The option market was fairly active at a decline in prices generally. At the outset September advanced 5 points, which later months gained 2@4 points, after which Lard was a shade further advanced 2@4 points all around, but the full port receipts prompted realizing, and the close was easy. September 3 points up, October 1 point higher, November unchanged, while other months showed a slight decline. The early strength was attributed to a rise of 1@2 points at Liverpool, which started local covering. Sales, 59,500 bales.

GRAIN—WHEAT—Speculation was on a rapid rise at sale to-day, as usual at the close of the week, yet the market developed considerable strength, and final figures showed a further advance. The volume of trading fell below 1,300,000 bush, the bulk of which was accounted for by professional operations, though there was a sprinkling of local buying of December, which had a strengthening effect. September opened at $1.02 1-16 and subsequently declined to $1.01⅞, leaving off steady. December started at $1.05⅝, rose again to $1.06¼, the official close of yesterday, after which it dropped to $1.05⅞ on local realizing, but this was followed by a rise to $1.05⅞, leaving off at $1.05⅞. The last which opened at $1.02⅞, gradually advanced until it touched $1.10⅛, closing heavy at $1.09⅞. In the way of news the "bulls" had the aid of steadier cables, late accounts from Liverpool showing gains of 1@2d on future, after September. Besides this, the crop and weather reports from the Northwest were less favorable, which contributed to the buoyancy, and the light world's receipts exerted additional strength. There were 2,000 bush taken for export the first, since the early part of the week, and this, too, had some influence. Interior arrivals were quite moderate at all points. Seaboard receipts, 26,358 bush; clearances, 3,012 bush wheat and 700 barrels flour. After 12 m. December declined to $1.07⅛, closing at $1.05⅞; May, $1.09⅝, closing at $1.09⅞. CORN—Had another quiet day in the option line, but the market ruled strong and closed higher all around. Predictions of frost in the Northwest were the chief element of strength, and in addition to this, late cables came firmer, which helped the buoyancy. The rise in wheat also contributed to the rise. Option gained ¼@¾c, and closed at about the best figures of the day. On the spot the market advanced 1@2c, and closed very steady, with light offerings. Shippers took 72,000 bush and the elevators appropriated 51,181 bush.
