SELECTIONS FROM THE MAIL.

MADISON ON FEDERAL ELECTIONS.

HIS EMPHATIC APPROVAL OF GOVERNMENT OVERSIGHT OF THEM.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

Sir: The repeal of the Federal Election law is demanded by the Democracy on the plea that the law is unconstitutional and undemocratic. As proof that the Constitution confers on Congress full power over Congressional elections, I quote from the remarks of James Madison in the convention which formed the Constitution. The Constitution provides that "the times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof, but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations except as to the places of choosing Senators."

In the debates in the convention Mr. Madison said concerning this clause:

The necessity of a general government supposes that the State Legislatures will sometimes fail or refuse to consult the common interests at the expense of their local conveniences or prejudices. . . . This view of the question seems to decide that the Legislatures of the States ought not to have the uncontrolled right of regulating the times, places and manner of holding elections. . . . What danger could there be in giving a controlling power to the National Legislature? Of whom was it to consist? First, of a Senate to be chosen by the State Legislatures. If the latter, therefore, could be trusted, their representatives could not be dangerous. Secondly, of Representatives, elected by the same people who elect the State Legislatures. Surely, then, if confidence is due to the latter, it must be due to the former. It seemed as improper in principle, though it might be less inconvenient in practice, to give to the State Legislatures this great authority over the election of the Representatives of the people in the general Legislature as it would be to give to the latter a like power over the election of their representatives in the State Legislatures.

Mr. Madison was one of the leading spirits in framing the Constitution of the United States and in urging its adoption by the people. He was a stickler through life for State rights, so far as was consistent with the Constitution of his country; and having been twice elected President by the Democrats, his Democracy cannot be called in question. Can it reasonably be supposed that if in Congress now, he would vote to deny the Congress the right to provide the manner of electing its own members?

In reference to the same subject, Mr. Hamilton said, in convention:

I am greatly mistaken if there be any article in the whole plan more completely defensible than this. Its propriety rests upon the evidence of this plain proposition, that every government ought to contain in itself the means of its own preservation.

Mr. Madison and Mr. Hamilton disagreed on many points, but it appears they were one on the subject of Congressional elections. We venture to state that there is no legislative body on the face of the earth, except the Congress of the United States, that does not make full provision for the election of its own members. The esteemed "Sun" and "World" of this city claim to be great sticklers for Democratic principles; dare they quote the clause in the Constitution on the subject of Congressional elections, with Mr. Madison's remarks thereon?

THE FARMERS AND PROTECTION.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: As an interested reader of your valuable paper, allow me to express my approval of the very able manner in which The Tribune is keeping before the farmers of the country the importance of the McKinley tariff law. This law, in a direct way, was the first one of the kind ever enacted which gave farmers protection against foreign farm products, and it belongs to farmers to maintain this law at all hazards.

The farmers of the United States were the last class to look after their interests in the way of protection, and for this alone did their business languish; but they awakened at last, and through their granger organization they asked for protection such as other industries had, and they obtained it. It was the Republican party which gave them this law, but before its beneficial effect had been demonstrated this party was overthrown, and now the party in power is threatening to destroy this law.

Be it said with shame to many farmers they were instrumental with their votes in bringing this dire calamity about. Many of the farmers of the country, to use a familiar phrase, "were hard up," and the demagogue, taking advantage of their condition, howled through the land that it was the "robber tariff" which was the cause. These disturbers of business got in their work, and the "change" which they advocated and for which by far too many voted came. This "change," in the place of bringing prosperity, has brought business disaster and suffering. The first is upon the country to-day with full force, but the latter is just beginning to be felt. In this beautiful country seat the manufacturing establishments have nearly all shut down, and hundreds of men who are willing to work are out of employment. The surrounding country is one of the best on earth, where all kinds of grain, vegetables and fruits are grown in abundance. From these farms, orchards and vineyards came the produce which fed the workmen who worked in these establishments. On market days it is nothing unusual to see the farmers going back to their farms with much of their products unsold. The hard times are just beginning to be felt by the farmers, and don't for one moment forget that they are doing some thinking. The Tribune and the able writings of that champion of protection, Roswell G. Horr, are doing much to aid them in the study which will ultimately solve this question, and when the time for action comes the farmers of the United States will be in line, ready to hurl from power for the last time the party which has caused all of this disturbance and suffering.

