LIVELY RACING AT MORRIS PARK.

CORRECTION BEATS STONENELL—THE ANNIE F. COLT'S CHAMPAGNE STAKES.

The Columbian celebration did not interfere seriously with the Morris Park races yesterday, as the attendance, which is never large at any course on Monday, was of generous proportions. The contests were interesting, and some of the finishes were so close as to cause the blood to leap through the veins of the most stoical spectators. There were some unaccountable reversals of form, and among the stewards much excitement, but the fine weather put every one in excellent humor and small matters were overlooked.

Garrison was fined $250 for getting in trouble with Colonel Frederick C. McLewee—an account of which will be found elsewhere—and Penn, Midgley and Blake were suspended by the starter for two days because they were unruly and troublesome at the post in the fifth race. Clayton, who rode Gascon to victory in the last race, was suspended for the rest of the season. Foxhall Keene's case against Hamilton resulted in the exoneration of the jockey, as the contracts proved him to be technically in the right. On liberal and fair grounds he was in the wrong. The stewards decided that Mr. Keene could not force Hamilton to ride his horses.

Correction, ridden by Taral, easily defeated Stonenell, the favorite at odds on, in the first race, Garrison riding Stonenell.

Banquet, in a hard drive for nearly half a mile, won the second race.

McCafferty rode Hugh Penny to victory in the third race, to the surprise of nearly everybody.

The Champagne Stakes, for two-year-olds, at seven furlongs, went to the Annie F. colt, who went to the post at 20 to 1, and was unbacked by his owners. He won, pulling up, by many lengths, leading from start to finish. In his last previous race the colt was unplaced, but it was said he got off very badly, being almost left at the post.

Lyceum, at comfortable odds, won the fifth race, and Gascon the sixth.

DETAILS OF THE RACING.

White Rose, 3, 110 (Doggett)	0	20–1	6–1

Time—0:58¼.

Mutuals—Correction straight $16 60, place $9 65; Stonenell place, $7 15.

St. Felix, Fairy, Steve Estes, Wah Jim, Versatile, Yemen, Ben Strome and Speculation were withdrawn. Lizetta led down the hill, and was passed at the dip by Correction, who, remaining in front the rest of the way, won with ridiculous ease by a length; Stonenell, hard ridden for a quarter of a mile, second, a length and a half before Lizzetta, who beat Tormentor a neck. Stonenell swerved slightly when pinched, and seemed to have a slight collision with The Ironmaster.

SECOND RACE—Light-weight handicap; $1,000 added. One mile and a quarter.

	Betting. St.	Pl.
M. F. Dwyer's b. g. Banquet, by Rayon d'Or—Ella T., 5 yrs., 122 lb. (Garrison)	1	1–1	Out
J. A. & A. H. Morris's b. c. Russell, 4, 112 (Taral)	2	7–2	3–5
L. L. Lorillard's ch. h. Sleipner, 5, 110 (Doggett)	3	3–1	3–5
Lepanto, 4, 90 (Keefe)	0	15–1	4–1

Time—2:10.

Mutuals—Banquet straight $11 85, place $6 05; Russell place $10.

Equity, Stonenell and Dundee did not start. All the jockeys had waiting orders. Lepanto was forced to make the running, little Keefe lying on his back doing his utmost to prevent his mount from getting away from the field. Russell ran in second place, Banquet third, Sleipner last. Half way down the stretch Russell came to the front and seemed to have the race t his mercy. Garrison began flogging Banquet, who looked dry and stale at the head of the stretch, and flogged him all the way home. By almost superhuman powers he got him up at the end and won by a neck, Russell second, three lengths before Sleipner, who beat Lepanto a length.

THIRD RACE—For two-year-olds, non-winners of $1,000; $1,000 added. Five furlongs.

	Betting. St.	Pl.
J. J. McCafferty's b. g. Hugh Penny, by Luke Blackburn—Maud Ward, 118 lb. (McCafferty)	1	4–1	8–5

Pappoose colt, 113 (Lambley)	0	12–1	5–1
Barlow, 93 (Pere)	0	40–1	15–1
Sisap, 93 (Evans)		30–1	10–1

Time—0:59¾.

Mutuals—Hugh Penny straight $35 60, place $14 05; By Jove place $18 60.

