THE GRAND JURY AT WORK.

LOOKING INTO THE CRIMINAL WRECKING OF THE MADISON SQUARE BANK.

CHARLES M. PRESTON A WITNESS—EXPECTATION THAT THE INDICTMENTS WILL BE HANDED IN TO-MORROW—AN ORDER GRANTED DISSOLVING THE DEFUNCT INSTITUTION.

The Grand Jury yesterday begun its examination into the affairs of the Madison Square Bank, with a view to fixing the criminal responsibility for the mismanagement of it. District-Attorney Nicoll and his assistant, Vernon M. Davis, who has had direct charge of the case, went before the body in the morning and explained the scope and object of the investigation. The only witnesses examined were Charles M. Preston, superintendent of the State Banking Department, and Lewis Thompson, the cashier. It is expected that the Grand Jury will spend to-day and to-morrow looking into the evidence, and hand in indictments to-morrow. It will begin work at 10 a. m. to-day, an hour earlier than usual, so as to finish the cases by to-morrow.

Thompson will not be prosecuted. He has given Mr. Davis valuable assistance in looking into the accounts of the bank. In fact, without his aid Mr. Davis could not have unravelled the tangled affairs unless he had employed an expert accountant. Thompson was arrested with the other directors. Mr. Nicoll said yesterday that Thompson's acts were done merely in obedience to his superiors. He had a large family and his salary was small, so he could not afford to disobey orders. Besides, he gained nothing by the peculiar transactions of the bank.

Mr. Nicoll said he would pay no further attention to the charge that efforts were made to obtain a settlement with the directors through threats of criminal prosecution until the Grand Jury finished its present task.

Deputy Attorney-General Hogan moved for a dissolution of the Madison Square Bank yesterday before Judge Beach in the Supreme Court. The officers of the bank opposed the motion. A. C. Judson, bank examiner, made affidavit that the liabilities of the bank exceeded the assets by $80,000 when the stock was reckoned among the liabilities. The value of the assets on August 1, 1893, was $1,612,202 86, while the liabilities amounted to $1,933,679 67, leaving a deficit of $371,476 81.

Judge Beach signed the order dissolving the bank and making the temporary receivers permanent, requiring them to file a bond for $200,000. Any money that they collect must be deposited in the Central Trust Company, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, State Trust Company, Mechanics and Traders' Bank, Broadway National Bank or the National Union Bank.

Frederick Uhlmann, one of the directors of the Madison Square Bank, sent a letter to The Tribune yesterday, in regard to the statement from Samuel Untermeyer, published yesterday. In it Mr. Uhlmann said: "The statement from Mr. Untermeyer in its references to me and my connection with the Madison Square Bank, is false. He says that on Saturday evening, August 5, I knew the bank was insolvent, 'had decided that it ought to be closed,' that I 'had consulted counsel with respect to closing the bank,' that I and Mr. McDonald 'were in charge of the bank for the week preceding its failure.' Each of these statements is false. I did not know that the bank was insolvent before its suspension. I had not decided that it ought to be closed, and had not consulted counsel with respect to closing it. I did not, either alone or with Mr. McDonald, have charge of the bank at any time preceding the failure.

"Mr. Untermeyer says the deposits of Monday and Tuesday, aggregating about $90,000, 'assisted Uhlmann in drawing out his $50,000 of the East River Bridge Company' and also some money of a corporation which was drawn out by my brother. Mr. Untermeyer knew when he made that statement that the deposits of those two days had nothing to do with those checks; that not a cent of those deposits went to pay them; that, in fact, the bank has not paid a dollar on account of or because of those checks unless the receivers paid yesterday or to-day 25 per cent as a dividend, and that the fund for depositors or payments to creditors has not been diminished because of those checks by the millionth part of a cent. Those checks were honest, legal and proper checks, and he knows it."

THE OLD "TOBACCO PLACE" SOLD.

AMERICAN SURETY COMPANY THE PURCHASER OF THE SOUTHEAST CORNER OF BROADWAY AND PINE-ST.

John Anderson's old place, on the southeast corner of Broadway and Pine-st., known to many old New-Yorkers as "the tobacco place," was sold on Tuesday for about $400,000. The corner has been famous among "lovers of the weed" as the place where old John Anderson, who supplied General Winfield S. Scott with tinfoil-covered packages of tobacco, for many years had his place of business. Before moving to this corner Anderson had a store in the basement of the old Trinity building. He had a lease on this place, and when Trinity Corporation wanted to rebuild he got so much money for giving up his lease that he bought the corner at Pine-st. and Broadway, on which stands an old-fashioned brick building. In this place he amassed a great fortune, and after his death there were many contests over his will.

