Mr. Cleveland's speech, was greatly relieved when ex-Governor Campbell followed him and at once lowered the level of Democratic homily. Campbell made a thoroughly characteristic speech, in the vein of a demagogue. He appealed to the prejudices of foreign-born voters, ridiculed the idea that Rhode Island workingmen were thrifty and had money in the savings banks, charged Mr. Carnegie with lowering the wages of workingmen in order to contribute to the campaign funds of the Republicans in Ohio last year, and closed by reading lurid accounts of ill-paid and naked working people in America. His main argument was the contemptible plea that no man who was poor could afford to vote for the Republican party. The audience was delighted with the disgraceful harangue of this low-toned tariff agitator. Mr. Cleveland had spoken in the air, high above them. His colleague knew what the average Democrat wanted.

One of the significant features of the evening meetings on the Republican side was the reading of the following letter, which was received with hearty applause:

From No. 17 Madison Place,
Washington, March 31, 1892.

To the Hon. A. K. Goodwin, chairman of the Republican State Committee, of Rhode Island.

Sir: It will not be practicable for me to attend your meeting in Providence on the 2d of April, but I wish it were. I would like to urge upon the citizens of Rhode Island the importance of returning Senator Aldrich in his place. He is a Senator who has constantly grown in the esteem of his colleagues and in his influence in the Senate. It would be a great loss to Rhode Island and to the Republican party throughout the Union to lose him from the public service. Very truly yours,
JAMES G. BLAINE.

Governor McKinley was the hero of the evening in each of the large halls in Providence. He spoke with admirable lucidity, marked dignity of manner, and with genuine argumentative power. Every audience which listened to him not only applauded him enthusiastically, but listened to him with breathless attention.

Governor McKinley's speeches were in marked contrast with Mr. Cleveland's in every respect. They involved thorough exposition of every branch of the tariff controversy, and detailed a critical analysis of the arguments of the opposition. Mr. Cleveland's speech dealt superficially with the subject, and mainly by methods of phrasing rather than exposition and argument. Governor McKinley's main speech, in Infantry Hall, was regarded on the platform as the most masterly defence of protection ever made in Rhode Island. He was followed by Mr. Reed, who had been speaking to another immense audience in another hall. The incoming and outgoing speakers were cheered again and again, and Mr. Reed then kept his audience in tumultuous merriment for an hour. Governor McKinley and Mr. Reed exchanged places at the two ratification meetings, ex-Congressman Horr filling the gap most acceptably in Music Hall. The two meetings were the largest ever held in Providence, and the audiences were fired with enthusiasm from beginning to end.

The week was thus brought to a close by a magnificent demonstration of the strength and hopefulness of the Republican cause. At a late hour Republicans were rejoicing over the splendid prospect of carrying the State next week.

SLINEY'S CONFESSION DISCREDITED.

MR. LYNN EXPECTS TO CONVICT "JIM" LYONS OF MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

Assistant District-Attorney Washburn Lynn takes little stock in the confession of Michael Sliney, who is accused of the murder of Robert Lyons. James Lyons is jointly indicted with Sliney, and his counsel yesterday asked Recorder Smyth to discharge him from custody, on the ground that Sliney's story exonerated Lyons. Mr. Lynn, who has been in charge of the case from the first, opposed the motion. He said that he had certain evidence implicating Lyons in the murder. "Sliney has lied from the first," declared Mr. Lynn, "and the prosecution has all the facts in the case without relying on his statements." The Recorder refused to discharge Lyons. Mr. Lynn would not tell the nature of the evidence in his possession. He said that the District-Attorney's office fully expected to convict Lyons of murder in the first degree.

Recorder Smyth also refused the application of Lyons's counsel, Howe & Hummel, that they be permitted to see the minutes of the Grand Jury relating to his case.

MEETINGS AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Rev. Dr. William B. Derrick, in connection with a large number of colored clergymen and professional men of his race, will to-morrow evening, at Cooper Union, hold a mass-meeting for the purpose of giving expression to a protest against the outrages which have been perpetrated upon the colored people of the South. John R. Lynch, of Mississippi, and other speakers will be present to address the meeting, after which an address will be issued to the American people.

The Rev. Madison C. Peters will speak this evening on "Dr. Parkhurst and the Protection of Vice," at the Bloomingdale Church, Boulevard and West Sixty-eighth-st.

The Rev. Newland Maynard will preach in the Church of the Archangel, St. Nicholas-ave., between 117th and 118th sts., this evening, at 8 o'clock.

A lecture on Atlanta University, with stereopticon views of its industrial and other work for the colored people, will be given by Horace Bumstead, president of the university, at All Souls' Church, to-morrow evening.