The Albe colt, the Fancy colt, the Knickknack colt, Courtship, Chattanooga, Sport and May Lose were withdrawn. The start was delayed by Strap, who ran away for five furlongs and was slow in returning to the post. The Pappoose colt, closely attended by Minnehaha, led down the hill and gave way at the dip to the Clara colt, who drew out under a pull and seemed to be winning easily at the last furlong post. Hugh Penny then came up under a pull, and passing his horses as if they were anchored, won hands down by a length. By Jove second, a length before the Clara colt, who beat Eagle Bird three lengths.

FOURTH RACE—CHAMPAGNE STAKES. For two-year-olds; $100 each, $1,500 added. Seven furlongs.

	Betting. St.	Pl.
Gideon & Daly's ch. c. ——, by Pontiac or Runnymede—Annie F., 111 lb. (Doggett)	1	20–1	5–1
K. C. Daly's b. c. Prince George, 115 (Taral)	2	5–2	3–5

Pat Malloy, jr., 109 (Covington)	0	100–1	30–1
Reginald, 113 (Sims)	0	20–1	6–1
Rainbow, 111 (Penn)	0	6–1	8–5
Stowaway, 111 (M. Bergen)	0	25–1	6–1

Time—1:12¾.

Mutuals—Annie F. colt straight $57, place $27 85; Prince George place, $8 65.

Sayonara, Miss Maude and Sir Francis were withdrawn and Reginald was added. After a delay of ten minutes at the post the flag fell on a fair start. The Annie F. colt immediately took the lead and was never headed. He literally spread-eagled his field. They could not get near enough to him to make even the semblance of a race. He cantered in winner by six or seven lengths, pulling up. Prince George, second, was four lengths before Runyon, who beat Pat Malloy, jr., a neck.

FIFTH RACE—Selling; $1,000 added. Seven furlongs.

	Betting. St.	Pl.
Empire Stable's b. c. Lyceum, by Prince of Norfolk—Sister to Jim Douglas, 4 yrs., 106 lb. (Doggett)	1	5–1	2–1
A. C. McCafferty's b. h. Fred Taral, 6, 102 (Covington)	2	5–2	4–5
George Forbes's b. g. Arab, 6, 110 (Lambley)	3	7–2	6–5
Vardee, 6, 94 (Midgley)	0	4–1	7–5
Experience, 4, 105 (M. Bergen)	0	15–1	6–1
Mr. Sass, 4, 102 (Penn)	0	8–1	3–1
King Crab, aged, 112 (Blake)	0	15–1	6–1
Alcalde, 3, 93 (Keefe)	0	30–1	10–1
Estalectie, 3, 107 (Sims)	0	10–1	4–1

Time—1:27½.

Mutuals—Lyceum straight $85 50, place $55 90; Fred Taral place $9 05.

Zampost was withdrawn. Experience behaved badly, causing a delay of twenty-five minutes at the post. Fred Taral made the running for six furlongs, and was passed by Lyceum, who, ridden out to the last ounce, won by a length, Fred Taral second, a neck before Arab, who beat Vardee a nose. No bid.

SIXTH RACE—Non-winners in 1892; $1,000 added. Six furlongs.

	Betting. St.	Pl.
Bashford Manor's b. c. Gascon, by Falsetto—Mollie Wood, 4 yrs., 122 lb. (Clayton)	1	3–1	1–1
J. B. Collins's b. c. Sirocco, 4, 122 (Garrison)	2	7–2	6–5

Time—1:12¾.

Mutuals—Gascon straight $16 60, place $12 25; Sirocco place $12 25.

Delmar and Rocket were withdrawn. The Carmen colt led down the hill for a third of a mile, and in the dip, was joined by Sirocco, Gascon and Addie. The four came down to the judges in a hard drive, making one of the prettiest finishes of the season. Gascon won by a head, Sirocco second, a head before Addie, who beat the Carmen colt a head.

A TRAINER'S NOTES FROM THE TRACKS.

The track dried out rapidly and was in excellent condition at 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon. The work of the horses was of the moderate order, as there are but a few days left of the legitimate season. There was a rumpus in the first race, caused by Garrison, who had engaged himself to ride Fairy for Colonel McLewee, but disappointed him at the last moment by riding Stonenell for M. F. Dwyer. Fairy was withdrawn, to the consternation of the combination players and the shrewd bettors, who secured 2 to 1 against Stonenell in the city poolrooms with Fairy to go. Colonel McLewee complained to the Board of Control, and a session of that august body, lasting all the afternoon, was held. It resulted in Garrison being fined $250 and reprimanded besides. Jockeys' engagements should be registered with the secretary when made and there would be fewer disputes.

