DRINKING ENDS IN DOUBLE MURDER.

A MAN SHOOTS HIS WIFE AND A MAN, LIGHTS HIS CIGAR AND GOES FOR ANOTHER DRINK.

Bloomfield, N. J., May 8 (Special).—A brutal double murder was committed in this place at 6:30 o'clock to-night. Harry Woodward, thirty-two years old, a machinist, employed at the Sprague Electric Elevator Works, in Watsessing, who lives at No. 145 Orange-st., after drinking all day quarrelled with his wife and shot her in the forehead. According to one story, the shooting occurred upstairs, and she ran down into the apartments of Patrick Dalley, a horse-clipper, who lived on the first floor. Woodward, with the smoking pistol in his hand, ran after her and Dalley grappled with him. Woodward shoved the muzzle of the weapon into Dalley's mouth and pulled the trigger. Dalley died instantly. His wife and three young children saw the deed, but were powerless to prevent it. The murderer dropped the revolver in the hallway and coolly walked down the street. On the way he stopped and lit a cigar. He entered the saloon of Caushrook & Kinz, where Policeman James Avery found him drinking and trying to borrow $1. The murderer was handcuffed and taken to the Bloomfield police station, where he was locked in a cell and was soon sound asleep.

Mrs. Woodward lived for nearly two hours, but never regained consciousness.

Woodward when arraigned before Police Justice Post declined to make any statement further than that he had shot Dalley because the latter had struck him on the head with a club when he went into the house drunk. He denied all knowledge of killing his wife. Woodward was taken to the Essex County Jail.

Another version of the story is that Mrs. Woodward ran downstairs into Dalley's kitchen, that Dalley locked the door and walked into his parlor with Mrs. Woodward behind him, and that as they reached the door Woodward fired at Dalley, the bullet missing him and striking Mrs. Woodward in the forehead. Then Woodward started to run upstairs and Dalley ran after him. Woodward turned quickly and shot Dalley.
