BROOKLYN'S FINE SHOWING.

VETERANS MARCH TO THE MEMORIAL ARCH

REGULAR TROOPS, MARINES, NATIONAL GUARDSMEN AND SOCIETIES ACCOMPANY THE GRAND ARMY MEN.

A fine showing was made by the Brooklyn Memorial Day parade. The route followed was a new one, the Memorial Arch, which was dedicated in connection with the Columbus celebration last fall, being the objective point. Great crowds of spectators assembled in and about the plaza of Prospect Park where the Arch stands. A small reviewing stand for city officials was erected near it. From the high ground about the Mount Prospect Reservoir overlooking the plaza and neighboring streets, there was a fine view of the scene. At the point opposite Underhill-ave. where it joins the Eastern Parkway, the marching column could be seen for half a mile as it ascended the hill and wheeled into the parkway, and then with another half turn passed under the Arch and in front of the reviewing stand by the great fountain, where ranks were broken.

The parade started at the fountain in Bedford-ave., in the Eastern District. The line of regular troops, marines, National Guardsmen, veterans and civic societies, with many military bands, and carrying war-worn and shot-riddled flags, as well as bright new ones, was formed in Bedford-ave. and adjacent streets, under Grand Marshal James D. Bell, who was assisted by George A. Price, adjutant-general and chief of staff; Lemoyne Burleigh, assistant adjutant-general; Thomas H. Kiernan, quartermaster-general; R. B. Granger, M. D., commissary general of subsistence; Henry E. Hayes, chief of cavalry; James H. McKenna, chief of artillery; Daniel Simmons, surgeon-general; John Murphy, judge advocate-general; Alonzo Stivers, chief signal officer; William Kimbell, provost marshal-general; William C. Carshaw, assistant provost marshal-general; the Rev. Job G. Bass, chaplain-in-chief; Adolph Simis, jr., special aid to grand marshal.

Andrew J. Lyons, inspector-general and chief aid-de-camp.

Aides-de-Camp—H. D. Moody, H. M. Birkett, Thomas Fallon, F. B. Case, Charles Quinn, William H. Leamey, J. A. Goodwin, Charles Fredericks, George M. Croissant, William Walker, Thomas Cantwell, A. J. Dyson, George G. Peavey, F. C. Miles, Thomas King, George W. Lewis, A. A. Ganiard, Roger B. Towner, J. Halsey Jenkins, John Quevedo.

They made their headquarters at the Hanover Club, at Bedford-ave. and Rodney-st. Shortly after 10 o'clock, the formation was completed, and the line was formed with a platoon of mounted police leading. The Grand Marshal and his staff were followed by four batteries of the Regular Army from the Artillery Corps at Fort Hamilton, under Major William L. Haskin; a corps of United States Marines from the Navy Yard, under Colonel James Forney; the Second Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., under General James McLeer and his mounted staff, including the Brigade Signal Corps, under Captain F. T. Leigh; the 13th Regiment, under Colonel Austen; the 14th Regiment, under Colonel Michell; the 23d Regiment, under Colonel Partridge, and the 47th Regiment, under Colonel Eddy, and the Third Battery, under Captain Rasquin, forming the First Division. The militia served as a guard of honor for the veterans, who were in three divisions, and included the following organizations of the G. A. R., Department of New-York:

The Fifth Division included camps of Sons of Veterans, under Assistant Marshal George G. Van Mater. The Sixth Division was formed of Knights of Pythias, under Assistant Marshal F. H. Palmer. The last division was under Colonel David T. Lynch, assistant marshal, and was formed of volunteer firemen, and a mounted squad of police to close the column was followed by wagons with flowers.

