Monday, February 8—p. m.

It is not at all likely that the Sugar Refining officers and their friends are worried over the effort of Senator Lexow and his fellow-investigators to find out something about the big Trust, nor is it at all improbable that the insiders in the sugar company are somewhat pleased at the opportunity to put Sugar stock through a little course of manipulation. The condition of the market makes the time auspicious for sending Sugar stock down, and, though no developments have been made in the Trust investigation of an unfavorable nature, so far as the money-making power of the sugar company is concerned, the insiders have succeeded in moving the stock toward a lower level, today's maximum decline amounting to nearly 3 per cent, with a recovery, however, at the close. The market was made up almost entirely of trading in Sugar Refining stock, the only other stocks in which activity was at all great being American Spirits, Burlington, St. Paul, Northern Pacific, United States Leather preferred, American Tobacco and Louisville and Nashville. These stocks, with Sugar Refining, furnished more than three-quarters of the total dealings, and Sugar alone over one-third. There were no supporting orders in the market, and prices throughout were weak and irregular, with final changes at net losses in the majority of issues. The London market was unsettled by the reported illness of the Czar and the political outlook, while the American department was adversely influenced by the poor chances of the passage of the arbitration treaty at this session of Congress. In the absence of any local or foreign support this market was left without strength, proving an easy target for professional attacks, which were helped by a number of silly stories, such as the reported dispatch of a war fleet from the United States to Cuba. There were no developments of importance, so far as the speculative trading was concerned, but of interest as affecting trade circles was the announcement of the heavy sale of print cloths at Fall River. At the close prices in the Industrials rallied a trifle on the adjournment of the Lexow Committee.

Prices for last sales of the principal active stocks, compared with the final figures of Saturday, were as follows:
