THE DAY'S OPERATIONS IN STOCKS.

The tone of yesterday's securities market was one of comparative strength the greater part of the day, but continued profit-taking sales and bear pressure in certain stocks caused irregularity in prices. At the close small changes were shown, net losses predominating. The material factors in the situation remained strong influences in commission-house trading, orders from this source being moderately heavy on the decline, and sentiment among customers confident over the future of values. In the afternoon the reactionary tendency was more decided, the greater number of stocks sharing in the movement, and the selling for short account showing a visible increase. The extension of the short interest in the last two days furnishes an excellent prop for the active resumption of the bull campaign, and a continuance of the downward movement a few points further would be welcomed by all the conservative brokers in the Street, while supplying new life to prices and extra inducement for public operators to renew and increase their holdings. Days of reaction are needed in a bull movement, and according to experienced observers they should be taken advantage of to purchase stocks. It is a bull year.

Manhattan was again the notably weak feature on liquidation and bear pressure. Selling of Manhattan goes on, despite the fact that Mr. Sage makes specious promises about the future value of the railroad. Mr. Sage is a shrewd financier, but surface road competition and poor elevated management have caused considerable thinking on the part of investors in Manhattan stock. The Northern Pacific and Union Pacific issues were strong features; also Chicago and Eastern Illinois, which was taken in hand by powerful interests who are firm believers in the property. The shorts covered in People's Gas, which closed 1 per cent above Tuesday's final figure. Sugar Refining was steady, and the Grangers lost fractions. The afternoon attack upon values forced small recessions only, while the stocks sold were easily absorbed by strong interests. The chief selling in the day came from small traders and bear operators, and the result of their sales left stocks in stronger and better hands.

The greater number of people in Wall Street speak favorably of the low-priced stocks, and it is generally conceded that before the current bull movement runs its course there will be a heavy speculation in securities of the cheaper grade. This has already been instanced to a small extent in Chicago Great Western, American Cotton Oil, Tennessee Coal, Texas and Pacific, Atchison preferred and Southern Railway preferred. In yesterday's market St. Louis and San Francisco exhibited evidence of approaching activity, the price of the common stock in comparison with that of the first and second preferred doubtless recommending its purchase. The first and second preferred are in the dividend list, and the market value of the common is altogether out of proportion to its actual worth as based upon the company's earnings and ability to pay dividends on its preference issues. St. Louis and San Francisco common, Chicago Great Western and Texas and Pacific will, it is estimated in quarters where information does not come second-hand, sell well above their present prices before the fall. Standard Rope and Twine stocks were also active among low-priced issues, while the bonds of the company made noteworthy advances on large transactions.