The route of the parade was in Bedford, Lafayette, Washington and Underhill aves., Eastern Parkway and the Plaza, under the Memorial Arch and past the reviewing stand. On the latter were Mayor Boody, Corporation Counsel Jenks, Congressmen Coombs and Hendrix, General F. S. Catlin and others. The appearance of some of the militia in their white duck trousers and white helmets was picturesque. Dr. Talmage rode with the staff of the 13th Regiment, of which he is chaplain; Dr. J. O. Peck with the 14th, which he serves in like capacity, and Dr. J. H. Darlington with the 47th. The daughters of Mansfield Post, dressed in National colors, and the girls and boys of James H. Perry Post, dressed in red, white and blue, and in sailor costumes, attracted much attention. The veterans with their tattered flags received loud applause from the spectators, who lined the two miles and a half of the parade with solid ranks, and possessed every coign of vantage. After the review the posts of the G. A. R. went to the several cemeteries.

Instead of holding special services in Greenwood, Cypress Hills and Evergreens cemeteries, the G. A. R. Memorial Committee of Brooklyn held a single service at the new National Cemetery, east of the Ridgewood reservoir.

After the parade, Mansfield, Barbara Fritchie, Perry, Hamilton, Dupont, Garrison and other G. A. R. posts took the cars to East New-York, where luncheon was served at Atlantic and Norwood aves. At 2:30 p. m., led by the 2d Battery, N. G. S. N. Y., escorting Mayor Boody and General Catlin, the posts marched to the cemetery, where thousands of spectators had assembled. The National salute of twenty-one guns was fired by the battery before the exercises began. A dirge was played by Mansfield Post band. Mortimer C. Earl, chairman of the committee in charge of the exercises, made a brief address, and prayer was offered by Chaplain Kane, U. S. N. The Concordia German singing society and the Mansfield Post Columbian Guard of girls sang patriotic songs and choruses. Mayor Boody was made presiding officer, and spoke briefly. He was followed by General Isaac S. Catlin, who lost a leg in the war, and who made a patriotic address. With more singing and the benediction by the Rev. S. B. Halliday, the exercises closed.

In Greenwood Cemetery especial services were held by a number of G. A. R. posts at the graves of comrades. W. W. Stephenson Post assembled at the grave of Colonel Stephenson in Boxwood Path. The Rev. E. F. Hallenbeck offered prayer, and Colonel Louis R. Stegman delivered an address. The statue of Henry Ward Beecher, in City Hall Park, was decorated with flowers by the Henry Ward Beecher Mission Band of Plymouth Church, and flowers were also laid upon his grave in Greenwood. Exercises were held at the grave of General Thomas S. Dakin, in Greenwood, by the members of Dakin Post. B. F. Middleton Post held services at the graves of comrades in Evergreens Cemetery. The Rev. Charles Herald delivered an address at the grave of General S. K. Warren in Evergreens Cemetery, under the auspices of Warren Post. Lee Post decorated the grave of Harry Lee in Evergreens. The members of U. S. Grant Post, after the parade, took a boat at Atlantic-ave. and went to Grant's tomb in Riverside Park, where ex-Governor Foraker spoke.

THE DAY IN THE SUBURBS.

A BIG PARADE IN JERSEY CITY.

VETERANS REVIEWED BY MAYOR WANSER.

Memorial Day in Jersey City will long be remembered. The bright sunshine in the morning was welcomed by thousands of people who had planned special programmes for the day. With the rising of the sun were hoisted flags from every staff in the city, and a large majority of houses and business places displayed bunting and flags from windows. All day long the city was in holiday attire, and its people flitted hither and thither with the industry of the bee in a clover field. The principal feature of the programme of the day was the general parade which formed in line at Hamilton Park and marched through the main streets of lower Jersey City and past the City Hall, where Mayor Wanser and other prominent officials reviewed it. It was 1:50 p. m. when the procession filed into Jersey-ave. from Hamilton Park, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Mason, grand marshal. This was the order:

Grand Marshal and Staff.
FIRST DIVISION.
Colonel Hugh B. Abernethy and Staff.
Fourth Regiment, N. G. N. J.

SECOND DIVISION.

FOURTH DIVISION.

Hibernian Rifles, Company C.
St. Patrick's Cathedral Cadets
High School Cadets.
Union Veteran Legion.
Sons of Veterans.
FIFTH DIVISION.
Superintendent John H. Brown, Marshal.
Jersey City Fire Department.

The parade was dismissed at the point from which it started. It was a success in every particular, and those in it were loudly cheered by the throngs on the sidewalk who viewed it.

