GRAIN—WHEAT—The speculative market opened lower and ran higher on a decrease shown by local stocks and an expected large decrease in the visible supply statement. When the statement was published, however, it showed less decrease than was expected in view of the burning of 150,000 bush on January 22, and a reduction in St. Louis of 150,000 bush on January 22, and a reaction in the market of 1c@2c took place. The final quotations, however, were within ⅛@¼c of Saturday's closing. Spot corn ruled higher and firm. Beyond a light business for export the movement was dull.
