AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

YOUNG CHRISTIANS' ANNIVERSARY.

GEORGE R. WENDLING TALKS TO SOME OF THEM.

The thirty-ninth anniversary of the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian Association was observed yesterday in forty-five churches in the city with special services. At each of these churches the pastor or some representative of the association presided, while another representative read the annual report. At the Memorial Presbyterian Church in Seventh-ave., George R. Wendling gave the address of the evening. He said in part:

"One of the peculiar features of the life of American young men is homelessness. Ours is a vast country. Business enterprises stretch their eager hands over wide fields. Corporations and business houses take in not merely towns and counties, but dozens of States. Whole armies of young men are going up and down the land as employes. Young men by the tens of thousands are crowding every avenue of life, and in the wide movement of modern enterprise a majority of them are carried away from their homes. Their lives are largely homeless lives. This life is the inevitable result of our business methods, and as it cannot be changed, ought we not to make strong efforts to alleviate its evils? Let us take two typical American towns, Jamestown, N. Y., and Richmond, Ind. The former has 2,000 young men between sixteen and thirty-five years of age; the latter has 3,000. In Jamestown there are thirty-six houses where liquor is sold day and night, and in Richmond thirty-seven saloons and three gambling-houses. You know this, you are daily witnesses to it in all our towns, and doubtless you wish it were not so. In America we have saloons by the hundred thousand, billiard-rooms by the ten thousand, low theatricals by the hundred, gambling-houses by the score, and in the presence of all these what are you doing for your young men?"

THREE TROLLEY CAR COLLISIONS.

There were three collisions with trolley cars yesterday. Car No. 302, of the Third-ave. line, crashed into an express wagon belonging to S. A. Spence, of No. 181 Atlantic-ave., at Fulton and Tillary sts. The shafts of the wagon were broken. The driver was intoxicated. Edward Edwards, of No. 125 Tenth-st., was in a wagon in Third-ave. near Fifty-Third-st. when he was struck by car No. 904. He was injured on the hip. A car on the Court-st. line ran into horse car No. 502, of the Fifteenth-st. line, at Hamilton-ave. and Brush-st. Both cars were badly damaged.

HE ROBBED HIS DEMENTED PATIENT.

Meyer Somborn, the demented son of Moses Somborn, was robbed by his nurse, James Moffatt, Saturday afternoon. The nurse took a gold watch and chain, and some valuable diamond rings and a scarf pin. Meyer Somborn is thirty years old, and lives with his father at No. 337 Sackett-st., and has been under the care of his nurse, Moffatt, for some time. Moffatt took his charge out for a walk Saturday afternoon, and when some distance from the house he robbed Somborn, and left him to find his way home as well as he could. Somborn finally reached home, and his father reported the case to the police. Moffatt was arrested yesterday morning and pawn tickets for the articles he had stolen were found on him. All the stolen articles were recovered except the rings and scarf pin.

THE THREE VICTIMS BURIED.

Mrs. Annie Schulman and her two children, who died in St. Catherine's Hospital on Friday from injuries received by the explosion of a kerosene lamp in their apartments at No. 121 Boerum-st., were buried yesterday in Washington Cemetery. The father, Max Schulman, who was badly burned, will in all probability loose his eyesight. He is in the Mount Sinai Hospital, New-York. When the cemetery was reached the burials were not allowed to be made and the mourners were kept waiting until a message could be sent to the hospital to obtain the permit which had been left behind. It was dark before the three bodies were buried.

SHE IS A HARD ONE TO KILL.

Mrs. Annie Rooney, of No. 38 Broadway, the wife of a watchman, John Rooney, employed by F. B. Tuttle, a coal dealer, received injuries late on Saturday night which may result in her death. The woman left her apartments to speak to her husband and fell through a coal chute. When Dr. Gifford, of the Eastern District Hospital, arrived, he found that the woman had sustained internal injuries. This is the third time Mrs. Rooney has met accidents which the doctors declared would end her life. In April, while preparing breakfast, her clothing caught fire, and the flames communicated to the dress of a daughter who tried to save her mother. The young woman died from her injuries. The doctors did not believe Mrs. Rooney would survive, but she recovered in a short time. Three months later she fell from a second-story window and broke her arm and several ribs. Again the ambulance surgeon predicted death, but she was soon attending to her housework. This time, however, it is feared she will die.

