SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

Getting good practical farmers to quit their work to go out and work for the Farmers' Union for nothing is all that is in the way of spreading the Farmers' Union organization all over our Southland in a very short while.

This prevailing idea among farmers to get something for nothing, or get cheap men to do cheap work instead of getting good men at good prices to do good work is the biggest stumbling block in the way of the progress of the farmers' organization. It takes a big hook and a big bait to catch a big fish and hold the game—and a small fly-hook for minnows.

You cannot control the price of cotton unless you can control the men who hold the cotton.

The cotton-grower cannot prosper while others price all he sells and buys any more than he could pull himself out of the mire by lifting at the straps of his boot-legs.

HELP YOURSELF.

Don't quarrel with others about not helping the farmer when you are not trying to help yourself.

Some farmers do a lot of howling and no work because they are too poor—they think—to do anything else but howl the calamity howl.

The man with manhood and plenty of grit and energy in his make-up need never ask others to give him room; about all this man needs is to put his natural talents to work with a vim and the world will give him plenty of room.

Why all this talk about organizing the farmer of to-day when our daddies and granddaddies lived better than we do without any organization among themselves? Because our daddies and granddaddies produced almost everything they needed to eat and wear upon their own farm excepting salt, sugar, coffee and what little money they needed then to pay taxes, which for these small items was not very hard to get out of his surplus cotton and other crops and stock. And now we fool cotton-growers have for lot these many years been trying to get rich buying all these things at the other fellow's prices, and paying for them with our cotton also at the other fellow's prices. We are compelled to organize before we can price our own cotton.

DECLARING INDEPENDENCE

The American farmer is about to declare his independence of the speculator of Wall street, and the movement has not been initiated a day or so.

The farmer has worked and worried, and his profit has been small. The bad crop worries were all for him. He stood the loss alone. The speculator in life's necessities can do as well on a bad crop as on a good one.

We are glad to be able to tell our readers that the farmers have made up their minds to put an end to this system, and that they have gone to work intelligently.

Hitherto the farmer alone has had nothing whatever to say about the price to be paid for what he actually produced.

Some man in Liverpool, some mill owner in the North, might settle the price that the Southern cotton-grower must take per bale for cotton. Some other man, thousands of miles away, could settle the price that the Western farmer should have for his grain.

The farmer alone had nothing to say about it. The railroads decided what they should charge for the use of the money. Trusts decided on their extortions. Tariff builders decided what tax the farmer's wife and daughter should pay on their dresses.

But the farmer was forbidden to have any say in fixing the price of his goods.

This is to end; the work has been already begun in the farmers' organizations. This paper congratulates the farmers, and greets as public benefactors the moving spirits in the great farmers' organizations.

The farmers of the country are the backbone of the country. They develop the nation's real wealth, which is the wealth of the soil. They are entitled to a full share of that wealth and of the national prosperity. By combination, by insisting on fair prices for their cotton, their wheat and their other crops, and by refusing to sell the non-perishable products except for a fair price, they have already added tens of millions to the annual returns from the farms. They add tens and hundreds of millions more annually as their unions increase in power.

The isolated human being, whether he be farmer or mechanic, is at the mercy of every form of greed and cunning.

The farmer has too long plowed, harrowed, sown, reaped, sweated and fretted to build up bank accounts for others, and pay interest on mortgages. We are glad that he has decided, by union, to keep for himself and family, which means for the people of America, that to which they are entitled. —[Denver News.

REMEDY FOR DIARRHOEA NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL.

"I want to say a few words for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I have used this preparation in my family for the past five years and have recommended it to a number of people in York county and have never known it to fail to effect a cure in any instance. I felt that I cannot say too much for the best medicine of the kind in the world."—S. Jamison, Spring Grove, York county, Pa. This remedy is for sale by the Pickens Drug Co.

Why the Congregation Tittered.
The story is told of Hellen Hunt, the famous author of "Ramona," that one morning after church service she found a purse full of money and told her pastor about it.

"Very well," he said, "you keep it and at the evening service I will announce it," which he did on this wise:

"This morning there was found in this church a purse filled with money. If the owner is present, he or she can go to Helen Hunt for it."

Poultry Notes.

Leon Hoffman in Cotton Journal. Take care of your poultry manure, it is very valuable and you should not lose it.

Have time to do everything about the poultry yard and do it on time and with some system—"it pays."

Water is cheap, give your birds plenty of it these hot days and place the drinking vessels in the shade.

You cannot be too careful about mites and lice, they can do much harm before you know what is doing.

An ordinary flock of birds should be made pay the grocery bill of every farmer, with good care, but how many do it?

Never let your chickens set under barns, in the crib and under places where you cannot conveniently attend to them, this is where the mites breed.

HAD AN AWFUL TIME.

But Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Cured Him.

It is with pleasure that I give you this unsolicited testimonial. About a year ago when I had a case of the measles I got caught out in a hard rain and the measles settled in my stomach and bowels. I had an awful time and had it not been for the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—Sam H. Gwin, Concord, Ga. For sale by Pickens Drug Co.

TEN YEARS IN BED.

"For ten years I was confined to my bed with disease of my kidneys," writes R. A. Gray, J. P. of Oakville, Ind. It was so severe that I could not move part of the time. I consulted the very best medical skill available, but could get no relief until Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me. It has been a God-send to me."