Dr. Austin Abbot will deliver a lecture at 8 o'clock this evening in the Metropolitan Opera House Concert Hall, upon "The Bible and Good Government." The lecture is to be delivered under the auspices of the Students' Movement.

Henry Hitchings, director of drawing in the public schools of Boston, gave an interesting lecture on "Design" before the students of the New-York Normal Art School, in the University of the City of New-York, yesterday morning. Mr. Hitchings gave the students, who are all teachers of drawing in other schools, and the visitors many valuable suggestions. The room was well filled with people.

A joint debate between the Agassiz Association, Hyatt Chapter, and the Delta Sigma Pi Society, will take place at No. 2,105 Seventh-ave. on the evening of April 9.

MR. DE VINNE SHARES WITH HIS EMPLOYES.

A successful instance of the co-operative plan has just come to light. About a year ago Theodore L. De Vinne, proprietor of the De Vinne Press, at No. 12 Lafayette Place, informed his workmen that on April 1, 1892, he would declare a dividend out of the profits of his business to all who remained in his employ. And yesterday he distributed, without discrimination, to more than 300 employes a sum equal to 5 per cent of his year's wages, and aggregating $6,247 95.

This action is only the extension of an experiment which he began ten years ago, when a quarterly dividend was paid to the foremen of the various departments, according to the prosperity of the business. But yesterday even the errand boys and the girls in the bindery took part. It was a condition of the payment of this dividend that there should be no strikes fomented nor any opposition to the policy chosen by the proprietor. Nine men in the employ of Mr. De Vinne are owners of their own houses, and the advice given to all the employes yesterday was to put this dividend into some savings bank or building association. It was explained by a man acquainted with the methods that have been pursued that each workman was assumed to contribute capital equal to the aggregate of his labor for the year at the market price of labor, and this was the basis on which the distribution was made. As the plan has been tried successfully in its various stages for so long, it will undoubtedly be in force during the coming year.

HAS THE MORSE BUILDING BEEN SOLD?

It was reported in real-estate circles yesterday afternoon that the Morse Building, No. 140 Nassau-st., northwest corner of Beekman, had been sold to John E. Smith for $675,000. Sidney E. Morse, when seen last evening, denied that the building had been sold to Mr. Smith. He neither knew nor had ever heard of Mr. Smith. "A few days ago," said Mr. Morse, "a man told me that another man told him that I had sold the building. I replied that I never made any such statement. The building is not for sale." When asked whether he had sold the building to any one else, Mr. Morse replied: "I decline to answer any questions as to whether I have or have not sold it. All I will say is that it is not now for sale, and that the report as circulated is not true."

John B. Smith, who was said to have purchased the building, is a real-estate dealer. He is at Lakewood, N. J., and nothing could be learned as to how his name came to be associated with the alleged sale.

THE EX-CITY TREASURER'S ACCOUNTS CORRECT.

Kingston, N. Y., April 2.—The Investigating committee of the Common Council, who have for six months been looking over the account of ex-City Treasurer Grove Webster with the aid of two experts, last night reported that Mr. Webster's accounts were correct, he not owing the city a dollar. At one time he was reported to be short $15,000, according to the finding of Mr. Trenholm, an expert, but Mr. Webster has shown to the committee payments made which the expert overlooked and which make up the alleged shortage.

NOYES'S CASE SUSTAINED.

A MAJORITY REPORT IN HIS FAVOR.

A STINGING REBUKE TO DAVID B. HILL AND HIS METHODS—SEVEN DEMOCRATS SIGN THE MAJORITY REPORT.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

Washington, April 2.—The report of the Elections Committee of the House in the case of Noyes against Rockwell, which it is understood meets the approval of seven Democrats and six Republicans out of the fifteen members of that committee, is a strong document, and there is no reason to doubt that the recommendations therein contained will be approved by the House of Representatives, despite the extraneous influence and extraordinary efforts which have been brought to bear in behalf of Rockwell, simply and solely because he "is a Democrat." It is the most stinging rebuke which David B. Hill and his copartners in seat-stealing have yet received. Hill's edict may be supreme over a Board of State Canvassers, even under the frown of the highest judicial tribunal of the State, but it does not control a Democratic majority of an Elections Committee of a Democratic House of Representatives.

It is understood that the committee, which consists of nine Democrats and six Republicans, was unanimous on one point, which was that Noyes instead of Rockwell was entitled to the certificate of election. This of course shifted the burden of proof from Noyes to Rockwell. It is important to observe that this is the unanimous opinion of the Elections Committee. Of course the work of the committee was greatly simplified when it came to consider the case on its merits, and the decision in favor of Colonel Noyes then became almost immediately a foregone conclusion.