The members of the Grand Army of the Republic remembered their dead comrades and visited the cemeteries in this order: G. Van Houten Post, No. 3, went to the New-York Bay Cemetery, where the Rev. Cornelius Brett, of the Bergen Reformed Church, delivered an address after the ritual had been gone through with, and further remarks were made by Commander J. S. Smyth and Captain Charles P. Knoeller. Henry Wilson Post decorated graves in the Bergen and Catholic cemeteries, and then went to Newark to take part in the ceremonies of unveiling the monument to E. F. McDonald. Zabriskie Post visited Speer's and the Bergen cemeteries and joined Henry Wilson Post at Newark. The late Congressman Edward F. McDonald was a member of Zabriskie Post, and the unveiling of the monument was under its direction. George H. Thomas Post visited the Hoboken and Weehawken cemeteries, and the Major Woerner and Edwin Stevens posts went to Floral Hill and Weehawken cemeteries.

QUIETLY OBSERVED IN WESTCHESTER.

GRAND ARMY POSTS IN THE VARIOUS TOWNS FOLLOW THE USUAL PROGRAMME.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of Memorial Day was observed quietly yesterday throughout Westchester County.

At Peekskill Abraham Vosburgh Post, Delancy Cole Camp, Sons of Veterans, and the Women's Relief Corps proceeded in a body to Van Cortlandtville Cemetery and decorated the graves of the fallen heroes with flowers. After the ceremony an address was made by the Rev. A. Ostrander.

At Sing Sing Morrell Post, in full uniform, proceeded to Dale Cemetery, where the graves of the soldiers were strewn with flowers. The Rev. J. P. Heermance was the speaker of the day.

Ward B. Burnett Post, at Tarrytown, visited Sleepy Hollow Cemetery and decorated the graves of the soldiers with flowers. In the afternoon the post visited Penny Bridge and presented an American flag to the public school at that place.

Cromwell Post, of White Plains, held a short parade and then divided into committees and went to the cemeteries at Armonk, Hartsdale, Pleasantville and Chappaqua, and decorated the graves of their comrades.

The day was observed in Portchester by Charles Lawrence Post holding exercises in the Opera House, at which Justice A. B. Cowles, of Rye, was the speaker.

At Yonkers the day was observed by Kitching Post and Fremont Post. The members decorated the monument and graves in the cemetery. In the evening there were exercises in the Opera House, at which Charles E. Corton presided. The Rev. Charles E. Allison delivered the oration. The programme included singing and reading.

Haudreau Post, of New-Rochelle, received Rice Post, No. 29, Commander Babcock, of New-York City, and the two posts, headed by the New-Rochelle Cornet Band, marched to Beechwood Cemetery, where the soldiers' graves were decorated. In the evening a memorial service was held in the Town Hall. The school children of New-Rochelle furnished the flowers with which the graves were decorated.

At Mamaroneck there was a parade of the Fire Department, which entertained several visiting companies. After marching through the principal streets the firemen and their guests went to Pleasant Grove, where a picnic was held. During the evening there was a display of fireworks.

SERVICES AT LONG ISLAND CITY CEMETERIES.

Memorial Day was appropriately observed in Long Island City. Nearly all the civic organizations turned out with the Grand Army posts. Sheridan Post marched down Jackson and Vernon aves., laden with flowers with which to decorate the graves of comrades who have answered the last call. There were public services at Lutheran Cemetery and private services were held at all the Long Island City cemeteries. The graves of P. S. Gilmore, the Rev. Father Riordan and General Michael Corcoran in Calvary Cemetery, received special attention. A large rose in an earthen pot was placed in front of the tomb of John Kelly. Company D, of the 69th Regiment, under command of Lieutenant Farley, decorated the graves of their comrades in Calvary.

PATRIOTISM IN MOUNT VERNON.

