DISCUSSING MISSION WORK.

THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION'S CONVENTION OPENS AT LOWELL—PRESIDENT GATES'S ADDRESS.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 23.—The Convention of the American Missionary Association of Congregational Churches opened here at 3 o'clock this afternoon, with 300 delegates present. After the singing of "Coronation" and a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Horton, of Providence, President Gates, of Amherst College, who is also president of the association, introduced Mayor Pickman, of Lowell, who welcomed the members of the association.

The Mayor was followed by President Gates, who responded for the association, saying in part:

Who can say, in view of the rapidity with which the prospects of the great empire of China have changed within these last few months, how important and far-reaching in shaping the future of that great race may prove to be the work so modestly yet so effectively done by this association among the Chinese on our Western shore? Our work for the Indians is a work for another one of the race stocks of the world. And no American who loves his own race can fail to feel an interest in the work undertaken by this association among the mountain whites in the South. The work of a missionary association which touches China, Africa and America as directly as does our work must broaden the conceptions and the sympathies of all the Christians who take an interest in it. This is distinctly an American society. Its aims are truly American. Its great work, the lifting up of the negro race in America, is distinctively the great task laid upon American Christianity at the close of this century.

Dr. H. A. Hazen was next chosen permanent secretary. The treasurer's report for the year ending September 30, 1894, was read by H. W. Hubbard. Among the figures were these: Expenditures in the South, Indian, Chinese and foreign missions, $204,810 27; publications, &c., $9,785 34; administration, $34,296 62; total expenditures, $361,802 66. Receipts from churches, estates and other sources, $340,-169 93; endowment funds for 1893-4, $12,693 76; the Daniel Hand educational fund for colored people, income account, $68,964 40; receipts for the work of 1893-4, $404,779 26.

The report of the Executive Committee followed the treasurer's report. It treats first of educational work in the South. Young women from Northern homes, it says, are the teachers. They not only teach, however, but organize and supervise societies of Christian Endeavor, direct prayer-meetings, give Bible instruction, and visit the poor. Dorchester Academy, at McIntosh, Ga., is specified as a typical school. It is in the rice fields. Beginning with one teacher, it now has 413 pupils. In the majority of the schools provision is made for training boys in woodworking. "The educational work in the mountains," says the report, "has kept equal pace with that of the lowlands of the South. The teachers sent out by the Association into this region have been so superior to any others that in not a few instances the school boards of local communities have written asking us to furnish them with teachers for their public schools."

A summary of the work in the South shows that there are six chartered institutions, thirty-six normal and graded schools, forty-two common schools, eighty-four schools, 409 instructors and 12,604 pupils. As to the church work, it is stated that eighteen churches have been added to the list of 170; nine in the Southern lowlands, seven in the mountains, one in the Indian missions and one on the Pacific coast. Many Christian Endeavor societies have been established in Tennessee and Kentucky, and great good is said to have been accomplished. In the Indian field the Church work is reported as especially prosperous. Christian Endeavor societies have also been organized by Indian pupils. Among the Chinese on the Pacific coast, the report states, work has been carried on encouragingly.

The afternoon session closed with a five-minute service of prayer, led by the Rev. Dr. Sheedy. In the evening, after the opening service, the Rev. C. H. Richards, of Philadelphia, preached an eloquent sermon, which was followed by a communion service.

THE MASTERS' CHESS TOURNEY BEGUN

A BIG CROWD GATHERS TO WATCH THE EXPERTS—RESULTS OF THE FIRST DAY'S PLAY.

Much interest was evidenced in yesterday's play of the chess masters' tournament, as arranged by the City Chess Club, for the big ladies' parlor at the Union Square Hotel was crowded with chess players, who were anxious to get a glimpse of the various games. The order of play was as follows:

Hymes vs. Hanham, Albin vs. Rocamora, Delmar vs. Baird, Steinitz vs. Halpern, Jasnogrodsky vs. Pillsbury, Showalter a bye.

Just before the beginning of play at 5 p. m. it was announced that Steinitz has kindly consented to act as a critic of the games, and thus he would daily annotate a game for publication.

Hanham selected a Philidor defence against Hymes, and on developing his pieces rather badly, the young Newark player got decidedly the best of the opening. Hanham still played an indifferent defence, and now Hymes excelled in brilliant and energetic tactics, and won the game after twenty-nine moves.

Albin treated Rocamora to a Zukertort opening and eventually sacrificed the exchange for the sake of an attack. It is, however, doubtful whether Albin could have done anything against a correct defence. In course of subsequent play Rocamora made a few weak moves, and lost after forty-two moves.

Halpern adopted the French defence against champion Steinitz. The latter out-generalled black altogether and after thirty-three moves Halpern resigned.

Jasnogrodsky and Pillsbury also played a Zukertort opening, which was splendidly played on both sides to a certain point. Then the Pole might have gotten winning chances, but he overlooked the proper continuation, got into trouble and lost after forty-three moves.

The game between Delmar and Baird, a Ruy Lopez, stood adjourned after fifty-six moves. With best play Delmar ought to win the game, as he has a pawn to the good.

Appended is the score of the competitors:

	Won.	Lost.		Won.	Lost.
Albin	1½	½	Jasnogrodsky	0	2
Baird	0	0	Pillsbury	1½	½
Delmar	½	½	Rocamora	1	1
Halpern	2	0	Showalter	1	0
Hanham	½	1½	Steinitz	1½	½
Hymes	1½	½

The players will meet to-morrow in the following order:

Halpern vs. Jasnogrodsky; Baird vs. Steinitz; Rocamora vs. Delmar; Hanhan vs. Albin; Showalter vs. Hymes; Pillsbury a bye.