GATHERED ABOUT THE TOWN.

Otto Shratzel, of No. 636 De Kalb-ave., was arrested yesterday on a charge of forcing an entrance into the apartments of Andrew J. Lamberson, on the third floor of the same house, and with stealing jewelry worth $35.

Considerable excitement was caused yesterday among the German residents of the Eastern District by the appearance of two men who called at their homes and declared that the fire-insurance policies they held were worthless. The men then induced many of the people they called upon to make a payment on a policy in another company, and in this way got considerable money.

John Erosky, of No. 281 Third-ave., became violently insane Saturday night, and while tearing his clothing he upset a lighted lamp. The flames were extinguished before serious damage was done, and Erosky was turned over to the Charities Commissioners.

Thomas Quinn, who gives no address, was arrested yesterday, charged with stealing clothing and jewelry worth $75 from James Durham, of No. 358 Cumberland-st. On October 30, 1892, Quinn asked Durham, who is employed as a stableman at that address, for a night's lodging, which was given to him. In the morning Durham found that Quinn had robbed him.

THE CLEMENT STRIKES A REEF.

The steamship Clement, of the Red Cross Line, which sailed for Para yesterday morning at 11 o'clock from Watson's Stores, Brooklyn, ran on a reef off the Battery at 11:20 o'clock and stayed fast until 3 o'clock p. m., when she was pulled off by the tugboat B. Dalzell. The Clement carried the United States mails, and had a large cargo of general merchandise. When the steamship backed away from her pier the dense fog caused her captain to lose his bearings. No damage was done and the Clement proceeded on her voyage.

PRESIDENT ANDREWS ON PUBLIC SPIRIT.

The second of an interesting course of sermons was delivered at the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church last night, by President E. Andrews, of Brown University, who spoke on "The Duty of a Public Spirit." After tracing briefly the origin of civilized society and giving the sources of its laws and customs, the speaker referred to the need at present of young men and women of ample means who are willing to enter politics and grapple with the great questions that agitate the society of the present day. The operator in a cotton factory, for example, should know that any cause that tends to injure any man or corporation connected with his branch of work renders it impossible for him to maintain himself and his family in the style in which they have been accustomed.

President Andrews said further that young men should seek for political offices bravely, with the idea always before them not to yield in the presence of wicked men. They should have temper and keep their temper. "The best and most honest men in this country," the speaker said in conclusion, "should hold the offices." Indiscriminate condemnation of a political party is all wrong. There is a difference between an organization and its organs.

DR. PAGE'S FIRST SERMON AS A DEACON.

The Rev. Dr. W. W. Page, who resigned the pastorate of the New-York Presbyterian Church a year and a half ago, preached his first sermon as an Episcopal clergyman last evening at the St. Ambrose Protestant Episcopal Church, Prince and Thompson sts. The services were conducted by the rector of the church, the Rev. Jocelyn Johnstone, who in behalf of his parishioners extended a welcome to Dr. Page.

"I have not preached for eighteen months," said Dr. Page before beginning his sermon. "I have felt like a soldier in prison and in chains while his comrades were on the field of battle. Many of my friends, while I was held in durance vile, have urged me to enter other fields of labor. I would rather be the poorest preacher of the Word of God than the greatest of the world's great men. It was just a block from this place that as a boy from the theological seminary I began many years ago my ministry. In all those years I have known no place so sacred as that. The memory of my congregation, of the support and help that they gave me, is dearer to me than anything in my whole ministry. I feel to-night that I am taking up my ministry where I began to labor in the Lord's vineyard more than twenty years ago."

The Rev. Dr. Page was ordained a deacon of the Protestant Episcopal Church on Saturday.

Dr. Page sat in the chancel of Trinity Church at yesterday morning's service. He took no part in the ceremonies.

A STORY ABOUT M. CARNOT DENIED.

