ROBERT EMMET. A Tragedy of Irish History. By JOSEPH I. C. CLARKE. 12mo, pp. 134. With portrait. New-York and London: G. P. Putnam's Sons.

It is probable that while he was composing this piece the author of it had in his mind a sense of action, but he did not convey this to his scenes and his language, and therefore if the piece were ever to be set upon the stage it would produce the effect of a series of pictures and not the effect of a play. In act first several persons, including Robert Emmet and Sarah Curran, meet, converse and part in a drawing-room, in Dublin. It is shown that Robert and Sarah are lovers, and also that Sarah is beloved by Geoffrey Delaney, whom the lady does not favor and by whom Robert is disliked. Nothing is done by anybody. The only incident is the singing of one of Moore's melodies, which Sarah warbles, at the request of Robert. In act second, three years later—and, presumably, the courtship still in progress—various persons confer in the streets of Dublin; a knave named Fleming undertakes to help Delaney to get Sarah and to ruin Robert; and a rebellion of the Irish, led by Robert, is manifested by two volleys of musketry, one fired by the visible insurgents, the other by invisible red-coats. This is the first picture. In act third, the insurrection having been quelled and its leader having escaped to a rebel camp near the Wicklow Mountains, Fleming is shown as the bearer of a letter from Sarah to Robert, begging that he will save himself from peril and not keep his promise to come to her. Fleming has trusted to this as an expedient to lure Emmet back to Dublin. Robert falls into this incredible trap and declares that he will return. This is the second picture. In act fourth the lovers meet in a garden and Robert is betrayed and arrested—a third picture, and one of the most ancient and hackneyed that are known to the stage. In act fifth Robert Emmet, arraigned before Lord Norbury, is shown and heard in the delivery of his well-known effusive, fanatical and sophomorical harangue, avouching and exulting in his treasonable effort to effect, by force of arms, "a total separation of Great Britain and Ireland"—the crime, attended with blood-shed, for which, under the laws of his country, he suffered death. This is the fourth picture, and this, upon the stage, would show a court-room, the parties to a trial, and the spectators, and would give occasion for that florid declamation which pleases school-boys. In act sixth Fleming, a "faithless son" of Ireland, is shown as the presumptive hangman of Emmet, and finally Robert, having parted with Sarah, is displayed in an attitude of dignity, on his way to the gallows.

All the persons introduced in the piece, of whom there are twenty-two, speak alike—that artistic discrimination between characters which is essential to a play having been restricted to the author's mind and not conveyed to his page.

MR. HENRY T. FINCK'S WORK ON LOVE AND BEAUTY.

"Romantic Love and Personal Beauty" is a title that is not fitted to prepossess one in favor of a book.—[St. Louis Spectator.

If "Romantic Love" attempts the success which we predict for it, Mr. Finck will have done more than either Tyndall or Huxley toward popularizing science. To a large public it will be a treasure-house of useful practical hints, profound philosophy, and aesthetic and moral reflections.—[The Epoch.

He can see only fun, and that of the coarsest kind, too, frequently.—[J. H. H., in Science.

It is written virginibus puerisque.—[New-York Nation.

Messrs. Macmillan may be congratulated on having secured a work which ought to command an enormous audience; for, not only will the generality of people read it for its own sake, but I should expect novelists to study it profoundly as a measure of professional culti-vation.—[Julian Hawthorne in American Magazine.

"Romantic Love and Personal Beauty" is an alluring title.—[New-York Mail and Express.

Is certainly to be regarded as one of the valuable contributions to the history of man.—[H. W. Conn, in Science.

It would be unfair not to recognize cordially the striking breadth of his discussion, its wealth and appositeness of illustration, the formidable strength of its cumulative evidence, the wit and humor and strong sense abundantly exhibited throughout it, and the shrewdness which characterizes many, if not most, of the conclusions.—[New-York Tribune.

There is nothing in it that may not be read aloud with propriety in the family circle, before a room full of building damsels.—[New-York News.

The entire subject is treated with a refinement of delicacy that is entirely free from anything like impurity of thought or indelicacy of allusion.—[Christian Union.

GENERAL MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE—For Brazil goods the market was dull and values are entirely nominal. The milder styles were easy. Sales, 3,236 bags Mata-atos, 3,750 bags Porto Cabello, 1,238 bags Caracas, 1,000 bags washed do, and 374 bags Bucaramanga, on private terms. Little interest was taken in the speculation, although the tone was weak. The sales reached only 69,250 bags, while closing quotations indicated a decline of 30@40 points for the year. COTTON—Spot quotations were reduced 1c., but with the demoralized condition of the speculative market there was little demand. Sales, 129 bales. The port receipts today aggregated 11,301 bales, comparing with 9,009 bales the same day last week and 12,707 bales for the corresponding day last year. Since September 1 the beginning of the crop year) the receipts have aggregated 4,911,570 bales, against 4,843,408 for the same time last season.

