THE DAY'S OPERATIONS IN STOCKS.

Speculative activity continued upon a large scale, with interest well distributed throughout the list. In the early dealings efforts were made to force a reaction, and for a short time the greater number of issues declined to points well under Tuesday's closing prices; but the support of prominent interests and renewed commission-house buying at the low level caused general recoveries that left final quotations for the majority of stocks slightly above the preceding day's last quotations. The only noteworthy net decline was made by Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis (Pan Handle). Pronounced bear attacks upon this stock accompanied by realizing sales were followed by a break of more than 6 per cent, and while a subsequent rally carried the price to 70, the final sale was recorded at a net loss for the day of over 5 per cent. The movement in the stock was purely a speculative manœuvre, and of no significance as an indication of the actual merit of the stock which, as practically an asset of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, occupies as favorable a position as Omaha (an asset of the Chicago and Northwestern) occupies, despite the fact that Omaha sold as high as 98 yesterday. It is interesting to note that coincident with the selling of "Pan Handle" a vigorous buying movement of Pennsylvania set in.

The continued violent attempts of the professional traders to bring about a reaction meet with no important success, but the increasing number of reactionists suggests the wisdom of taking profits without waiting for extraordinary prices, which the small trader sees ahead when his holdings have shown an increase in value. The most conservative interests appreciate the strength of the market situation and they predict much higher prices in 1899 than the level reached in 1898; but they counsel the taking of profits frequently, and advise buying on all recessions. This method of speculation has been more prominent in the current market than at any time on record, and it is owing to it that the technical position of speculation has remained so strong. The much-talked-about overdue reaction will appear when everybody wants to sell; but when that time comes a clamorous sold-out bull party will doubtless be anxious to buy whatever the public has to offer. The tendency to buy the standard shares in preference to the stocks of doubtful merit was again a feature in yesterday's market.

Activity in Sugar Refining, incidental to the company's annual meeting, needs no explanation. But the decision of the trust to use accumulated profits for working capital needs considerable explanation, which, unfortunately, the managers of the concern refuse to give. Perhaps accumulated profits will be used to fight trade competition. As usual, no statement regarding the condition of the company was given out, yet stock market traders were willing to buy the Sugar certificates on the faith that their value is sufficient to prevent any material decline in price. Sugar stock may not sell as high in 1899 as it sold in 1898. Buying of Pennsylvania, Illinois Central, New-York Central, the granger issues, Great Northern and stocks of similar character was heavy in the afternoon, and an encouraging feature of the day's business. An indication of the growth of railroad business was reflected in the return of the Louisville and Nashville company to the dividend column, a declaration of 1½ per cent being made at the meeting of the directors yesterday afternoon. The market closed strong. Total sales, 945,699 shares, against 1,019,303 on Tuesday.