The report of the committee will say that the committee holds that it should accept the decision of the State court of last resort. By the restatement and retabulation made by the Board of Canvassers under the order of the court, Noyes had a returned majority in the district of sixteen votes. Rockwell insists that in a recount of the ballots in the six districts of four wards of Elmira he gained a number of votes; that certain illegal votes were cast for Noyes; that ballots cast for him (Rockwell) were rejected, and that the gains for him in the recount, deducting the illegal votes cast for Noyes and counting the rejected ballots for him (Rockwell), will show a clear majority for him. In the six districts of four wards of Elmira the inspectors of election did not, on the night of election, attach to their statements samples of the ballots nor did they destroy the ballots as required by statute. Why they neglected these duties does not clearly appear. The report then refers to the fact that the laws of New-York do not authorize a recount of the ballots in any election. The county clerk refused to receive the statement of the result because sample copies of the ballots were not attached and they were left in the hands of one of the inspectors in the respective districts, that the sample ballots might be attached. This being done, they were returned to the clerk of the court and there deposited. There was no safeguard whatever thrown around them; they were in the custody of no one upon whom any responsibility rested; there was no care taken of them with a view to a possible recount, and they were left exposed in every instance so that they could have been despoiled by the unscrupulous without fear of punishment, for they were in law worthless paper. Full and ample opportunity was given to tamper with them and to change them.

Now while we hold, says the report, that under the statute of New-York there could not be a legal recount of ballots in any election, yet, even if it were authorized by law, no confidence whatever could be placed in a recount of ballots which had been kept as these ballots were from the time they were counted on the night of the election to the recount made from twenty-four to forty-eight hours thereafter. To recognize this recount would be in direct violation of every rule and precedent, and would convert a serious matter into a most ridiculous burlesque. It would, if the precedent should be followed, throw down the bars in every close contest and lead to frauds innumerable and invite attacks without number upon the official returns of sworn officers of the law.

With reference to the Doyle ballots, the report says that there was some dissatisfaction among both Republicans and Democrats over the naming of Robert Earl for judge by both parties, causing his name to be scratched. In Fayette, for instance, eight Republicans had S. Edwards, "Sam" Small, J. Smith and Thomas Maguire, all fictitious names, substituted for Earl. In Waterloo, Earl's name was scratched on sixteen ballots and "Doyle," with different initials, substituted. The claim of Rockwell that these sixteen Doyle ballots represented sixteen corrupted votes is, in the opinion of the majority, based upon ground absolutely untenable. It is shown that two men, Sheridan and Green, who did not vote Doyle ballots, were paid to vote by McArthur, a Republican. The report also quotes the Ferris deposition. Its nature and the entire conduct of the man indicate that he was a stupid, ignorant and irresponsible fellow, who did not appreciate the solemnity of an oath, or that he was so drunk as not to realize what he was doing, and that, when he became sober or was aroused from his stupidity, he refused to sign the deposition written out by the stenographer.

Reviewing other ballots with reference to which points were made the majority find that there should be added to the votes returned for Noyes in the district three which were rejected in court, and that there should be deducted one unregistered vote and two billed votes, Sheridan and Green, so that Noyes's vote would be 12,404. To Rockwell's vote they believe there should be added one ballot cast in the wrong box and nine rejected ballots, giving Rockwell 12,385 in all, leaving a clear majority for Noyes of six.

The minority report, which is being prepared by Mr. Cobb, of Alabama, will first make an extensive review of the laws bearing upon the case. It will devote most of its space to the Doyle ballots which should be excluded.

Two Christmas Dinners.

In '90 a Smell was Enough, In '91 a Good Appetite.

The Change Was Due to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Christmas Day, Dec. 25, 1891.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

"I have been reading in a paper to-day about Hood's Sarsaparilla being a cure for and I know that it is true. A year ago the smell of my Christmas dinner was enough for me, but this year I find that I want more than a smell, and I give Hood's Sarsaparilla the credit for the change in my feelings. For the last two years I have been troubled with dyspepsia, and could find no cure for it. My friends told me that if I went to Europe, sea-sickness, change of air and diet would cure me. I went to Ireland and remained the three summer months of this year, '91, and came back in September uncured. My blood was watery and I was told to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for it. I did so, and in one month I found that

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Both poor blood and dyspepsia, for I am now perfectly well and have not taken any other medicine since I came home.

"We were talking before our dinner about how we felt and I remembered how I could not eat any last Christmas, so I made up my mind to thank Hood's Sarsaparilla for my good appetite." ROBT. W. DENVIR, 238 Franklin-st., Astoria, Long Island City, N. Y.

THE WOOL DEBATE CLOSED.

MR. BURROWS MAKES THE FINAL ARGUMENT AGAINST IT.

