LEACH PAYS THE PENALTY.

THE MURDERER OF HIS MISTRESS KILLED BY ELECTRICITY AT SING SING.

HE SHOWS GREAT NERVE—THE REV. DR. COLLYER ADMINISTERS THE LAST RITES OF THE CHURCH TO HIM.

Richard L. Leach, the murderer of Mary Hope Newkirk, his mistress, was executed in the electric chair in Sing Sing Prison at 11:16:40 a. m. yesterday.

Leach went to his death bravely. He slept well Sunday night. He arose at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and was visited by Warden Sage at 9 o'clock, who took him his breakfast. The Rev. Dr. Robert Collyer, of the Church of the Messiah, reached Sing Sing at 10 o'clock and went directly to the cell of the condemned man, where he remained in prayer with him for nearly three-quarters of an hour, when he left Leach after administering to him the last rites of the Church. Leach was then visited by the Warden, who told him that everything was in readiness for his execution.

Leach said, "Well, Warden, I am glad that the hour has come." He then asked the Warden to allow him to carry to the chair a lock of hair which the Warden had among his papers. This lock of hair was evidently from his dead mistress's head. Warden Sage gave the lock of hair to him and he placed it in his vest pocket. The Warden then returned to the execution chamber, where he arranged the last details for the execution. It took a little longer than usual, and Leach said to Chaplain Weills, who was with him, "Why don't they hurry up? It is past the time; I wish they would come for me."

Leach had but a few moments to wait, for the Warden soon returned heading the procession of death. The party entered the death chamber at 11:16:30. Leach leaning upon the arm of the chaplain. As he stepped into the room, he dropped the minister's arm, and extended his right hand to the chaplain, shook his hand warmly and approached the chair. He wore spectacles, which he removed himself before sitting down. When the electrician, Davis, placed the fatal cap upon his head, the salt water with which it was saturated ran down his face. Leach rolled up his eyes to see what it was, showing his white eyeballs. As he was deathly pale, many present thought that Leach had fainted, but he kept his nerve to the last.

As soon as he was strapped down, Dr. J. Wilson Gibbs, who kept the time, signalled Davis to turn on the current. This was done at 11:16:40. The full current of 1,700 volts remained on for seven seconds, and then it was lowered to 300 volts for 30 seconds, and again increased to the full voltage for three seconds, and again lowered to 300 volts for 57 seconds. When the mask was placed upon Leach, the doctors failed to draw it up tight, and it slipped down, showing his distorted face. When the current was turned off Dr. Gibbs listened for the pulsation of the heart, and surprised every one by saying, "He still lives; turn on the current again."

Before the current was turned on Drs. Snow, Sheehan, Elting and Irvine made examinations and detected pulsations of the heart. The examination took over six minutes, and as another current was about to be turned on the heart stopped beating.

It was 11:35 o'clock before the body was pronounced dead. The physicians differed as to the cause of the heart pulsation. Some of them said that life was extinct as soon as the current struck Leach, and the action of the heart was only the contracting of the muscles. Dr. O'Sullivan said that he thought that there was still life in the body after the current was turned off, as the hands of the murderer kept up a healthy hue. The physicians performed an autopsy, and found the organs normal, with the exception of the right lung, which was a little congested. The body will probably be buried in the prison yard.

GUESTS AT LEADING HOTELS.

Business at the leading hotels was better yesterday than on any other day for several weeks. The large number of guests who registered surprised hotel men and indicated to them that the fall season would probably be a lively one.

THE COURTS.

THE WHISKEY TRUST CASE IN COURT.

The temporary injunction restraining the Reorganization Committee of the Distilling and Cattle Feeding Company (the Whiskey Trust) from bidding at the judicial sale of the property on August 14, which was procured at the instance of Frederic W. Anness and George M. Pynchon having been vacated, the case came before Judge O'Brien in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday upon the original order to show cause why an injunction should not issue pending the trial of the action. Nathan Bijur represented the Reorganization Committee, and Louis Marshall appeared for the complaining stockholders. Mr. Marshall informed the Court that Samuel Untermyer, who was to argue the motion, was in the Adirondacks, and he would endeavor to communicate with him so that he could be back in time to argue the motion either to-day or to-morrow. The argument of the motion was therefore postponed until to-day.

