covering of shorts. At all events the time of its occurrence and the magnitude of the advances in the short period are not favorable indications of permanency. Neither will a following reaction change the general character of the market. To-night it closed too excited to be healthy.

Government bonds were dull and strong; the bids for the 4s were up ⅛ per cent and for the 4s they were advanced ¼ per cent, probably in response to the following which some one induced a news agency to send out as news: "The bonds of the United States to be liquidated in the next fiscal year from the unemployed cash balances in the Treasury and in settlement with banks of circulation amount to $631,965,850, leaving outstanding at the close of the year, June 30, 1887, $500,000,000 United States 4 per cent bonds with an interest charge of $20,000,000 a year. The $250,000,000 of 4½s are not due till 1891 and the 4 per cents due in 1907 out amount to $738,000,000. Annexed are the closing quotations:

In London British consols were steady at 100 9-16 and 100⅝ for money and account. American railways were irregular after the fashion of yesterday's home market, but gained in strength toward the end and closed strong. India Council bills were allotted at a decline of 1-16d. per rupee, but bar silver was ⅛d. higher at 45d. per ounce, English standard. The Bank of England gained £50,000 bullion on balance. At Paris French 3 per cents declined to 82.97½.