Washington, April 2 (special).—Republicans and all other people who believe that the first duty of an American is to his own country will have occasion to rejoice when they read the report of the proceedings in the House on the last day of debate on the Wool bill. Mr. Burrows delivered the closing speech on the Republican side. The close attention which his argument commanded was a high tribute to him and it showed that even Free-Traders are constrained to listen to a man who has something to say.

Mr. Burrows's argument was mainly directed against the pending bill, the vicious provisions and purposes of which were clearly and thoroughly exposed. The first blow of the Free-Traders, he said, is aimed at the 2,000,000 farmers and wool growers of the United States, of every State and Territory, who are the owners to-day of 45,000,000 sheep, valued at more than $117,500,000 from which they will clip this year not less than 200,000,000 pounds of wool, which will yield them a total income of more than $75,000,000. The 300,000,000 pounds of American grown wool represents a capital of more than $100,000,000 invested in sheep alone, to which might be added a much greater sum invested in land and buildings and paid in wages to American labor. What one industry is pleased to call its raw material is another's finished product. So when the farmer has taken the fleeces from his flocks and prepared them for the market, they are his finished product, and he is entitled to the same measure of protection accorded to other industries requiring the fostering care of the Government for their development and maintenance. It will be difficult to make the 2,000,000 wool growers of the United States understand why their industry, which has cost them so much in capital and labor, should be abandoned and destroyed while 221,000 people engaged and employed in manufacturing goods from the farmers' product should be the objects of National solicitude."

Mr. Burrows's analysis of the other provisions of the bill and its probable effects was thorough and effective and his arguments were unanswerable.

Mr. McKinley, of New-Hampshire, advocated the pending bill, and attacked the protective tariff system.

Mr. Coolidge, of Massachusetts, denounced the McKinley law as one of the most outrageous pieces of legislation ever entered upon the records of Congress.

Mr. Cummings, of New-York, criticised the Republican party for collecting revenue like freebooters and squandering it like spendthrifts.

Mr. Brickner, of Wisconsin, favored the bill, as did also Mr. De Armond, of Missouri, who, after scoring the protective system, characterized reciprocity as an apology for protection.

THE CONDUCT OF THE PENSION BUREAU.

Washington, April 2.—In the Pension Office investigation to-day Commissioner Raum said that he knew of one case, and there might be several others, in which relatives of pension attorneys were employed in the Pension Office. Wherever he knew of such relationship he would keep the claims of the attorney from his relative, though this kinship might perhaps cause inside information to reach an attorney. The Commissioner said the record showed that he had been absent from the office 137 days in the last two years and four months.

Mr. Enloe having asked a question implying that the Pension Office had at one time last year "slowed up" on account of the condition of the Public Treasury, the Commissioner replied that he had never felt any embarrassment as to the state of the Treasury; that Secretary Foster had never made him any suggestion on the subject and that he had never held back a single pension and did not intend to do so. He believed the office had been pushed to its maximum capacity; last year he issued 250,000 certificates. The number General Black had been able to issue in his last year was 113,000.

A REPORT ON THE GARZA CAMPAIGN.

Washington, April 2.—General Schofield made a statement this afternoon in regard to the Garza campaign: "Captain George F. Chase, 3d Cavalry, in a report says: 'My troops have been engaged in the most disagreeable and laborious duty since January 3, often making forced night marches and without bedding for the men or forage for the horses, and we are serving among people who hate and despise any form of government other than revolutionary.' General Stanley in forwarding this report says: 'All bands of organized force in violation of neutrality have been wholly dispersed. The supporters who reside in the district of the revolutionary movements have been ferreted out and are now under bond to answer charges made against them for aiding and abetting the revolution. The work that now remains is wholly in the province of sheriffs and marshals in their various counties and districts, but the presence of as many troops as possible along the Rio Grande frontier is very essential and will be for some time to come.'"

THE SILVER SITUATION.

Washington, April 2.—There is reason to believe that the House may yet find itself in a position of embarrassment upon the silver question. One of the strongest advocates of the Silver bill said to-day that the silver men had about decided upon the course that they would pursue. That course is one of obstruction to all legislation (except tariff measures) until their favorite measure receives the right of way. He did not criticise Speaker Crisp in his action, but he said that when the House adjourned on the famous "Silver Thursday," it adjourned under a misapprehension. There were eighty men who would unite to prevent any legislation by the House, he said. Asked as to whether the obstruction would be made to appropriation bills, he replied: "—— the appropriation bills; nothing but tariff until we secure fair consideration for the silver measure."

A NEW ANTI-OPTION BILL REPORTED.

Washington, April 2.—Mr. Hatch, from the Committee on Agriculture, to-day reported a bill as a substitute for the various anti-option measures before the committee. There were four bills before the committee, and long hearings were held. The bill reported to-day received the unanimous vote of the House Committee.
