THE DAY'S OPERATIONS IN STOCKS.

The stock market continued its slow and steady movement toward higher prices. War news of a favorable character is hardly needed to stimulate bullish enthusiasm, for the real basis of securities values is so exceptionally promising that war influences can only be considered temporary factors in the situation. The persistent strength of values, despite pronounced dulness and bear efforts to force reactions, must strike all impartial observers as the direct result of the splendid industrial conditions in this country and confidence in leading money centres that war will not upset the intrinsic worth of American securities. People who engage in purely speculative transactions are not to be criticised for waiting in the expectation of an extensive reaction in prices, and the very fact that they do wait is substantial evidence of public faith in a future higher level. The speculative public apparently wants stocks, but it delays buying in the hope of getting into the market at cheaper prices.

The movement of values yesterday afforded little encouragement to those who are waiting for a lower level. Nearly every stock on the list was strong and showed a stubborn resistance to move in any but the upward direction. It may be that a material reaction will follow a victory by Admiral Sampson, for big speculators have a tendency to sell stocks on good news. But in this instance there are not many people in the Street who will make a wager to this effect. The average bull trader argues that while important selling often takes place on the appearance of good news, there are too many favorable developments in sight to make a Sampson victory of overshadowing importance. If the stock market experiences a movement similar to that of last summer, it will be found that people who sell stocks are forced to buy them back at higher prices, and that a material decline will not take place until the market becomes top-heavy and over-bought.

More activity developed yesterday, and transactions were well distributed. After some hesitation in the early trading the whole list advanced and continued strong until the close. Interest was noticed in many stocks that have long been idle. London prices came in higher, and arbitrage houses again bought stocks in the local market. The various reports concerning the movements of Admiral Sampson's fleet in West Indian waters helped to create bull sentiment, while easy money, favorable railroad earnings, large exports of merchandise from this port and other favorable features of the situation were brought forward as sufficient reason for buying stocks. Wall Street is certainly a bright spot at present, but small traders ought to look sharply after margins whenever there seems to be an excess of joyous spirits. At such times big speculators often work for a reaction. The market is a good one for people of ample means, and a reaction would not harm courageous traders with financial backing.

The Granger group was a conspicuous leader, both in point of activity and strength. St. Paul was heavily bought for the foreign account; also Louisville and Nashville and the Northern Pacifics. New-York Central and Pennsylvania were strong features, and among the specialties Minnesota Iron. Many striking advances were made, as in Metropolitan Street Railway, Sugar Refining, Third Avenue and Illinois Steel. The low-priced stocks were strong, Chicago Great Western of this class showing pronounced activity, and its transactions reflecting good buying. Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling and Wabash preferred are low-priced stocks also worth watching. The St. Paul earnings given out after the close of business show for the third week in May an increase of $108,872.
