THE DAY'S OPERATIONS IN STOCKS.

Stock market trading was confined in great part to a few of the leading speculative issues. Throughout the day, however, evidence of good buying in the general list was not wanting, and at the close the greater number of shares showed net advances as compared with Tuesday's final figures. While no great amount of public interest is taken in the present market, there is little disposition among holders to part with their possessions, and apparently considerable unwillingness among the larger operators to encourage further declines. The failure of prices to sell off to any extent on the Joint Traffic decision tends to prove the assertion that stocks are held by interests who do not intend to permit a lower level of values if it is within their power to prevent a decline. And the current market certainly proves that local financial affairs are in too strong a position to be influenced by the money and political situation in Europe.

The foreign stock markets were steadier yesterday, but discounts were higher, while Paris exchange on London ruled 11 per cent above the gold export point. Although in the local market there were periods of irregularity, and in some stocks declines, the general tone of speculation exhibited strength and uneasiness among the shorts, who were loath to believe that substantial interests are supporting prices. Tobacco stock moved, as usual, under the influence of manipulation, closing after wide fluctuations at a net loss of 1⅜ per cent. Sugar Refining was marked higher, while the railroad stocks in general made fractional progress toward an advanced level. Chicago Great Western issues, especially the preferred A, were strong features on the company's excellent quarterly statement. This company is one of those growing Western roads whose securities will, it is thought, eventually sell well above their current quotations. In the same class may be mentioned St. Louis and San Francisco, once a part of the Atchison system, but now an independent road, and the St. Louis Southwestern, the securities of which were strong and active yesterday. Louisville and Nashville, General Electric, United States Rubber stocks, Kansas and Texas preferred and Tennessee Coal and Iron were also strong features. The market closed firm, with last prices not far from the best figures of the day.
