

A New Mayor With No Money.

The new intendant and wardens were inducted into office Saturday evening.

There will be much howling and growling and kicking because the new officers do not "turn over the earth," but they will just have to howl and growl and kick, for it takes money to do things.

It is up to the newly-elected office to devise some means for raising funds to be used on the town. They will do it we know not, but a tax on property and a bus tax will be levied.

The streets and sidewalks are fixing badly, and the town must be put in good shape. The Piedmont Light & Power Co., on the 29th of March, made a trade with the council to furnish lights on the streets, and with shining lights on the streets, and Mother Nature produce hereabout. The location is good, for South Carolina is a land of sunshine, and the sun is shining here, rivaling the sun in other parts of the state.

At into the other side of the street, the citizens are ashamed to see the streets. There may be fifty years old which show than we have but few of these cities thirty years ago would not begin to compare with the Pickens of today.

of talking for your home town. It will grow on you, and result in the Greater Pickens all are looking forward to and hoping to see in the next few years, the dawn of which is now knocking at our threshold.

After a man has spent his whole life as the devil wished, it doesn't look reasonable to us that he can lie to the Lord on his deathbed and go straight to heaven. In our opinion the talk of deathbed repentance has kept many from entering the pearly gates.

Labor is one of the supreme laws of life. Toil is honorable. The progress which the world has made is a glorious testimonial to human handiwork. Those who work know more of genuine happiness than those whose lives seem dedicated to idleness.

The Lord had the right idea when he made man. He said it was not good for man to be alone, but had he made more than one wife for Adam there would have been more trouble than there was in the shade of that old apple tree.

A man in Reno county, Kan., has just bought a sawmill and is going to begin cutting the trees he planted 30 years ago in the treeless desert. These trees are going to make saw logs 30 feet long and planks 16 inches wide.

The Kaiser's horse buyer says there are no horses in Kentucky. What, then, are the quadrupeds the dark and bloody state has been sending to the racetracks—wolves or dogs?

In glorifying the apostate Cleveland and trying to belittle the steadfast Bryan, the Anderson Mail shows its peculiar brand of Democracy.

along all lines in Pickens County, two years, undoubtedly, to almost every citizen, interest in the municipality certainly the record of which Pickens should be proud. There is an awakening in which, generally speaking, the property owner is taking more interest than heretofore to make his town more attractive and a more desirable place in which to live. Many have encouraged the building of new houses, and the old ones are being painted and repaired, which is a thing to look upon with pleasure.

to the business district, which is gradually increasing in size over the entire city. The cause of this confidence upon the part of the citizens of Pickens is the bright future outlook for this town; it looks encouraging, to the capitalist who has invested, and inviting to those who would build a home in a city where there is an upward tendency. This confidence is not ephemeral, it is of some spontaneous character, and is due to the fact that the citizens are beginning to take an interest in their town.

The poultry industry is an important factor to-day, and will bear much study, whether conducted as a side line or as an exclusive occupation.

The world's greatest men grew upward from the lower classes, while the world's meanest men grew downward from the upper class.

THE RARE EXCEPTION.

A county correspondent of the Aline Chronoscope some time ago sent in an item about one of his neighbors who had received a prize from a matrimonial advertisement he had inserted in an Eastern paper. He lets his readers in to the sequel thus: "Yes, Johnson got married and his friends are all congratulating him. His wife is a sensible, good-looking woman. She united with the Methodist church Sunday night, and gave a warm welcome. Every old widower and bachelor in the county are advertising for a wife."
