THEY WANT TO BE SOLDIERS OR SAILORS.

COMPETITIVE EXAMINATIONS IN CONGRESSMAN QUIGG'S DISTRICT FOR THE APPOINTMENTS TO WEST POINT AND ANNAPOLIS.

The competitive examination of candidates for appointment, one each, with alternates, to the West Point Military Academy and the Annapolis Naval Academy, by Congressman Lemuel E. Quigg, of the XIVth District, was held in the upper assembly room of Public School No. 87, at Amsterdam-ave. and Seventy-seventh-st., yesterday. Only residents of the district are allowed to compete for the positions.

When Mr. Quigg decided to throw the appointments open to competition, he requested John L. N. Hunt, ex-president of the Board of Education, to conduct the examinations, and Mr. Hunt chose as a board of examiners Brother Baldwin, of the Manhattanville College, and assistant superintendents of public schools, who were hard at work from 9:30 a. m. till a late hour last evening.

Of the fifty-one applicants who were physically competent forty presented themselves before the examiners to undergo the educational test, and a finer or more intelligent assemblage of healthy, well-built boys would be difficult, if not impossible, to find. They came from public and parochial schools, military institutes and private academies, and were all neatly dressed, some being in uniform. All were of excellent deportment.

Mr. Quigg, who was present at the opening of the examinations, complimented the candidates and addressed them in a happy vein. He said it gave him great pleasure to be able to afford them an opportunity to compete for such desirable appointments. The position of a cadet of either the Naval or Military academy, both before and after being graduated, was a highly honorable one. Mr. Quigg assured the candidates that the examinations would be conducted in a perfectly fair and impartial manner, and that it was his own personal desire to have the best material in the district represented in the two academies. He then said a few words of consolation in advance for those who should fail to gain the coveted prize, and was enthusiastically applauded.

The examiners were utterly unaware of the name or personal indentity of any of the candidates. The questions of the examiners and the answers of the candidates were all written, there being no oral examinations. Beginning with forty candidates the number steadily dwindled as one after another failed. During the long, wearisome hours of the examinations the examiners and competitors were made as comfortable as possible by Edward H. Boyer, the principal of School No. 87, who hospitably provided them with a substantial luncheon.

The examiners finished their work at 8 p. m., and decided upon the candidates and alternates, but declined to disclose their names, as they deemed it their duty to report them only to Mr. Quigg, who was absent from his home.

IN HONOR OF JAMES M'CREERY.

When James McCreery heard 300 of his employes cheer him and cheer again and again, and then sing in hearty chorus: "For he's a jolly good fellow," he reaped part of the reward due him who becomes the friend of those he employs. This he heard last night at the St. Denis Hotel, where, to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the firm of James McCreery & Co., those in his employ entertained him at a dinner and reception.

The dinner was served at the Colonial dining-room, which was handsomely decorated for the occasion. After a good dinner had been disposed of Mr. McCreery received the congratulations of those present, and then Hanford Crawford, who presided, after reading congratulatory telegrams from friends in this country and in Europe, introduced Mr. McCreery, who in a happy vein related the main incidents in his business career from the time when he became a clerk in a Baltimore store at nothing a year till the present time, dwelling on the fact that in all that time he had always been the champion of high-grade goods and clean business methods.

Addresses were also made by his partners, Thomas Rosevear and J. Crawford McCreery, and by Short McMaster, Robert Lewis, Miss Dodman and P. Carey.

A handsome silver bowl was presented to Mr. McCreery appropriately inscribed.

Among those present were the Rev. G. S. Payson, K. S. McCreery, W. J. McCreery, William Johnston, O. D. Kremm, R. Johnston, D. O. Jones, D. Downey, H. Mathers, C. Storie, T. J. Conway, T. J. Soden, O. D. Ackerman, J. J. Poggi, Charles Moore, A. W. Allinwood, Miss Heath, Miss Forsyth, Mrs. Scanlon, Miss Comerford, Miss Dodman, Miss Fitzgerald, Miss Kenny and Mrs. Swan.

THE WEATHER REPORT.

HIGH PRESSURE MOVING SOUTHWARD.

The depression, which was central over Colorado this morning, has moved slowly northeastward, and is now central over Northwestern Nebraska as a well defined disturbance, extending from Texas northward over the Dakotas. An area of high pressure has moved southward over the northern part of the Lake regions, and a second area of high pressure extends over the plateau region and the Pacific Coast. Showers have prevailed to-day from New-England and the Middle Atlantic coast westward over the Lake regions, and in Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska. Fair weather continues in the Southern States. It is warmer throughout the Southern States and Central Valleys. It is colder in the Lake regions, New-York and Western New-England, and is also colder in Western Texas, New-Mexico and Arizona. Warmer, fair weather will probably continue in the Southern States and local thunderstorms and cooler weather are indicated from the Middle Atlantic States westward to the Missouri Valley. The conditions are favorable for severe local storms in the States of the Central Missouri Valley.

Rivers.—At New-Orleans the river has remained stationary at 13.2 feet, and is 0.2 foot above the danger line. The river at La Crosse has risen 0.2 foot to 11 feet, and is 1 foot above the danger line.

DETAILED FORECAST FOR TO-DAY.

For Maine and New-Hampshire, cooler, fair weather, preceded by showers on the coast Saturday night; north winds.

For Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, showers, followed by clearing weather; cooler; north winds.

For Eastern New-York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, thunderstorms, followed by fair weather; cooler; north winds.

For North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, continued fair weather and southwest winds.

For Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Eastern Texas, fair, except probable showers on the coast; southeast winds.

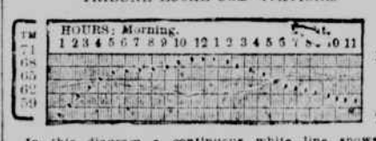
For the District of Columbia, Maryland and Delaware, conditions are favorable for local thunderstorms, but the weather will be fair during the greater portion of the day; winds shifting to east, slightly cooler.

For Virginia, fair in south, local showers in north portions; variable winds.

For Western Pennsylvania, local thunderstorms, followed by clearing weather; northeast winds; cooler in south portion.

For Ohio and Indiana, local thunderstorms; winds shifting east; cooler, except in northern Indiana.

TRIBUNE LOCAL OBSERVATIONS.



In this diagram a continuous white line shows the changes in pressure as indicated by The Tribune's self-recording barometer. The broken line represents the temperature as observed at Perry's Pharmacy.

Tribune Office, April 29, 1 a. m.—Cloudy, with frequent showers; slightly cooler than yesterday. The temperature ranged between 59 and 71 degrees, the average (65½) being 7½ degrees higher than corresponding day last year.

The weather to-day is likely to be cooler with showers in the early morning and fair weather in the afternoon.