Hamilton's contract with P. Lorillard was construed by the board as being in favor of Hamilton's position in the affair with Mr. Keene, so nothing was done about his refusal to ride for Mr. Keene.

Clayton was suspended for the remainder of the meeting for insubordination at the post in the last race. Midgley was suspended for two days and can only ride for P. Lorillard. Blake and Penn were both suspended two days. Penn acted as if the cold weather made him torpid, and he needed an interview with his "mammy's" slipper to warm him into life.

McCafferty landed Hugh Penny a winner, and by the time the so-called "talent's" money is all gone they will realize that he can ride just a little.

M. Byrnes says that he will not start Tammany under any circumstances, and all reports to the contrary are misleading.

The trainers are getting ready to give their yearlings the final trials and to separate the grain from the chaff. The outlook for 1893 is exceedingly bright, as there is almost a full crop of yearlings from every section of country where thoroughbreds flourish.

"A thing begun is half done." If the friends of Protection in this city come out and register to-day, they will have half won the battle against British Free Trade that the Calamity party would like to see in force here. Bank clerks and coal heavers, skilled mechanics and street sweepers, all need the Republican form of Protection to keep up their incomes. Register to-day and keep out Free Trade!

SEEING IT IN A NEW LIGHT.

From The Detroit Free Press.

He had had a pretty hard day of it and had gone to bed early. When his wife entered the room he was sleeping soundly, and no man likes to be awakened half an hour after he gets asleep.

She was evidently amused at something, and as she approached the bed she exclaimed:

"John! Oh, John!"

He never moved.

"John! Wake up!" she persisted. "There's one of the funniest incidents——"

He still slept and she began to shake him.

"John! Listen to me!" she cried.

He mumbled something and she shook him again. He opened his eyes and gruffly asked what the trouble was.

"There's the funniest story in one of the papers," she said. "It's about Goldust, the millionaire, and it makes me laugh every time I think of it. I'll tell you about it."

"No, you won't," he exclaimed hotly. "What in thunder——"

"Why, John!"

"I suppose you think it's a joke to wake me up out of a sound sleep to tell me some foolish story. What do you think I went to bed for?"

"Don't you want to hear it, John?" she asked in surprise.

"No, I don't."

"Dear me," she said in a puzzled sort of way, "don't you really like to be waked up in the middle of the night to hear a story any more than I do when I get to bed first?"

He glared at her and she retreated, but she knew that the shot had gone home. He doesn't wake her up any more and expect her to laugh at some joke or story he heard at the club.

CLEVELAND AND PENSIONS.

THE "FRIENDSHIP" OF THE EX-PRESIDENT FOR THE UNION VETERANS.

SOME TIMELY EXTRACTS FROM THE REPLY OF THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON INVALID PENSIONS TO THE MESSAGE VETOING THE DEPENDENT PENSION BILL.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

Washington, Oct. 10.—Some of the Democratic newspapers are making a desperate attempt to persuade the surviving veterans of the Union and their relatives and friends that Mr. Cleveland is their friend. Some of the Democratic editors even have the hardihood to quote passages from his messages to prove their assertions. In "The New-York World" of October 7, a leading editorial was published, in which several passages were cited from the veto of the Dependent Pension bill and the annual message of 1886, to prove that President Cleveland was in favor of such a measure. The editor carefully omitted to reproduce any portion of the reply of the House Committee on Invalid Pensions to the veto message. That Committee was composed of nine Democrats and six Republicans, and its report recommending the passage of the Dependent Pension bill over the veto of President Cleveland was a unanimous one. The report clearly shows that the veto had not produced upon the minds of the members of the Committee the impression that President Cleveland favored the enactment of a Dependent Pension law. He was opposed to such a law in 1887, and his recent letter of acceptance shows that he is still opposed to it.

In this relation some extracts from the report of the Committee on Invalid Pensions will be both pertinent and interesting. In reply to a gratuitous insult to the veterans of the Union the committee said:

Your committee do not share in the opinion that "there exists a widespread disregard of truth and good faith" in the prosecution of pension claims. Nor do we believe that the ex-soldiers of the country are prone to commit fraud, perjury or subornation of perjury for that purpose or for any other.