The people of Mount Vernon never entered into the ceremonies appropriate to Memorial Day more universally nor with more earnest zest than yesterday. They testified their appreciation for the patriotism and loyalty of the soldiers, sailors and marines of 1861-65, both the living and the dead, in every possible manner. Soon after sunrise there was scarcely a home which did not have bunting of some sort displayed, and Second-ave., Prospect-ave. and Fourth-ave. were most conspicuous with the Stars and Stripes. The comrades of Farnsworth Post raised and saluted "Old Glory" on the immense flag-pole at Fourth-ave. and First-st. at sunrise, and then delegations went to old St. Paul's Cemetery at Eastchester, Woodlawn, Trinity and Bronxville cemeteries to decorate the graves of old comrades with flowers and potted plants. At 10 a. m. Captain Armstrong, with a small delegation of Farnsworth's veterans, assisted at the ceremonies at the Soldier's Monument, in the Valentine Street Park, in front of the home of Postmaster Huss, ex-lieutenant-colonel of a Connecticut regiment. About seventy-five pupils from the Fifth-ave. grammar school, under the direction of George E. Nichols, principal, sang patriotic songs and gave recitations.

In the evening the silver anniversary of the Grand Army of the Republic was celebrated with an entertainment in the Reformed Chapel, in Fifth-ave. Commander William Wilson presided. The Rev. Dr. F. M. S. Taylor, rector of the Church of the Ascension, made an address; John Berry, one of the leading merchants, recited "Sheridan's Ride"; the Rev. Dr. W. S. Coffey, rector of St. Paul's Church, gave some reminiscences of Lieutenant Allen, an officer on the gunboat Mount Vernon, to whom was presented a sword by the citizens of Mount Vernon for his bravery when under fire of the rebel artillery and sharpshooters on the Nansemond River, early in 1863, and also when the vessel was cut out from under the guns at Fort Fisher, in August, 1863. The sword is now one of the relics of Farnsworth Post. There was singing by a chorus of about 100 girls and boys.

EDWARD F. M'DONALD MONUMENT UNVEILED.

The monument to Congressman Edward F. McDonald, of Hudson County, N. J., who died in the political campaign last fall, was unveiled yesterday at 2 p. m., in the cemetery of the Holy Sepulchre, Newark, in the presence of a large throng of people. The ceremonies were in charge of Zabriskie Post of Jersey City. Mrs. McDonald and her children rode in the parade of the post from the railroad station to the cemetery. The religious exercises were conducted by the Rev. Maurice P. O'Connor, of the Church of the Holy Cross in Harrison, and Congressman Amos J. Cummings delivered the oration. The Amphion Quartet of New-York sang dirges. Congressman Fiedler, of Hudson County, presented the monument to Zabriskie Post, and the post held military exercises. The monument is a shaft of Quincy granite fourteen feet high, the main base being five feet square of rock-faced stone. The second base, nearly four feet square, is of polished granite. The top of the shaft is surmounted with a cap and cross of granite.

VETERANS AND CHILDREN MARCH IN NEWARK.

One of the largest parades ever held in Newark was the feature of Memorial Day as observed there yesterday morning. All the Grand Army posts turned out with full ranks. The Essex Cavalry Troop, following a battalion of 100 police, had the right of the line. One thousand school children, carrying flags, marched in the procession, also a division of the Sons of Veterans and the uniformed letter-carriers. The line of march was crowded with spectators.

After the parade the various posts sent details with wagons of flowers and potted plants to the cemeteries to decorate the graves. Business was generally suspended, and the day was observed as a holiday.

MEMORIAL DAY IN WASHINGTON.

VETERANS DECORATE THE GRAVES OF ALL THEIR FALLEN COMRADES.

Washington, May 30.—Decoration Day in Washington opened with beautiful weather, although the heavy rains of yesterday had made the ground damp. At an early hour the processions began forming at the different G. A. R. headquarters, and at noon the programmes at the different cemeteries were under full headway. The largest crowd was at the National Cemetery at Arlington, where the most elaborate programme was carried out. A National salute was fired by a light battery of the 4th Artillery at noon, which was the signal for the formation of the procession. Headed by the Marine Band, playing a dirge the first halt was made at the granite "Tomb of the Unknown." After this spot had been properly decorated the procession proceeded through the cemetery, the different bodies separating and covering all the graves with flowers. After honoring the 14,000 dead heroes, the immense audience gathered in the amphitheatre, where a carefully selected programme of music and addresses was gone through with. William E. Simonds was the orator of the day. An incident of the day was the decoration of the graves of Generals Rufus Ingalls and W. W. Belknap by Major W. C. Duxbury, an ex-Confederate.

