STEWART WILL CASE AGAIN.

MRS. WETHERELL ON THE WITNESS STAND.

FURTHER TESTIMONY IN THE GREAT CONTEST AFTER AN ADJOURNMENT.

When Surrogate Ransom took his seat in his court yesterday counsel for both sides in the Stewart will case were in their usual places. The hearing was adjourned several weeks ago, when after two days of brilliant argument by nearly all the lawyers engaged in the contest the Surrogate ruled that the testimony of Mrs. Kate A. Wetherell, daughter of J. Lawrence Smith, regarding conversations she had held with Mrs. Stewart was incompetent, on the ground that by signing the agreement for a partition of the estate she had become an interested party and had thereby come within the forfeiture clause of the will. At that time Joseph H. Choate was absent from the hearing, owing to illness, but he was again present yesterday, aggressive and watchful as ever, and bearing the burden of the examination and of attacking and offering objections. Under the influence of his keen sarcasm and flashes of wit, the hearing took on its old-time interest. His darts of irony were showered with a generous hand and they seemed to wound every one at whom they were hurled.

Mrs. Wetherell was again on the witness-stand, but she was not allowed to testify in regard to the conversations. She said that in signing her answer to the Butler complaint she relied upon the judgment of her father. She had no clear idea at the time of its purport, nor did she know much more about it now. Mr. Hilton, she said, called upon Mrs. Stewart nearly every day, sometimes both in the morning and afternoon. He gave the orders about the management of the house. When asked to cite an instance, she replied that he ordered the goods for the equipment of the house. On one occasion she had heard Mr. Hilton tell Mrs. Stewart to change her gown, as she was not properly dressed. Mrs. Stewart had followed his suggestion. The witness subsequently testified upon cross-examination that there seemed to her to be nothing offensive in Mr. Hilton's manner at the time. She herself thought the suggestion a good one, and thought that it was a sensible thing for Mrs. Stewart to change her gown. Mrs. Wetherell repeated that she had never had any intention of breaking the will. She had never entered into any agreement with the Butlers.

MR. CHOATE RESTLESS.

Ex-Attorney-General Russell followed up these questions with others covering many details. Mr. Choate became visibly restless, and finally suggested to Mr. Russell that there were other witnesses to come. Once when Surrogate Ransom ruled that he would take an answer to a question to which Mr. Choate had objected, Mr. Choate said: "I hope your Honor will allow me to ask some." Again, he broke in when counsel for the proponents was asking the witness if she understood some legal point, "Oh, she ought to be admitted to the bar if she could answer such questions." Taking up the redirect examination once he asked the witness if she had read the code of civil procedure. "Of course not," he said, with a meaning glance at his opponents, when he received an answer in the negative.

The witness said, that after Mrs. Stewart's will was read Mr. Hilton said: "Don't you see what I've done for you all?" "There was no response to that, was there?" asked Mr. Choate, dryly. "No," replied the witness. Mrs. Wetherell, in response to an interrogation, said that when at the store with her grandaunt she was left alone when Mrs. Stewart had any papers to sign. Reverting to the reading of the will, she said: "Some one, my sister, I think, expressed regret that no provision had been made for the Clinch children. Mr. Hilton said that he would take care of them."

AN OLD EMPLOYE TESTIFIES.

Mrs. Wetherell's testimony was followed by that of John Van Gassbeek, who said that he had been manager of the carpet department in the Tenth-st. store for several years. He offered his resignation in May, 1876, and left the store in July of the same year. Between the two dates he had received an invitation from Mrs. Stewart to call upon her. He went to her house when she sent for him the second time. When asked to repeat his conversation with her he said: "Mrs. Stewart was surprised and said she wished me to remain. I told her that I could not under the circumstances. She declared that she had a little something to say about the store. I asked her why she did not consult with some of her friends about it and she said she 'dassn't' on account of the Judge."

