BOOKS FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

THE CENTURY COMPANY'S LONG LIST OF ATTRACTIVE EDITIONS FOR YOUNG AND OLD.

With the approach of Christmas festivities and the advent of the holiday books, the enterprising searcher after good reading matter turns naturally to the Century Company as a widely known and reliable source, whether he is in need of presents for his friends or expects to gratify himself with some library luxury at Christmas. The popularity of the firm has grown remarkably since "Scribner's Monthly," now "The Century," saw the light of day, and both this periodical and "St. Nicholas" (the young folks' magazine published by the firm) have long since obtained a hold on the reading public which is almost unequalled in their peculiar field.

The circulation of "The Century" reached 40,000 in the second year of its history, doubled and quadrupled a short time afterward, and has since been steadily on the increase. "St. Nicholas" was started in 1873 with Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge as Editor, and it has met like favor at the public's hands ever since. From the time the firm began to enjoy the fruits of success in such liberal measure, first outgrowing its modest offices at No. 654 Broadway, and next its quarters at Nos. 743 and 745 Broadway, which it left in 1881, for the firm's present home at No. 33 Union Square, it has managed to build up an extensive publishing business, in connection with its other work. It has brought out more than one standard work and its "Century Dictionary" has attained wide recognition as one of the foremost dictionaries of the English language. Furthermore, the company has established an enormous business in hymn and tune books for use in nearly all the Protestant churches. It is estimated that two millions of books of this kind, compiled by the Rev. Charles S. Robinson, have been sold so far.

The Century Company makes specialties of its art books, juvenile works and literary novelties for children. It is here that its most enticing presents for the Christmas season are to be found. Among the new art works the most striking is "Modern Masters," a series of biographical and artistic sketches of famous foreign artists, written by well-known Americans who have studied under them. The book is edited by John C. Van Dyke, and contains pen portraits of Millet, by J. Carroll Beckwith; Gérôme, by Will H. Low; Baudry, by Kenyon Cox; Meissonier, by Harry W. Watrous; Cérot, by Theodore Robinson; Carolus-Duran, by J. Carroll Beckwith; Daubigny, by D. W. Tryon, and Bastien-Lepage, by J. Alden-Weir, among others. Six of these articles have already appeared in "The Century." The book is handsomely bound in royal octavo, and is filled with numerous illustrations of the works of the artists it describes, executed on plate paper. They include wood engravings, half-tones and half-tone engravings, all excellent specimens of these different processes, and form an immense addition to the attractiveness of the work. "Modern Masters" is, on the whole, a most attractive sort of holiday present to select, and one which will find ready appreciation at the hands of the average reading man or woman, to say nothing of the art connoisseur. It is a companion work to "Old Italian Masters" and "Dutch and Flemish Masters," published by the firm some time ago.

The "leader" among the books designed for boys, and a work which is likely to be of profit as well as interest, is "The Century Book of Famous Americans." To begin with, it is nicely illustrated throughout with portraits of Americans who have won memorable names, and other pictures. It is written by the well-known author for young people, Elbridge S. Brooks, and is a companion work to the "Century Book for Young Americans," by the same author. It describes the adventures which befell a party of young people on a visit to the homes of Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Webster, the Adamses, Clay, Lincoln, Grant and others, and weaves accounts of these men into the attractive form of the story. The volume has the further advantage of being bound in a style to please a boy's eye, and well printed on good paper.

The two additions to the list of novelties for children published by the firm, which are most noteworthy, are "Goblinks, for Young and Old," by Ruth McEnery Stuart and Albert Bigelow Paine, and "The Shadow Show," by Peter S. Newell. Every one has noticed the peculiar double-picture effects to be derived from dropping a blot of ink on a piece of white paper and folding the paper upon it. This device has been used by the authors of "Goblinks" with most amusing results. A series of these grotesque double pictures, each suggestive of lifelike scenes, together with bits of humorous descriptive verse attached to each one, go to make up this little volume. It also contains directions for playing the game of "Goblinks," a new recreation for winter evenings and one which promises to be popular. "The Shadow Show" consists of a number of curious colored pictures, bound together with titles in book form. When any leaf of the book is held up to the light, with its blank side facing the spectator, the scene on the other side takes the form of a shadow picture of a different kind. The effects are good, and calculated to prove interesting to all small children.

Professor Sloane's work, "The Life of Napoleon," which first appeared in "The Century," has recently been brought out in book form by the company, splendidly printed and bound. David Dupré, François, Gerard, Robert Lefèvre, Meissonier, De Thulstrup and R. Caton Woodville are among the artists whose works illustrate the several volumes. The book makes a most desirable gift.

The old favorites which the public owes to the Century Company, such as Kipling's jungle books, are still being produced, and they are supplemented this year by many new ones which well repay the inspection of the lover of books.

AN EXPERT IN THE BARBERI TRIAL.

Dr. Alois F. Ardlicka, a member of the staff of the New-York State Hospital for the Insane, yesterday was called to testify as an expert for the defence in the second trial of Marie Barberi for the murder of her lover, Dominico Cataldo, in April, 1895. So many objections were raised to the questions asked Dr. Ardlicka that no testimony of importance was elicited from him. The case will go on to-day.