At the Soldiers' Home Cemetery the veterans took a prominent part. The music was by the 4th Artillery band and the oration was by Benjamin Butterworth. At Congressional Cemetery the Rev. Dr. George L. Spining, of New-York, delivered the oration. The heroes who sleep in the smaller cemeteries were not neglected, but at all places were duly honored.

President Cleveland came into town from his suburban home just before 11 o'clock, and his carriage was halted a few moments to allow the rear of the Grand Army procession to pass up the avenue on its way to Arlington. The President spent the afternoon quietly at the White House, the doors of which were closed to the public.

A CORNERSTONE LAID BY VETERANS.

Chicago, May 30.—Memorial Day was made the occasion for laying the cornerstone of the new Public Library in Dearborn Park, in which the Grand Army of the Republic will have a memorial hall. The ceremony was performed according to the Grand Army ritual. In the forenoon the Blue and the Gray joined in paying tribute to fallen comrades, and in the afternoon there was a parade, which was conceded to be the finest Memorial Day demonstration ever seen in this city. The procession was reviewed by General Miles and staff, and the chief marshal and department commander of the G. A. R. Business was generally suspended, and the streets along the line of march were packed by thousands of people.

A MONUMENT DEDICATED AT ASBURY PARK.

Asbury Park, N. J., May 30 (Special).—Fully 15,000 people gathered here to-day to participate with the veteran and civic organizations in the dedication of the monument erected by the local Grand Army post to the memory of the soldiers and sailors who fell in the late war. The monument is an imposing shaft of granite, thirty feet high, surmounted by a life-size statue in bronze of a soldier at "parade rest," the gift of Comrade George Potts. Before the dedication of the monument there was a parade through the principal streets of the town. The services at the unveiling of the statue were interesting and impressive. Following the opening address by Commander Van Sant, of C. K. Hall Post, No. 41, and the singing of patriotic airs by the Mendelssohn Union and a chorus of 200 school children, came the oration of the day by Past Department Commander Frank O. Cole, of Jersey City; an address by Past Department Commander Charles Burrows, of Rutherford, and the dedication of the monument by Department Commander H. L. Hartshorn, of Camden. The exercises concluded with the benediction by the Rev. George C. Maddock, of Trenton. General E. Burd Grubb, who was to have made an address, was detained by the illness of his wife.

In the evening a memorial service was held in Educational Hall.

OBSERVANCES IN VARIOUS PLACES.

Trenton, N. J., May 30.—Memorial Day was appropriately observed here. The graves of General McClellan, General Gershom Mott and John A. Roebling, all in Riverview Cemetery, received special attention. The floral designs placed on "Little Mac's" tomb were unusually beautiful.

Saratoga, N. Y., May 30.—Decoration Day opened here by a parade of Grand Army posts and local militia. McKeon Post held memorial services in the cottage on Mount McGregor where General Grant died.

St. Louis, May 30.—Numerous G. A. R. posts paraded the principal streets of the city this afternoon, and memorial services were held at the cemeteries. The services at the National Cemetery at Jefferson Barracks, where 16,000 Union soldiers are buried, were unusually solemn and impressive.

FOREIGN OFFICERS PARTICIPATE.

Philadelphia, May 30.—The weather to-day was delightful, and as usual in Philadelphia when Decoration Day is bright, there was a general and enthusiastic observance of the day. An unusual feature was the participation in the exercises of seventeen officers from the Russian flagship Dimitri Donskoi and her consort, the Rynda, and five officers from the Austrian corvette Frundsberg. At the Lincoln monument, in Fairmount Park, ex-Postmaster-General Wanamaker delivered an address. At Laurel Hill Cemetery there were impressive services over the grave of General George G. Meade by the Grand Army post bearing his name.