LET THE PEOPLE SPEAK.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: Thank you for the good article, "Let Workingmen Petition," and also for hundreds of others on the right side. I wish to ask where is public opinion in this country? Here business and industries are water-logged, shops are closed, men are out of work, while the party in power does nothing, seems to care little, intent only on securing itself in place by trickery and fraud in State and Federal elections. Their intent is open as Beelzebub's. Yet in view of all these threatened evils, what do the people say, and will they act? Are we slaves, or effeminate, to be bound hand and foot? Why, even in the Old World people make their influence felt, and monarchs pause or modify their course.

Look at the tariff question. Men are idle, families are suffering, in consequence of this threatened change. One man must have his own way, if the country tumbles into ruins. A few visionaries and theorists shape the financial policy of the Government, and business men stand stolidly by, like weaklings. Where are the leaders? Who dare tear off this Democratic mask and set this party of secession and slavery and anarchy and fraud forth in its true light? How far are we today from Buchanan and 1860? The people truckled and trifled then, and the war was the price we paid.

Unless the people keep watch and ward, and elect patriotic men and God-fearing, De Tocqueville's prophecy will come true, and even the American Republic will fall to pieces.

HOW THE LOCOMOTIVES SHOULD RACE.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: Referring to the statement on the editorial page of to-day's issue of your paper that a tenmile race between the English locomotive The Empress and the New-York Central locomotive No. 999 is going to take place, I desire to submit a suggestion.

Both machines were built to draw loads. They cannot be placed in their element and a proper comparison of their respective speeds had without the addition to each of a train of cars. The only fair and reasonable way in which to test the machines as locomotives—regarding them as useful, and not merely as playthings—is to place behind each a complement of cars corresponding, as nearly as may be, to the load that the machine was intended or accustomed to draw. To make the test accurate and complete, English carriages should be hauled by the English locomotive, and the place of trial should be the tracks of the Pennsylvania road, from Pittsburg 117 miles eastward to Altoona. If this course should be chosen, however, No. 999 would hardly do to represent the nation.

I presume that considerations based on the Fair will prevent the holding of such a contest away from Chicago, and it is not probable that English carriages are to be had for the purpose; but it should be insisted on, as an absolute condition, that both machines should carry weight.

DEFECTIVE INSANITY LAWS.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

Sir: Such cases as that of David J. Solomon are likely to occur so long as our present insanity laws remain on the statute books. With our defective system, there is nothing to prevent any sane man being placed in a lunatic asylum provided two physicians can be hired to pronounce him insane. This, of course, is not a difficult thing to do. The signing of the order by a judge is, in most cases, merely a formality, and is of no protective value.

This state of things could be remedied in this way. Let a law be passed giving a man on trial for his sanity a right to a jury trial. Let three competent physicians be called by the State to give their opinion, compelling the State to pay them a fair compensation for their services. In case they accept bribes for their professional opinions, punish them by from ten to twenty years' imprisonment. Allow no other physicians to be called as experts. Some radical changes such as these are absolutely necessary to protect sane men from asylums, some of which undoubtedly contain many rational inmates.

CELEBRATING THE YEAR 1900.

THE FRENCH HAVE PRE-EMPTED THAT DATE FOR THEIR NEXT WORLD'S FAIR.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: In your issue of yesterday your correspondent from Vergennes, Vt., who signs himself S., in a patriotic and well considered communication sets forth his reasons for advocating the holding of a great World's Fair at New-York in the year 1900. His opening propositions are undoubtedly true that "the civilized world will wish to celebrate grandly the year 1900, to mark the ending of the nineteenth and beginning of the twentieth century, and that the only way in which the whole world can celebrate such an event is by a great World's Fair."

While your correspondent is of the opinion that some people may consider it too early to discuss this subject, I regret to inform him that in fact it is now too late to consider the matter. In 1891 the German Government carefully considered the advisability of holding a great World's Fair at Berlin during the latter part of this century. After considerable discussion it was concluded that no great fair could successfully be arranged before the year 1900, and it was determined to introduce into the German Reichstag a bill directing that preparations be made for holding a great World's Fair at Berlin during that year. The day after the news of this enterprise reached Paris there appeared in the columns of the "Figaro" a signed editorial calling upon the French people to protect their rights and to maintain inviolable their claim to the year 1900 as the date upon which they were entitled to have the next great World's Fair held in Paris. The article set forth that it had been recognized by custom and established by precedent that a World's Fair should be held at Paris every eleven years, notably in the years 1867, 1878 and 1889, and that consequently the year 1900 belonged to the French people to celebrate in this manner.

