PREPARING FOR A BIG FAIR.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the fair to be given in the former hall of the 71st Regiment, in May, for the benefit of the Mission of Our Lady of the Rosary, No. 7, State-st., was held in the Cathedral School, No. 111 East Fiftieth-st., yesterday afternoon. The Rev. M. Callaghan presided. In his opening address the chairman said that the fair promised to be a great success. The Mission of Our Lady of the Rosary, which had been founded by the Rev. John J. Riordan, was in debt $65,000, of which $25,000 was due June 1. It was to pay off this money that the fair was to be given. It had been called the Metropolitan Fair, because it was hoped that the whole city would assist in the work, as the whole city was benefited by the good work of the mission among the immigrant girls. Many churches had already promised to supply tables at the fair, and gifts had also been received.

The business transacted at the meeting was of a preliminary and preparatory character. A motion was passed empowering the chairman to name a finance committee of fifteen to solicit subscriptions. The pastors of the various parish churches were asked to name members of their congregations who should be added to the Finance Committee. The meeting was then adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

The Executive Committee includes ex-Mayor W. R. Grace, Eugene Kelly, Joseph J. O'Donohue, Controller Myers, Commissioner H. D. Purroy, J. Rhinelander Dillon, John A. Moran, Joseph Thoron, J. D. Crimmins and George Ehret.

THE PETROLEUM MARKET.

NEWS FROM THE FIELD AND RANGE OF PRICES.

Further depression was suffered last week by the price of certificate oil in consequence of the rise in the volume of current production. The pipe-line statement for February, due to-day, will doubtless reflect a decrease in stocks, but the loss probably will not exceed 200,000 barrels. These figures look small to the trade, because in the last year the rate at which the stocks above ground have diminished has been two or three times greater. Nevertheless, such an excess of consumption over production as now exists should be an insurance against any severe decline in values. The total production is estimated by careful observers at about 73,000 barrels a day. The deliveries in 1889 averaged 80,741 barrels a day, so that the drillers for oil will have to meet with even better good fortune than they enjoyed in February in order to bring the output on a par with the consumption. The week's news from the field showed natural drainage in the new pools, and there no doubt has been a falling off in the yield from the figures of a week or ten days ago. It is extremely probable, however, that the production in March, owing to the phenomenal activity of the producers, will be in excess of that of February and the complete March report should not be expected, from present indications, to show as large a production in stocks as 200,000 barrels. The partial pipeline runs in the opening of March show an average of 56,246 barrels a day, and this compares with full returns in March, 1889, of 52,330 barrels a day; in March, 1888, of 42,726 barrels, and in March, 1887, of 65,012 barrels. The incomplete returns of March deliveries show an average a day of 64,239 barrels, against 73,666 barrels in March, 1889; 66,816 barrels in March, 1888, and 75,555 barrels in March, 1887. The export trade continues to lag behind last year. The March charters average only 17,664 barrels a day, compared with an average of 40,996 barrels in March, 1889, 32,223 barrels in March, 1888, and 35,518 barrels in March, 1887. The unofficial estimates of exports of crude, refined, naphtha, etc., from New-York, from January 1 to date, and from other Atlantic ports to March 1, are 84,885,000 gallons, a falling off compared with a corresponding period of 1889 of 11,737,000 gallons, equal to about 300,000 barrels of crude equivalent. Yet the refined markets abroad are about steady, with prices but little changed from this time in 1889 and home quotations for refined and naphtha, as noted below, have not altered in the week. As the dull season is now before the export trade the position of our exports is not likely to change much before autumn, when a decided revival of activity may be looked for.

The pipe-line parcial figures from March 1 to March 6 (charters to the seventh), inclusive, are as follows:

	Runs.	Deliveries.	Excess deliveries.	Charters.
Total barrels	337,480	385,439	47,959	123,659
Average per day	56,246	64,239	7,993	17,664

As was to be expected, part of last week's certificate market was devoted to liquidation, resulting in a further decline on a fairly active volume of business, from 96 cents to 92 1-8 cents for options, while at the Stock Exchange the fall was from 96 to 91 3-4 cents. The lowest prices were made on Tuesday, and then the overselling of the bears led to a rally which reached 95 1-2 cents for cash and 95 3-4 cents for options. Of course the record of transactions was about up to the previous week's, but even then the figures pictured little beyond a limited and professional market. The general public shows as much indifference, with prices in the nineties, as it did when crude was ruling at $1 05@$1 10. Existing conditions are not favorable to the development of buoyant speculation; in fact, the aggression is all on the part of Western bears. As they are very largely men who possess more or less production themselves, they hold an advantage when production is rising over the ordinary seller short. While they may at times overestimate their treasure-trove, and thereby give holders a temporary advantage in the market, they possess in their wells an insurance against delinquent deliveries that constantly tempts them to discredit their own commodity. The natural position of crude oil is still so strong that anything like old-time depression surely cannot be looked for with any reason, in spite of public apathy and bearish aggressiveness. Fluctuations of certificates may for a time tend downward, but much will depend upon the character of the news from the oil country. In view of that fact, it would seem, if the managers of the Consolidated Exchange wish to preserve to their board some control of the oil speculation, that now is the time to establish an efficient and trustworthy scout service. There is a Stock Exchange contingent which holds that the market is entitled to a further rally on short covering, but the market ended without vigor.

The range of prices and the total dealings in National Transit certificates at the Stock Exchange and the Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange for the last two weeks were as follows:

Week ended—	Stock Exchange. March 1.	March 8.	Consolidated. March 1.	March 8.
Opening	$1 04¼	95½	$1 04⅞	96
Highest	1 05	96	1 05¼	96
Lowest	95	91¾	95½	92⅛
Final	95⅝	95	95¾	94⅞
Sales, barrels	969,000	1,186,000	1,894,000	1,579,000

Refined oil was unchanged at 7.40 cents per gallon in barrels, and 9.60 cents in cases. Crude in barrels was reduced five points, to 7.65 cents, but naphtha was unchanged at 8.10 cents.

Foreign quotations were a shade lower at London and a shade better at Bremen. The figures at the close were 17 francs at Antwerp, 6.85 marks at Bremen and 5 11-16@5 3-4 pence at London.
