THE DAY'S OPERATIONS IN STOCKS.

The loss in bank holdings shown in Saturday's statement of the Associated Banks suggests that the time has arrived for greater caution and discrimination in market operations. It does not, however, indicate approaching stringency or afford good reason for worry among investors and people who can buy stocks outright or handle them on large margins. A sudden advance in money rates is a strong bear card, and as a rule disastrous to small traders, who overtrade and are not content with narrow profits. The present condition of the money market may not cause any material reaction in values, and it certainly will not prevent stocks from selling above the current level before the year is over, but as higher rates may develop and bear operators grow courageous, it may be well for speculators to keep their bullish enthusiasm in check until the future of the monetary situation is more definitely defined. Gold imports were arranged for yesterday. The movement will doubtless reach large proportions, and as long as the foreign trade balance remains so heavily in this country's favor there need be no fear of money stringency. Temporary higher fluctuations are to be looked for, and stock speculation should be arranged accordingly. Investors who have little to do with temporary influences will lose nothing, for it is a bull year, and prices will, according to general belief, eventually sell higher.

Fearing higher money rates, many people took their profits in yesterday's market, while bear operators were aggressive throughout the list. Stop-loss orders were reached in some stocks, and in others there was liquidation, owing to exaggerated ideas of the monetary situation. The result of the day's business was profitable for bear traders, declines of from 1 to 2 per cent being made, and it will doubtless turn out profitable to people who bought on the declines. Stocks were well absorbed by influential interests. London was again a moderately heavy purchaser in this market, and local commission-houses reported a good demand from people who are able to take care of stocks in any decline. The market was strengthened by the reaction. A further setback in values would not be disappointing to the real bulls in Wall Street, but a material decline does not seem probable, for technical market conditions are not made up of extensive overtrading, pyramiding or fictitious prices. Money rates remained unchanged at last week's higher level, while sterling exchange showed a weakening tendency, with demand sterling at 4.84⅝@4.85. Gold to the amount of $2,000,000 was bought in London for shipment to this country.

The Stock Exchange suspended business for half an hour while the 71st Regiment parade was in progress, but, notwithstanding this interruption, the total volume of business was large. Stocks in which dealings have recently been the most active naturally suffered the heaviest losses, Union Pacific issues, Burlington, St. Paul, Sugar Refining, American Tobacco, Brooklyn Rapid Transit and some of the specialties losing from 1¼ to 2 per cent. Gold import reports served to steady quotations after initial weakness, but further recessions were made in the afternoon, with last prices not far from the lowest of the day.