In explaining what he meant by being unable to stay in the store "under the circumstances," the witness explained that some one had come there in 1873 who just "walked up and down." He was not employed in the carpet department, but he was always there. He never did any work, but he came early and went late. Elihu Root took the witness in hand and had just begun a series of cross-questions fired at the witness with alarming rapidity when the hearing was adjourned until 10:30 o'clock this morning.

MR. CLEVELAND A COMMISSIONER.

APPOINTED WITH CHARLES COUDERT AND LEICESTER HOLME TO APPRAISE HIGH BRIDGE PARK LANDS.

Justice Patterson, of the Supreme Court, yesterday appointed ex-President Grover Cleveland, Charles Coudert and Leicester P. Holme commissioners to appraise the value of the land for the High Bridge Park. The new park is to consist of 1,976 lots, the greater portion of which are above the new bridge, and is to extend from One-hundred-and-fifty-fifth-st. to Dyckman-st. Isaac M. Dyckman, after whom this street is named, owns about 100 lots in the neighborhood. He asked for the appointment of Eugene S. Ives as one of the commissioners.

At the law office of Bangs, Stetson, Tracy & MacVeagh, No. 45 William-st., of which firm ex-President Cleveland is a member, a Tribune reporter was told yesterday afternoon that it was not known when Mr. Cleveland would return from his trip to Cuba or whether he would accept his appointment as one of the commissioners.

SHINING HEAPS OF TROUT.

MR. BLACKFORD'S TEMPTING DISPLAY—OFF FOR GOOD FISHING.

Fish Commissioner Blackford gratified the public yesterday in accordance with his annual custom on April 1, with an elaborate display of trout. Despite the stormy weather there were crowds all day in Fulton Market gazing at the speckled heaps of dead trout lying on banks of green moss artistically arranged on marble slabs, or the hundreds of live trout swimming in tanks and reflecting all the colors of the rainbow. The stalls were tastefully decorated with palms and pine. The collection of trout this year is the finest that Mr. Blackford has ever had. Among the designs are fish arranged in "pigs-in-clover" style. The fences are made of whitebait, prawns and scallops, and a little red lobster peeps out of the paper box pen. The varieties of trout embrace lake trout from the Adirondacks, Canada wild trout, rainbow trout from Patchogue, L. I., beautifully mottled salmon-trout, German brown trout, and a hybrid variety—a cross between a brook trout and a brown trout.

An eighteen-year-old salmon-trout attracted much attention. The brown trout are from 25,000 eggs sent over to the State Fish Commission by Professor von Behr, of the Deutsche Fischeri Verein, of Germany. Of this supply the Commission has sent out 800,000 fry to applicants in the State. Live Long Island brook trout sell for $1 50 a pound; Canada frozen trout for 35 cents.

The bad weather had little effect in keeping fishermen at home, and scores of anglers left the city yesterday for the haunts of the trout, many going to the mountains of Pennsylvania, but the greater number crossing the East River bound for the secluded streams that flow into the Peconic River "on old Long Island's sea-girt shore."

A METHODIST CELEBRATED.

Norwalk, Conn., April 1 (Special).—At the annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which is to assemble on Wednesday at Bridgeport, the 100th anniversary of the introduction of Methodism into Connecticut will be celebrated. It has been arranged that a centennial sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. George Lansing Taylor, and a public mass-meeting will be held at which ex-Governor Lounsbury will preside and addresses will be made by eminent ministers and laymen of the church. The actual anniversary, however, does not occur until June 17. It was on that date in 1789 that the Rev. Jesse Lee, a circuit rider, held the first Methodist Episcopal service and preached his first sermon in Connecticut. This service was held in the open air, under an apple tree in the village of Norwalk. The congregation, it is said, consisted of only six persons. The apple tree stood just opposite the old Sherman mansion. Years ago it disappeared, and it is not known that any portion of its wood has been preserved. In its place a public watering tank has long stood, but it will soon be removed and upon the spot a bronze equestrian statue of Jesse Lee will be erected.