MISS CLAYTON SUES A. M. PALMER.

A. M. Palmer was made defendant yesterday in a suit brought in the Supreme Court by Estelle Clayton, the actress, to recover $20,000 for an alleged conversion of operatic properties. Upon the application of ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, Judge O'Brien granted an order requiring Miss Clayton to file a bill of particulars more specifically setting forth her cause of action.

The suit arises out of the production of "The Viking," a comic opera which was presented on May 9 for the benefit of the Actors' Fund. Miss Clayton asserts that Mr. Palmer seized and held certain properties of the opera owned by her, and prevented her producing the opera at Miner's Theatre, Newark, and at other places.

GEORGE EHRET SUED FOR DAMAGES.

Mrs. Jessie Bain has brought a suit in the Court of Common Pleas against George Ehret to recover $10,000 damages. She occupied a flat in the house No. 2,433 Second-ave., owned by Mr. Ehret. She alleges that there were rubber coverings on the stairways, which were negligently put down, and that the defendant had been informed that they were in a dangerous condition, but paid no attention to the notification. On June 6, while she was descending the stairs, Mrs. Bain says, her heel caught in the rubber and she fell downstairs, fracturing two ribs and her left shoulder and leg.

The defendant entered a general denial. Judge Giegerich denied the application which the plaintiff made yesterday for permission to sue as a poor person, holding that the evidence did not show that she could not afford to pay her own costs.

THE GRAND JURY FOR AUGUST.

ITS MEMBERSHIP—RECORDER GOFF'S CHARGE—RIGHTS OF WITNESSES.

Recorder Goff charged the August Grand Jury yesterday in Part I of the Court of General Sessions. He said in part:

The first thing I wish to call your attention to is the condition of our city prison. There are now in the prison about two hundred and forty prisoners, of whom only 125 have been indicted and are awaiting the disposition of the cases. The other cases are waiting for your action. That is not a very large number for this season of the year, and shows with what faithfulness and energy the Grand Juries of June and July did their duties.

Your first duty is to select a secretary. He should be one that can assist the Court in connection with the jury. It is necessary that you should inscribe on the back of indictments the names of witnesses, to avoid much annoyance thereafter.

A great many of the witnesses come from the working people. They cannot spare time to make calls at the Grand Jury room and be told to call again. They probably have already been in attendance at the police court, and cannot afford to give their time to all these visits, especially as they get no compensation. Hence, there are causes of grumbling and complaints, and a miscarriage of justice, when the witnesses get tired and refuse to appear. The workingman cannot surrender his time and wages unnecessarily. I therefore urge you to dispose of each day's calendar as it is taken up.

The following is the list of the Grand Jury:

Charles T. Wills, builder, No. 21 East Twentieth-st., foreman.

Henry Hughes, restaurant-keeper, No. 177 Spring-st.

Manuel H. Elkin, merchant, No. 58 Cedar-st.

Alfred N. Cohen, laundryman, No. 916 Ninth-ave.

Lockwood De Forest, secretary, No. 7 East Tenth-st.

William Campbell, merchant, No. 52 White-st.

Frederick H. Palmer, broker, No. 7 New-st.

Charles C. Tyler, merchant, No. 80 Franklin-st.

John L. Redmond, grocer, No. 330 Spring-st.

Frederick Folz, No 1,395 Washington-ave.

William H. Hurst, president, No. 16 Broad-st.

Edward King, jr., merchant, No. 97 Greene-st.

Thomas Graham, builder, No. 22 East Eighty-ninth-st.

Thomas A. Bronson, druggist, No. 54 Cedar-st.

James W. Tappen, secretary, No. 69 Broome-st.

Richard H. Eggleston, banker, No. 32 East Forty-second-st.

Lois V. Sene, president, No. 26 Broadway.

