Of Interest to Women

FASHIONABLE NECKWEAR

Simplicity of Form and Fineness of Texture Demanded.

To the woman who would be well dressed neckwear is of unusual importance in these days, for upon it often depends the success of the simple frock, which is considered just now the smartest thing one can wear. It must not be imagined, however, that the object of such accessories is to get an effect of elaborateness that is not found in the gowns. Obtrusive elaborateness has no longer any part in fashionable attire, and it is in the upper part of the corsage, the part that frames the face, that the greatest degree of naïveté is demanded. Women seem to be learning at last to value their own natural charms more highly than external adornment, and therefore they refuse to accept any style of dress that conceals unnecessarily the lines of throat, bust and shoulders.

The fichu is one of the accessions most in keeping with the new frocks and the more delicate it is in texture and the simpler in form the better. The woman who has no need to consider the cost thereof may indulge in beautiful fichus of filmy lace, but those made of the finest lawn and trimmed with narrow pleatings of the same may be equally effective. On one of the latter variety shown in a Fifth avenue shop the pleating has not only been used around the lower edge, but also trims two little revers that adorn the front. The folds of lawn are gathered in a little to one side below the bust and are caught by two medium sized crocheted buttons. Valuable to the woman who has not been given all the plumpness she may think desirable are the billowy folds of net, trimmed with rather wide lace edged frills, which are continued around long ends that fall from the fastening in front.

Jabots that accompany tailored costumes should be chosen carefully, for upon them devolves largely the duty of providing the requisite touch of feminine softness. However simple they may be, the fabric should be as fine as one can afford. The transparency of a delicate material gives its whiteness a tone that causes it to blend with its surroundings instead of contrasting sharply with them, and sharp contrasts are generally dangerous.

MOTHERS' CLUB IN SESSION

Work of Kindergarten at Coney Island Is Warmly Praised.

Under the auspices of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences the ninth annual convention of the Kindergarten Mothers' Clubs and Parents' Associations of Brooklyn was opened yesterday afternoon in the central building of the Young Men's Christian Association, Brooklyn, with an address of welcome by Dr. Walter B. Gunnison, principal of Erasmus High School. Dr. Gunnison spoke of the good work done by the Kindergarten Mothers' Clubs camp on Coney Island last season.

Miss Emma L. Johnson, principal of the Brooklyn Training School, described the ideal mothers' club and Miss Fannie Belle Curtis, director of the clubs, said that $2,000 was needed for the continuance of the work this season on Coney Island. She hoped to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the organization by holding the convention next year in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

MILK NOT ALL, HE ARGUES

Other Needs in Child Life Said in Lecture To Be Greater.

Dr. Ira S. Wise told the League for Political Education in the Berkeley Lyceum yesterday morning that the milk question was the least important of all the problems connected with child life.

"We hear nothing but milk, milk, milk from morning till night," he said, "yet infant mortality has decreased very little since the pure milk stations were opened.

"A great deal more important than the question of milk is the question of intelligence on the mother's part. For that reason a milk station should aim to dispense education with its milk. Doctors and neighborhood nurses should be on hand to teach the mothers how to use the milk, because a baby can be made sick just as easily by good milk which has become sour or full of dirt as by milk which came from infected dairies in the beginning.

"Another thing which is just as important to the baby as the quality of his milk is the presence of his mother in the home. If the mother has to go out and work the result is sickly children, who cost more for funerals, special institutions, classes for defectives in the schools and juvenile courts than it would have cost the community in the beginning to give the father a living wage.

"If a baby survives the milk evils, the bad air, the congestion, the contagious diseases and the white plague, and so manages to reach the school age, then a new set of dangers confront him. He is put in a crowded room, on uncomfortable chairs, and probably has nothing to eat all day, and thus becomes an easy mark for tuberculosis, typhoid fever or any disease to which he may be exposed.

"It would pay the city and the state to keep the children well, rather than to have the expense of caring for them after they get sick. Give them parks and playgrounds, fresh air in schools, a mother's care, wise doctors, and—yes, pure milk is necessary, too."

WOMEN TO MEET IN LOUISVILLE.

The National Woman Suffrage Association has accepted the invitation of the Kentucky Equal Rights Society, of which Miss Laura Clay is president, to hold its next annual convention in Louisville, October 19 to 24, inclusive.

THE TOUCH OF BLACK.

The white linen frock promises to be a conspicuous feature in the summer's wardrobe, but the smart creation for 1911 is not complete without a touch of black satin. A gown of soft creamy linen is made with a small pointed black satin rever on one side of the waist, with a few large flat black buttons on the same side of the skirt along the wide hem. A folded piece of satin at the waist line of another gown had a little black bow at the neck, and a stylish model shows a tiny black satin vest, with a trimming of black silk handwork on the large crochet buttons. Several good looking gowns have the opening at the side, and from the bust line to the end of the placket is a two-inch strip of black satin, with the Irish crochet buttons showing a touch of color, pink blue or lavender. Little black satin ties, with long silk tassels, are used both at the waist line at the back and at the neck. The touch of color often accompanies the touch of black and may be given by a soft leather belt of old blue rose or lavender.

SUFFRAGISTS ENLIST HORSE

One with a Pedigree to Appear in "Pageant of Protest."

A horse—and no common horse, but a blue ribboner, owned by a millionaire—will appear in the "Pageant of Protest" at the Broadway Theatre on March 28. The Woman Suffrage party, to which the millionaire lends him for the occasion, refuses to announce his name, but it is somewhere in the list of prize winning novices at the last horse show. He will be ridden by Miss A. Norton, who is to represent Wyoming in a cowgirl costume, and the suffragists say they have ascertained that he has the soundest horse sense on the votes for women question. He is not going to do as Miss Jane Austin, the bow-wow actress, did at the Mi-Carême matinee of the Woman's Political Union—prove recalcitrant to the cause after getting on the stage.

Each of the five states where women vote will be represented in the pageant. There will also be a pioneer woman of the West and a pioneer woman of the East. Miss Chrystal Eastman, with a plough, will be the former, and Mrs. Walston Brown, with a spinning wheel, the latter.

Mrs. Martha T. Suffren is to be Barbara Frietchie, waving the flag. Mrs. Sophie Curtis, a member of Sorosis, will be Betsy Ross, and will appear sewing on the thirteenth star.

It is announced that Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy is to be represented in the pageant, despite the protests which have reached the party from Christian Scientists and others.

The display of serge coat suits at $25 and one-piece dresses at $19.50 in one shop is ahead of anything so far seen this spring.

Summer evening coats in light weight broadcloth, richly trimmed with black satin, are $18.50.

Artistic lavalliéres of rhinestones, set in silver, with long chains, are $2.95 each.

The useful "glove handkerchief," in many new and pretty designs, sells at 25 cents each.

Unmade shirtwaists of Japanese cloth, hand embroidered in colors, are $1.98 each.

Combination suits of lisle thread are 50 cents a garment.

Attractive belts of moire and satin, in black only, are $1.50 each.

All linen handkerchiefs, with a narrow tape border in color and initial to match, are 75 cents a half dozen.

The small or slim woman buys her silk petticoats, if she is wise, in the misses' department, where the price is certainly one-fourth less than elsewhere.

Double tipped two-button silk gloves are 50 cents a pair.

Seventy-five cents is the price of lightweight rubber sandals in a plaid waterproof case, which can be tucked in a pocket or handbag.