M. BAIHAUT DID NOT SAY THAT IT WAS ON M. CARNOT'S ADVICE THAT HE PROPOSED AUTHORIZATION OF THE LOTTERY BONDS.

The Procureur-General, M. Tannon, has given a flat denial to a slanderous statement published by the "Cocarde," an opposition newspaper in Paris. That paper pretended that, in his interrogation by the Judge of Instruction, M. Baihaut, ex-Minister of Public Works, had declared that it was upon the advice of his colleague, M. Carnot, then Finance Minister, that he had proposed to the Chamber to authorize the issue by the Panama Company of the fatal lottery bonds. The Procureur-General being requested by the President to inquire about the "Cocarde's" report, has "sworn upon his honor" that no such statement had been made by M. Baihaut during his interrogation. Moreover, the manner in which legislative bills are prepared by the Cabinet in France, and presented to the Chambers, shows sufficiently that M. Carnot could not have any responsibility in the matter.

The Lottery Bonds bill, after all, was voted only in 1888; the first one alluded to here was presented on June 17, 1886, and voted down. The measure was signed by President Grevy, M. Sarrien, Minister of the Interior; M. Baihaut, Minister of Public Works, and M. Sadi Carnot, Minister of Finance. It was the outcome of the report of the engineer, Rousseau, who had been sent in 1885 by the French Government to the Isthmus to investigate the condition and the prospects of the work on the canal. It is known now that M. Rousseau's conclusions were rather unfavorable, and that his report was altered by M. Baihaut, who presented to his colleagues a favorable report. He had charge of the technical side of the question, and MM. Sarrien and Carnot examined the document only in regard to the bearing it might have on the administration and responsibility of their respective departments. The report and the bill based upon it declared that the issue of the lottery bonds would help the work of cutting the canal; but that the authorization for that issue did not imply the least responsibility on the part of the Government. This declaration was to be printed upon each bond to be issued by the company, and was in fact so printed after the vote of authorization in 1888.

M. Carnot, as Minister of Finance, saw that the interests of the national treasury were absolutely protected, and he signed the bill, in conformity with his Ministerial duties, just as his colleague of the Interior and President Grevy signed it.

CIVILIZATION GOING INTO A DECLINE.

From The Detroit Free Press.

The Editor of "The Western Wind" came in gloomily and sat down at his desk.

"Any fights to-day?" he asked of the reporter present.

"No, sir."

"Any lynchings?"

"No, sir."

"Any horse-stealing?"

"No, sir."

"Any cowboys raiding the town?"

"No, sir."

"Any plug hats shot off the heads of Eastern visitors by our prominent citizens?"

"No, sir."

"Any report from the vigilance committee?"

"No, sir."

"Any new gambling shops opened?"

"No, sir."

"Any new dance houses?"

"No, sir."

"Anybody shot?"

"No, sir."

"Any cattle-thieves hung?"

"No, sir."

The Editor was sinking deeper into the gloom he had brought in with him.

"Is there anything" he asked in despairing tones.

"Oh, yes, sir," replied the reporter, "there was a witch-teu this afternoon at Mrs. De Rocky's, a reception by the Art League and the dancing class is giving a cotillon to-night."

The Editor looked at the reporter helplessly, and snatching up his pen he dashed off an article on "The Decadence of Western Civilization," and left the office.

NEWS FROM NEW-JERSEY.

HACKENSACK.

WHERE IS THEODORE HILL?

Nothing has been heard of Theodore Hill, paymaster of the New-Jersey and New-York Railroad, who left the company's office on Saturday morning. He was to have met Mrs. Hill at the East Hackensack West Shore station in the afternoon when she came from Kingston. She says she had a presentiment of something wrong, and came home earlier than she intended, going directly to the company's office. Mr. Hill has been regular in his habits for years. He is a member of the First Reformed Church of Hackensack. His relatives have nothing to offer in explanation of his disappearance.

RAHWAY.

One of the live institutions of Rahway is the Young Men's Christian Association. It has a large building of its own in Irving-st., which is fully equipped with everything needed for the instruction and amusement of young men. The gymnasium is one of the best in the State. The public has always been especially interested in supporting this worthy institution, and is now anticipating a novel entertainment which is to take place in the association rooms on February 8, 9 and 10. It is called a "Trades Carnival," and in its production about thirty young women will take part. A feature will be the military drill by twenty girls, each one representing some trade or profession and dressed in costumes. The newspaper profession will not be overlooked. In addition to the local papers to be represented, The Tribune, daily, weekly and semi-weekly, has been assigned to three young women, who will carry the banner of this paper and will represent it in costume. The young women have been drilling under Commander W. W. Branson, of Barry Post, G. A. R. In addition to the drill there will be numerous booths filled with fancy articles, etc., and a cafe. The officers and members of the association have been working hard for several weeks to make this the greatest thing of the kind ever held in Rahway.