Option trading was very active and excited. With a sharp break at the outset a large amount of long cotton held on insufficient margin was brought out and this took the support entirely from under the market, precipitating a decline of 23@29 points during the afternoon on the old and 12@14 points on the new crop months. Final quotations represented a net decline for the day of 27@31 points on this and 16@21 points on next crop. Sales, 441,300 bales.

FLOUR AND MEAL—FLOUR—Exporters were moderate buyers of the city mill product to-day, and the home trade movement reached a very fair aggregate. As regards prices the feeling is very steady on well known brands, but otherwise rather weak. Sales, 21,500 bbls., including 4,200 bbls. City Mill Extra at $4 40@$4 75; 3,000 bbls. Western Extra at $2 05@$2 65, 1,200 bbls. Superfine at $2 45@$3; 1,000 bbls. low grades at $2 00@$3 40; 6,100 bbls. Winter Wheat Extra at $2 20@$5, and 6,900 bbls. Minnesota Extra at $2 90@$4 90. Shippers took 79,000 bbls. Market closed dull. Quotations: City Mill, for West Indies, $4 40@$4 65; for Patents, $4 40@$5; low extra, $2 00@$4 30; winter wheat, low grades, $2 90@$3 40; fair to very choice, $3 50@$4 50; patents, poor to choice, $4 25@$4 75; patents, fancy, $4 85@$5; Minnesota, spring wheat, low extras, $2 90@$3 40; clear, $3 55@$4 15; straights, poor to fair, $4 15@$4 35; patents, common to very choice, $4 30@$4 90; patents, fancy, $4 90. Market closed dull.

SOUTHERN FLOUR—Quiet, steady and unchanged. Sales, 575 bbls. Common to Fair Extra at $3 30@$4. Good to Choice do, $4 0@$5. Rye Flour is in good request and firm. Sales, 1,100 bbls. Superfine, at $3 20@$3 75.

CORNMEAL—Is in fair request. Yellow Western quoted at $2 85@$3 25; Brandywine at $3 25. Sales, 400 bbls. Brandywine at $3 25.....BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Quoted dull at $2 15@$2 20.

GRAIN—WHEAT—Shippers were in the market to-day for moderate quantities, and prices show gains of ¼@⅜c. Closing steady. Options varied little at the opening, a firm feeling prevailed in the first sales, afterward there was a slight decline, subsequently they rose ⅛@⅜c. based mainly on the export buying, leaving off at near the best. The visible supply for the week shows a decrease of over 900,000 bush.; had no effect whatever, having been discounted. Speculation is small for the day. Sales, 1,840,000 bush. future, 226,000 bush. spot, including No. 2 Red, 90⅞@90⅞c. in elevator, 92@92 16c. afloat, and delivered 90 16@90⅞c. closing at 90⅞c. do. March, 90⅞@90⅞c. closing at 90⅞c. do. December, 93@93⅞c., closing at 93⅞c. .....CORN—Tended higher again, and the shorts suffered another squeeze. The options, after a weak opening, soon began on the upward turn, until prices advanced ½@⅝c., closing with a reaction of ⅛@⅜c. Speculation is fairly active all around, but long were more or less neglected, but the temper favored holders. Sales, 2,216,000 bushels future, 20,000 bushels spot, including Unrated Mixed at 50⅞@51c. Steamer, 60c. elevator, No. 2, 60⅞c. Closing No. 2 March, closing nominal. do. April, closing nominal; do. REVIEW OF THE WEEK—Wednesday's market opened active and 10c higher for Beeves of all descriptions, but 45 cars came in late and sold at easier prices, with 12 cars to carry over. The light supply of Friday gave the market a firmer tone than at the close on Wednesday, but trade was slow and a clearance barely possible.

British markets showed no material change in tone or price. Refrigerated Beef was slow at 8 1-2@9c. and while best American Live Cattle were quoted as high as 12 1-4@12 1-2c. estimated dressed weight, very few exceeded 12c.

Live Calves ruled steady up to Thursday closing weak on that day and declining 1-2c. per lb. on Friday.

Sheep and Lambs continued in moderate supply and sold at strong prices. There was a slight decline on Thursday but the market rec