This property remained as a part of the estate until the recent settlement. It was offered for sale a few months ago for $375,000, but on Tuesday it was sold for about $400,000 to the American Surety Company and the State Trust Company, which owns the adjoining property. The property has 22.4 feet in Broadway and 64.5 feet in Pine-st., in all about 1,500 square feet. This makes about $266 for a square foot. This is the highest price ever paid in this city for real estate with the exception of the small strip in Wall-st. which gives the Mills Building an entrance in that street, when $320 a square foot was paid. It is proposed by the new owners of the property in Pine-st. and Broadway to erect a twelve-story modern office building.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society on Tuesday purchased the building and site of the Clearing House at Nassau and Pine sts. The lot has 26.7 feet in Nassau-st. and 93.3 feet in Pine-st. The price paid for this property is not known, but it is thought to be between $600,000 and $700,000.

A CRANK IN THE CHICAGO CITY HALL.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—There was a lively scene in Corporation Counsel Kraus's office in the City Hall this afternoon. A rough-looking man, who was known to none of the officials, rushed into the office and demanded an immediate audience with Mr. Kraus. Special Officer Dickson told the visitor that he could not see the Corporation Counsel at that time, whereupon the fellow became much excited and declared that he would shoot everybody full of holes who dared to interfere with him. Fearing that the man might be a crank who had designs on Mr. Kraus, Officer Dickson seized him and hurried him down to the Central Station, where he gave the name of Charles McCluntick, and said he was a painter. No weapons were found on his person. He was locked up.

DYNAMITE FOUND ON A NIAGARA RIVER ISLAND.

Buffalo, Nov. 22.—Grand Island, in the Niagara River, is in a state of excitement over the discovery of 200 pounds of dynamite which had been buried at the head of the island. Two young men, while hunting yesterday, found footprints which were comparatively fresh, and next a plot of newly turned earth. They dug down and came across a barrel containing three cases, each of which held fifty one-pound packages of dynamite. Near the barrel was buried another one of the cases. How the dynamite came there is a mystery. Some think that it was concealed by smugglers, and others are of the opinion that it was placed there for some future use by persons having improper purposes in view.

THE VALIANT TO SAIL TO-DAY.

MR. VANDERBILT'S YACHT READY FOR SEA, AND ONLY WAITING FOR HER OWNER AND HIS GUESTS.

William K. Vanderbilt's sturdy steam yacht Valiant did not sail yesterday, as was expected, but will start on her long voyage to-day. Her officers and crew are all on board, her bunkers are filled with coal, her sails bent, and everything is in readiness for a start at the moment the owner and his guests come on board. The Valiant, at her pier at West Fiftieth-st., yesterday afternoon, attracted an interested crowd. Her yards were squared with mathematical precision, her decks were as white as holystoning could make them, every bit of brasswork was polished till it shone, and the ropes were carefully laid in Flemish coils on her decks. Not one speck of dirt marred her white sides. On board the men were at ease, but man-o'-war discipline prevailed, and the scene was one to delight a sailor's eye. A thin wreath of black smoke rising from the yacht's yellow funnel showed that the great engines in her hold were ready to respond to any demands made upon them, and the stewards—two of them—were ready to emulate the example set by the engines.

Captain Henry Morrison, who will command the handsome vessel during her voyage, was ashore when a Tribune reporter stepped on board yesterday afternoon. Chief Officer John C. B. Andersen was in charge, and he said that the yacht could sail at a moment's notice. What her first port would be he could not say, but it is probable that Gibraltar will first be visited.

Mr. Vanderbilt drove down to the dock at 2 o'clock yesterday, accompanied by some friends, and went on board his yacht, where he remained for a short time.

He then announced his intention of sailing to-day, and it is probable that the lines will be cast off at 10 o'clock a. m. Oliver H. P. Belmont, Winthrop Rutherfurd, J. L. Webb, Frederick O. Beach and Dr. E. L. Keyes will be Mr. Vanderbilt's guests on the trip.

The Valiant carries a crew of twenty-five able seamen, most of them Scandinavians. Besides these men, there are the engine and fire room crews, stewards and cooks, which swell the number of men on board to seventy-two. The first officer is John B. C. Andersen, and the chief engineer is Walter Wilcox. Four assistant engineers are also carried. Two stewards will look out for the comfort of Mr. Vanderbilt and his guests, and a French chef will see that only toothsome dishes are served.

The Valiant is a twin-screw steamship. She is 331 feet long and 236 feet on the load-water line. Her beam is 39 feet, and depth of hold 26 feet. She draws 16½ feet. Triple-expansion engines will propel the yacht, and should they fail, her sail power can force her through the water at twelve knots an hour. The vessel has two twenty-three-inch cylinders, two thirty-six-inch, and two fifty-one-inch, and is to-day the most capable and luxurious private yacht afloat. Her captain formerly had charge of the Alva, which was sunk by a collision nearly two years ago.

SHE PROVED THAT SHE COULD CLIMB.

From The Kennebec Journal.

Early risers in the Old Town last Sunday were favored with the sight of a woman climbing the ladders of the staging of a chimney 105 feet high, which had recently been erected on a mill in that town. The cause of this sudden rise in life is said to be the result of a wager between the climber, who is a cook in a hotel, and the landlady, that if she would climb to the top of the chimney the landlady would cook the dinner for her, which she did. It was rather a peculiar way of securing a holiday, and we believe the average person would rather go without one than to secure it in this way.