Francis J. McDonald, crockery dealer, No. 161 Avenue B.

George S. McKibbon, broker, No. 56 Wall-st.

William Baylis, broker, No. 44 Exchange Place.

Thomas Fessenden, No. 154 West Forty-fourth-st.

James Slater, hotel-keeper, No. 20 Fifth-ave.

Joseph M. Hart, manager, No. 5 Beekman-st.

Recorder Goff was ill yesterday, though he persisted in attending to his judicial duties. On Friday Dr. Thomas E. Kelly performed an operation on the Recorder, removing a tumor from his left shoulder. The operation was performed without the use of ether.

THE FLAGLER SHOOTING AFFAIR.

A MEMBER OF THE CORONER'S JURY ASSERTS THAT THE VERDICT WAS CHANGED AS SUGGESTED BY THE DEFENDANT'S COUNSEL.

Washington, Aug. 5.—General and Mrs. D. W. Flagler, parents of Miss Elizabeth Flagler, who shot and killed Ernest Green last week, returned home this afternoon. General Flagler did not report at the War Department, as he is still on leave, and his movements are not certainly known. It is supposed that he will take his daughter away with him for a time.

Renewed interest in the unfortunate shooting affair was aroused this afternoon by the publication of a card from George M. J. Dorsey, a member of the Coroner's jury, charging that the verdict agreed on was changed at the suggestion of the counsel for Miss Flagler, after it had been signed and given to the Coroner. Mr. Dorsey says in part:

When the jury was ready to announce its verdict, that verdict was concluded with the sentence, "We do think that the shots were fired carelessly and indifferently." I believed that the wording was sufficient to carry the case to the Grand Jury, otherwise I should not have signed it. After Coroner Hammett and Assistant District-Attorney Jeffords came into the jury-room, Ross Perry, counsel for the defendant, entered in company with Miss Flagler, and then the crowd came pouring in. Mr. Perry heard what was said, and remarked to Coroner Hammett that something should be added to the verdict. Mr. Perry reached over, and, picking up the paper on which the verdict was written and already signed by all the jurors, handed it to Mr. Hammett, and suggested that these words be added: "And from the evidence, we cannot hold the prisoner." Mr. Hammett then wrote those words before the signatures, and, turning to the jury, said: "Gentlemen, is this satisfactory?" Four of the jurors nodded in the affirmative, but myself and one other member of the jury remained silent, and gave no indication of our opinion. I was, when on the jury, and still am, firmly of the belief that Miss Flagler should be brought before the Grand Jury, and that that body should consider the evidence and decide whether Miss Flagler should be prosecuted.

THE SITUATION AT ISHPEMING.

STRIKING MINERS FIND THEY CANNOT KEEP REPORTERS OUT OF THE TOWN.

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug 5 (Special).—The summary treatment of a Detroit reporter last Friday night has borne fruit in the sudden invasion of the town by six or seven others. The man ejected has also returned. There is some talk of ejecting all the reporters, but the more sober heads among the striking ore miners are aware that such a step would result in calling out the militia, and the companies would then begin shipping their stock piles. It is said that the Governor wrote to the marshal concerning his conduct last Friday, telling him to secure protection for every one, if it required the calling out of troops. The miners are still quietly leaving town, five or six a day. Whether they are going permanently it is difficult to learn. The firemen's tournament and a travelling circus will help to relieve the monotony of idleness this week. Waiting is hard work for the men, and any little excitement is welcome gladly by them.

WASHINGTON'S NEW PAPER APPEARS.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The first number of "The Washington Evening Times," with the full leased wire day service of the United Press, appeared today. It comprised eight pages, and gave substantial evidence of having been well received. It is of the same size as "The Morning Times," which it closely resembles. The "Story of The Times," which is printed to-day, asserts that "A year ago to-day 'The Times' had 5,000 circulation. This morning it has delivered at least 23,000 paid-for copies. Such a marvellous growth is unapproached in Washington, and, in proportion, unparalleled in the country at large."