The committee then showed from official data that not more than one pension claim in 1,000 allowed had been fraudulent. In its report the committee at the outset called attention to the fact that no objection was raised against the constitutionality of the bill, all the arguments urged being on the ground of mere expediency; and, after refuting some of the statements contained in the veto, said:

Taken altogether, and not so delicately analyzed that the refinement of a chemical experiment is not exceeded in an effort to do away with the plain provisions of the bill, we again submit to the judgment of the House and the country that those who framed the bill after months of careful, deliberate consultation have made no mistake.

Further on the committee said:

We regard the strained interpretation put upon the bill in the message as an excuse, rather than a reason, for returning it to the House; and we believe we do no injustice to the Executive, when considering the whole message, to say that if its provisions had been plainer and that no question could have been raised as to whether it included only those unable to labor, that he would yet have interposed objections.

This was severe criticism to emanate from a committee, three-fifths of whose members were party friends of President Cleveland; but it was no stronger or more severe than the passages in which the committee convicted him of gross inconsistency as well as bad faith. The Mexican Pension bill passed the House on the same day that the Dependent Pension bill did, and the provisions of the former, as the committee showed, were even more liberal than those of the latter. Among other things in relation to this phase of the matter the committee said:

It passes the comprehension of this committee to understand how the President could have overlooked in another bill what are alleged as faults in this bill. The bill we refer to passed the House on the same day this did, and met his unhesitating approval.

Among the provisions of the Mexican bill, to which the committee called attention, was the one which gives "a pension to every widow of a soldier in that war who is now sixty-two years of age, whether she was the wife of a soldier or not at the time of his service, and without reference to the cause of his death even if he was killed in battle while serving in the Confederate army." The report continued:

This committee would rejoice if there could even now be found some indefinite vagueness or latent ambiguity in the Mexican Pension law that would enable the President to say that these results were not foreseen by him when he was approving the one and contemplating the veto of the other. The bill we presented to the House was broad, liberal and patriotic. It struck down any disbarment from the pension list on account of any service against the flag excepting such persons as were labouring under political disabilities. It was intended to reach mainly the survivors of our Civil War who had fought for the Union, but it embraced within its generous terms the survivors of the War of 1812, the Indian wars and the war with Mexico—all who could show that they were totally unable to labor and were dependent upon their daily labor for support could appeal to its provisions, and all were to be treated exactly alike. If this bill fails to become a law, such distinctions are made by the acts of the Executive in approving one and disapproving the other that the committee cannot believe it will be indorsed anywhere by the patriotic sentiment of this country.

In commenting upon President Cleveland's statements in regard to the heavy indebtedness incurred by Northern cities, towns and counties on account of local bounties, the committee remarked that so far as their own districts were concerned that indebtedness had been paid long ago; and continued:

No motives of patriotism were concerned in the creation of this debt. A draft was imminent which would have swept into the army the rich and poor without drawing any nice distinction of any character whatever. The counties, townships and the cities, therefore, decided for themselves and on their own motion that they would prefer to pay bounties and raise their quota rather than have their citizens subjected to the dragnet of the draft. If any county, township or cities are yet oppressed by the debts created in this way, it is because the aversion of their citizens to military service was so great that they were willing and anxious to pay extraordinary bounties to those who were willing to go in their places. It was a bargain all around, and neither party is entitled to any special sympathy or consideration.

In conclusion, we submit that the general tone of the message is to be fairly taken as an expression in advance of a purpose to use the Executive power to prevent any further legislation that will add any new class to our pension list, or that will materially increase the cost thereof. We are both to believe that the people of this country are willing to allow the defenders of the Nation's honor and life to live in their declining years in misery and want.

This report was submitted to the House of Representatives on February 19, 1887, and the vote on the motion to pass the bill over the veto was taken on February 24. It had passed the house on January 17, under suspension of the rules, by a vote of 180 to 76. The affirmative votes were cast by 113 Republicans and 67 Democrats, and 76 Democrats voted in the negative. From that date until February 24 the Administration exerted all its influence to defeat the measure, and the motion to override the veto was rejected by a vote of 175 yeas to 125 nays, two-thirds being required. Only thirty-eight Democrats voted to override the veto, and of these six were not recorded on the original passage of the measure. No fewer than twenty-seven Democrats who voted for it in January voted to sustain the veto in February, while eight "dodged." All of the 125 votes to sustain the veto were cast by Democrats.

