THE DAY'S OPERATIONS IN STOCKS.

Operations in yesterday's securities market were dull and narrow, with dealings almost entirely for the account of the professional element. Activity was confined to the leading Industrials and Northern Pacific common, the last-named stock, with American Tobacco and Sugar Refining, furnishing more than one-half of the total transactions in all issues. Prices yielded under the influence of profit-taking sales and renewed bear pressure, but with the exception of the more active shares losses were insignificant. London sold in this market, and weakness in the European markets apparently helped local professional operators in renewing pessimistic sentiment over the foreign political situation. More important influences affecting the changeable professional temperament were, however, the absence of buying support and the improved position of the market for operations on the short side. The advance and covering purchases of Wednesday and Thursday materially strengthened the technical position of speculation, and as a consequence encouraged further professional selling for both accounts. The general movement of prices reflected little, if any, pressure to sell, except from the trading element.

Strength in the wheat market was a feature of the day, which had no influence upon stock trading. It did, however, encourage the real holders of stocks, while its importance as a factor upon railroad earnings received due attention in circles where facts rather than theories are considered the basis of intrinsic worth. Heavy export buying of wheat continued yesterday, and after weaker prices at the opening, which attracted a good demand, the market closed strong with the December option at 71⅝c. Exports of wheat from this country in the week have been 4,101,770 bushels, against 4,886,015 bushels in the same week last year, while receipts at Western points have been, for the last two weeks, 20,790,495 bushels, as compared with 16,696,554 bushels in the corresponding time in 1897. Among the active stocks Tobacco, Sugar and Brooklyn Rapid Transit closed at net losses of above 1 per cent, but elsewhere declines were fractional.

The movement of money to the interior has been heavier this week, but receipts of gold from abroad and Treasury payments to the banks have been more than sufficient to offset the loss on interior withdrawals. The bank statement for the week should therefore exhibit a further gain in cash and surplus holdings. Current rates for money are about on a level with that ruling in the summer, call loans averaging slightly higher, but from present indications there appears little probability of a material change in the direction of higher quotations for the rest of the year.
