originated in Wall street. The reports from Kansas City and other points said that the weather was very cool and unfavorable for the growing crop. In the pit the offerings were so light as to alarm the local shorts. They became active buyers. Commission people appeared to have no end of buying orders for May corn around 52c. Corn advanced on this buying, while wheat was breaking. The low point on September corn on first trades was 54c, and then a straight recovery of 1c to 55c. The December price touched 53c on a fraction dip and recovered to 54⅝c. May sold at 52c and up to 55⅞c. After reaching still higher prices in the last hour there was a moderate reaction in corn on the closing trade. September touched 56⅛c, 2c over last night, and closed at 55⅝c. The December price was 54⅝c at the top and it closed at 54¼c. For May 57⅝c was the best point and it closed at 57⅛@57⅜c. Cash corn sales were reported at 150,000 bushels, said to be for export.

Traders who thought oats prices relatively the lowest and the crop, as harvested, of fine quality and not up to former estimates in volume have expected a snappy market, with considerable bull force. Yet to-day, when corn was at 1c advance and very strong, oats prices made feeble recovery from the early dip. September sold at 33⅜c to 29½c, to 33⅝c; December, 34⅝c to 34½@34⅝c, to 34⅝@35c, and May 37c to 36¾c and up to 37¼@37⅜c. The best prices were only a fraction over last night. The receipts of 501 cars gave 252 cars standard oats. For to-morrow the estimate is 210 cars. Last prices for oats were 33¾c September, 35c December, 37½c May; the best prices were 34c, 35½c and 37½c for the months named.

There was a smaller run of hogs here than was expected, and prices at the yards were advanced some. There was no pressure of products at any time, and it took only moderate buying to firm prices. Pork made a gain of 7½c for September, 12½c December, and held between $13 and $13 05@$13 07½ for May. Lard prices firmed to $7 October and $7 12½ January. Ribs made less gain at $7 47½ and $6 85 same months. Brokers called it a sluggish trade with considerable "changing" going on.