RUTHERFORD.

A. E. Palmer delivered a lecture before the members of the Unity Club and their friends at the Church of Our Father on Saturday night. Mr. Palmer's estimate of the poetry of George Eliot, about which he lectured, was a high one. He epitomized the stories of the principal poems, and gave numerous extracts from them. Mr. Palmer was introduced by the Rev. George H. Badger, who, at the close of the lecture, expressed the sincere thanks and appreciation of the audience.

The Supreme Master, Grand Master and other high officers of the Order of the sons of St. George were present at a meeting in the Shafer Building on Saturday night called by E. M. Cliff, of Rutherford, Grand Master of the State of New-Jersey, for the purpose of considering the organization of a lodge in Rutherford. Many names have already been signed to the application for a lodge.

ELIZABETH.

A new lodge of the Improved Order of Red Men was opened in Elizabeth on Saturday night. It is called the Nenewoosha Council No. 17, and started with fifty-four members. The ceremony was followed by a dinner, at which delegations of the order were present from Newark, Jersey City, New-Brunswick, Easton and Elizabeth. The dinner was followed by speeches.

NEWARK.

The stock of the Newark Electric Light and Power Company is being purchased on account of some New-York and Philadelphia capitalists interested in traction companies. The purpose is said to be to run the company in connection with the electric railway system. The Thomson-Houston Company is said to be in the deal.

The Eagle Brewing Company has settled with all its creditors but one for thirty cents on the dollar. The odd creditor is K. Nestor, of New-York, who had a mortgage of $40,000 on the brewery property recently burned, and who in consideration of getting the insurance has paid off the other creditors.

JERSEY CITY.

An unknown man fell down the stairs of the Erie station in Jersey City yesterday and fractured his skull. He had just arrived by a train and there was nothing in his pockets by which he could be indentified. He was sent to the City Hospital and was still unconscious at a late hour last night.

A lad by the name of Duff found a draft for $5,151 87 on Montgomery-st. yesterday. It was made by Frederick C. Geiechling, assistant cashier of the Central National Bank of Washington, in favor of J. F. Sadler & Co., and was made payable at the Mercantile National Bank, New-York. It was dated January 28, 1893. Duff took the draft to Captain Fallon at the First Precinct Station.

HOBOKEN.

Michael and Mary Cluney, of No. 228 River-ave., were arrested yesterday for the brutal treatment of their five-year-old daughter, whom they were in the habit of sending out to beg. When she did not bring back money enough to satisfy their thirst for liquor she was beaten with a heavy strap. Her body was covered with welts and bruises. She and her three-year-old brother were placed in the care of the janitor's wife at Police Headquarters, and Cluney and his wife were locked up.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY.

RYE.—For the last two years Rye, New-Rochelle, Port Chester and the adjoining part of Connecticut have been the scene of operation of a gang of incendiaries and burglars. Every effort has been made to capture the men. They have made some rich "hauls" and have successfully disposed of the property and eluded detection, but the authorities now have them in custody and one of the gang has confessed to a long series of crimes. When on Friday evening Constable S. H. Graham took into custody Dennis Moriarity, John Ward, jr., Arthur Spicle and William Johnson, it was for robbing a poultry yard, and although the authorities believed that they had the right men they would have had hard work to prove more than the robbery of a hen-roost against them had not one of them weakened and told all. On January 29, the poultry yard of Edward Shell was robbed and Constable Graham traced the poultry taken to Harrison, where it had been sold to an Italian. Through the Italian he traced the men. On Saturday when they were arraigned Moriarity expressed his willingness to confess, and he has since under oath told how he and his companions set fire to the barns of James Weeks, Mrs. Purdy, Richard Cushion, Mr. Ferguson and the Crawford House; of how they robbed Mr. Shell and Sutton and a number of others, and of the attempt to enter the house of Bridget Meyers. The men will have an examination to-day.

THE TRIBUNE.

The man that our cork-sole shoe isn't good for ought to have one of those Waukenphasts at $3, $4 or $5.50.

Rubbers, if you must have them—but good ones only—at less than shoe-store prices; we make them as pleasant as rubbers can be.

Bring back what you don't like. We say it over and over again because we mean it—about clothing or anything else.