A per diem pension bill was favorably reported by the House Committee in the 4th Congress, but action upon it was prevented by the influence of President Cleveland and his Administration and the Democratic "steering committee" in the House of Representatives.

So much for Mr. Cleveland's "friendship" for the dependent and needy veterans of the Union and the widows and orphans of those who have died since the war.

Put yourself out a little if you have to to-day to register! It will only take a minute or two at the most of your time, and any friend of American Protection will readily excuse you if you are delayed in keeping an engagement on this account.

GENERAL JACKSON AND HIS RACHEL.

From The Cleveland Leader.

As a girl, Rachel Donelson was a beauty. There is no doubt of that. As an old woman she was positively homely. She was illiterate, and smoked a pipe, and called her husband "Honey," and borrowed a coal from him for her tobacco when she needed it. However, Andrew Jackson loved her with all the fury of his furious nature. He died with her portrait about his neck, and joined the church because he wanted to meet her in heaven. If she wasn't there, he confessed, he would much prefer to go to the other place. She didn't live to get into the White House, and the gown she was to wear at the inaugural ball became her shroud. "A being so gentle and so virtuous slander might wound, but could not dishonor her," was one of the tributes which Jackson caused to be cut into her tombstone. Her relations to Jackson while she was the pretty young wife of a country bumpkin, and her wedding before she had been divorced, although she did not sin in this, because she thought the divorce had been granted, were used with cruel energy in the campaign of 1828. These slanders not only wounded her, but killed her, and the men who brutted them about were hunted down by Jackson, and punished when the circumstances permitted.

VICTORY FOR BROOKLYN.

THE WASHINGTON TEAM EASILY DEFEATED.

PITTSBURG, CHICAGO AND PHILADELPHIA ALSO SCORE GAMES—THE LEAGUE RECORD.

GAMES YESTERDAY.

Brooklyn 8, Washington 5. | Chicago 4, Cincinnati 3.
Pittsburg 8, Cleveland 3. | Philadelphia 7, Baltimore 2.

The Brooklyn and Washington baseball teams played their final game together at Eastern Park, Brooklyn, yesterday. The home team won simply through superior fielding, the poor support given Meekin losing Washington the game. Haddock had poor control of the ball at the start, and the visiting players scored five runs in the first two innings. Then Haddock retired to make room for Kennedy, and the Senators made but two scattering hits during the remainder of the game. The score:

NEWS FROM NEW-JERSEY.

NEWARK.

CHARGES OF CRIMINAL ASSAULT.

At a meeting of the Board of Street and Water Commissioners yesterday it was charged that statements which were criminally libellous were made in a petition asking that asphalt pavement be laid in North Broad st. by the contractors who made the lowest bid. Commissioner Hendry, who was in the chair, made the charge. The New-Jersey Asphalt Company, a new concern, and the Barber Asphalt Company, which has so far laid all the asphalt in Newark, were the bidders for the work. J. M. Trimble, counsel for the New-Jersey Company, was taken aback when Commissioner Hendry said:

"Your agent said that not only could Wallace Brown save money by signing the petition, because of a difference of 8 cents a yard, but he represented that the Board was in collusion with the Barber Asphalt Company; that it was a case of bosses; that the New-Jersey Asphalt Company knew it and wanted an opportunity. Nor is that all. Representations of the same nature have been made in other quarters. I desire to say that we call upon you to substantiate these remarks. A man named Brown got the signatures to this petition."

Mr. Trimble took umbrage at Mr. Hendry's remarks, whereupon the latter said he did not refer to him, but to the company he represented. Mr. Hendry would not let Brown speak, remarking that the Grand Jury would hear him. The asphalt contract was then laid over.

JERSEY CITY.

Benjamin Dreyer, who was convicted in this city recently of the larceny of $500, was arraigned before Judge Lippincott for sentence yesterday. He complained that he had been brutally beaten by a hallman named Edward Zimmerman. Judge Lippincott ordered the matter inquired into, and sentenced Dreyer to two and a half years in State Prison. As the jail it was said that a fight had taken place between Dreyer and Zimmerman, but that it was begun by Dreyer, who refused to enter his cell at the proper hour and tried to gouge out one of Zimmerman's eyes.

The Adirondacks are delightful in October. Two through vestibuled trains daily via New-York Central.