The following day a bill to this effect was introduced into the French Parliament, and without opposition became a law. Thus while the Germans were deliberating about the details, the French people proceeded at once to business and pre-empted the year 1900 as their own rightful property. After the passage of this act by the French Parliament, the Germans, considering that there was not sufficient time for them to arrange properly for holding a World's Fair between the date of the Chicago Fair and the date selected by the French Government for holding a World's Fair at Paris, abandoned the scheme.

While entirely agreeing with your correspondent that New-York will be the proper place at which to hold the next and greatest World's Fair that is held in America, I regret to say that the date upon which it can be held must be placed, by reason of previous engagements, at some reasonable period after the advent of the next century.

LASKER WINS THE FIRST PRIZE.

SCORES IN YESTERDAY'S PLAY IN THE CHESS TOURNAMENT AT BROOKLYN.

Lasker won the first prize of the chess tournament yesterday at Brooklyn. He defeated Showalter in a Ruy Lopez after thirty-three moves, registering eleven straight games. No other competitor can reach this total. Albin beat Lee in a counter centre gambit after twenty-nine moves; Taubenhaus disposed of Jasnogrodsky, in an irregular opening, after forty moves; Gossip and Olly divided honors, the game, a Ruy Lopez, lasting for fifty-nine moves; Schmidt suffered defeat at the hands of Haubans in a Einoco Piano after fifty-nine moves, while Ryan drew a Ruy Lopez against Delmar, after sixty-nine moves.

The game between Pollock and Pillsbury stands adjournetd, while Delmar and Gossip finished an adjourned game, which ended in a draw after eighty moves.

THE WEATHER REPORT.

FAIR WEATHER GENERALLY FOR TO-DAY.

Washington, Oct. 14.—The West India cyclone, central Friday evening over Northern Virginia, has advanced north of the St. Lawrence River, attended by heavy rains and severe gales in the Middle Atlantic and New-England States and the eastern lake region. An area of high barometer has moved southeast over the Southwestern States, and the barometer is high thence to Manitoba. The temperature has fallen in the central valleys, the lake regions and the Middle Atlantic States; elsewhere it has risen. Generally fair weather has prevailed in the central valleys and thence to the Pacific. Fair weather is indicated generally over the United States for Sunday, except from the eastern lake region over Northern New-England, where fair weather will be preceded by rains. The temperature will fall in the Middle Atlantic and New-England States and will be somewhat higher in the central valleys and the western lake region.

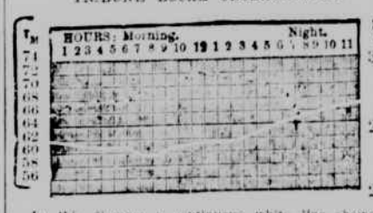
DETAILED FORECAST FOR TO-DAY.

For New-England and Eastern New-York, fair preceded by rain in extreme Northern portions of Maine, New-Hampshire, Vermont and Eastern New-York; cooler; brisk and high west winds, diminishing in force.

For District of Columbia, Eastern Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia fair; cooler; west winds.

For West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania, Western New-York and Ohio, fair, except clearing near the lakes in the early morning; west winds diminishing in force.

TRIBUNE LOCAL OBSERVATIONS.



In this diagram a continuous white line shows the changes in pressure as indicated by The Tribune's self-recording barometer. The broken line represents the temperature as observed at Perry's Pharmacy.

Tribune Office, Oct. 15, 1 a. m.—The weather yesterday was slightly cloudy with high winds. The temperature ranged between 58 and 72 degrees, the average (67) being 1½ lower than on Friday and 2½ higher than on the corresponding day last year.

In and near this city to-day the weather will probably be fair and cooler with high west winds.

"Have you registered?" is the question which every good Republican should ask his fellow Republicans when he meets them on the street, in railroad cars or at places of business now days. Next Wednesday, October 18, is the next day of registration.
