THE DAY'S OPERATIONS IN STOCKS.

Buying of stocks in yesterday's market was not particularly heavy, but it came from important banking houses, and represented substantial speculative and investment interests. Many traders who bought in expectation of Republican victories took profits at the opening and throughout the day, the result of such sales causing considerable irregularity, but few important declines. As a rule last prices were at small net changes, with more losses than gains. A large decline in Leather stock was an incident that had no bearing upon legitimate speculation, while a reaction in Manhattan of 4 points was due to factors not affecting the general list. Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Louisville and Nashville, Pacific Mail and the Steel issues were in good demand from a class of buyers that never assume obligations on the long side of the market unless they are well convinced that quotations will go higher.

Current speculation in the stocks named and in other attractive cheap and medium priced issues gives every indication of permanency. These stocks need no apology for activity. They are becoming more prominent every day, and barring unforeseen developments they will work toward a higher level before the end of January.

The strong financial interests behind Southern Pacific stock always count upon success in their operations. Mr. Huntington, Speyer & Co., Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., and Flower & Co. are active buyers in the current market, and it will be well for bear operators to carry these names in mind, as well as the names of Morgan, Vanderbilt and Rockefeller. The interests named represent a vast amount of individual and corporate capital. They are interested in financial affairs of vast significance to market values, while they control stocks which no bear raid can force on the market. If weak speculative traders were the chief owners of stocks bear operators might hope for success in their present attempts to induce the holders of securities to sacrifice their possessions. The larger interests do not favor an aggressive bull speculation until the money market conditions are clearer. Meanwhile they hold stocks which will not be sold until public buying brings about a materially higher price level.

Rates for money did not go above 12 per cent yesterday, and stock market traders found no difficulty in securing accommodation. An interesting report based on good information was circulated at the close of business regarding the possibility of Government buying of Government bonds in the open market. If the Government would use some of its vast surplus to buy Government bonds the money market would be benefited accordingly. There is no good reason why some of the available bonds that were put out in the Cleveland Administration should not be bought by the Government as a means of relieving the local money market and of putting into active circulation money that now lies idle in Treasury vaults. A high authority in banking circles said yesterday that the Government was about to take action of this character.
