JURORS' EYES GET MOIST

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy Breaks Down at Trial, Causing Halt.

INSANITY EXPERT TESTIFIES

Says Woman Who Killed Husband Had Acute Attack of Melancholic Type.

Mrs. Frances O'Shaughnessy, who is being tried before Judge Foster and a jury in General Sessions for shooting her husband, George O'Shaughnessy, on May 5, broke down and wept yesterday while she was doing her best to tell Assistant District Attorney Edwards the details of the shooting.

"What happened to George when you shot him?" he asked.

"He sort of sank down on the bed," said Mrs. O'Shaughnessy softly, and, tears welling up in her eyes, she covered her face with her black bordered handkerchief, and Mr. Edwards quietly sat down, stopping the proceedings for several moments until the witness regained her composure.

"After you had made up your mind to shoot George, if he had told you that he would give up Tessie Hayes would that have changed your determination?" inquired the prosecutor.

"I cannot tell you exactly as to that," she answered. "He would have had to say that to me before I could tell you. He didn't say it, so I don't know. I think if he had spoken one kind word to me it would have lifted a great load from my heart."

Under direct examination Mrs. O'Shaughnessy spoke of her suicidal intentions after she discovered the Tessie Hayes letters under her husband's pillow.

"I saw the revolver at Mrs. Ford's, where I worked, and it fascinated me," she said. "I used to pick it up very often. I pressed it to my breast and thought how easy it would be to end all my sorrow. I took it home with me and I prayed a long time for George. It was after that that I made up my mind it would be wrong to kill myself and my unborn child. So I determined to kill George."

"What did you do after you shot George?" asked Mr. Rosalsky, her lawyer.

"I kissed him."

"What else?"

"I said a prayer for his soul. Then I went out into the hall and called to Mrs. Guyer. I told her that George had gone. She said, 'What, already?' and I answered, 'Yes, gone forever!' Then I ran out and asked the policeman to arrest me."

"Did you tell him why you shot your husband?"

"Oh, yes; I told him that he was unfaithful and had planned to desert me for another woman."

Mr. Rosalsky asked Mrs. O'Shaughnessy if she still loved her husband.

"Oh, yes," she replied.

The prosecution brought out that the defendant and her husband had disagreements about starting in housekeeping. She had saved $110 and he had saved $10 from his wages as a grocery clerk in Healey's store. She found that he owed a bill at the time of his marriage, and she paid it out of her own wages.

"I always reasoned with him that we did not have enough money for me to come and live with him, although I was just as anxious to live with him then as he was to live with me," she said.

The testimony of the undertaker who buried O'Shaughnessy showed that the bill was paid by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, who directed from the Tombs that her bank book be used for that purpose.

The defence produced Dr. Menes S. Gregory as its insanity expert. He is the chief alienist at Bellevue Hospital, where he has examined about four thousand cases in lunacy.

Dr. Gregory examined Mrs. O'Shaughnessy while she was recovering from spontaneous abortion in Bellevue on May 12, seven days after she shot her husband. He said she presented the most extraordinary case ever brought to his attention. Lying on a cot in the alcoholic ward, where all prisoners in Bellevue are confined, she declared, with several patients suffering from delirium tremens about her, that she had no right to be kept in such a comfortable place and asked that she be sent to the Tombs or to Sing Sing as soon as possible in order that she might make an atonement for her crime.

Dr. Gregory described her gradual improvement at Bellevue, and then gave it as his opinion that for perhaps four weeks before the shooting she had been suffering from an attack of acute insanity of a melancholic type. Cross-examination showed that the alienist was an unpaid witness for the defence and that he had volunteered to testify from a "sense of duty."

The jury was visibly affected by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy's recital of the shooting, especially at the time when she broke down, and moist eyes then were the rule rather than the exception.

ORDERS FREIGHT RATES CUT

Commission Makes Reduction in Northwestern Territory.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Class freight rates from Tacoma and Seattle and Portland, Ore., to points in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana were declared unreasonable by the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day, and reductions averaging about 20 per cent were ordered, to take effect by January 2, 1912.

The decision affects all the railroads in the Pacific Northwest.

CREDITORS TO GET MONEY

Van Tuyl Anounces Dividends for Two Failed Institutions.

The State Banking Department announced last night that a second dividend would be paid to depositors and creditors of the former Northern Bank on Monday. Thousands of depositors will receive the dividend, which will cover 10 per cent of the amount of claims filed. They aggregated $6,422,489, and number 16,199. The second dividend has been made possible by disposing of litigation.

The Northern Bank was closed on December 27, 1910, following the discoveries of alleged irregularities in the management. The total deposits at the date of closing were $6,291,512, and a first dividend of 50 per cent was paid to depositors on April 13. This amounted to $2,621,203.

Besides the payment of the second dividend to the depositors of the Northern Bank, Superintendent Van Tuyl is also making ready to pay a second dividend of 15 per cent on December 10 to creditors of the Knickerbocker Savings and Loan Company. This 15 per cent will make a total of 40 per cent which has been paid to the depositors of this failed institution.

W. J. CUMMINS SENTENCED

Banker to Serve Not Less than Four Years—Will Appeal.

William J. Cummins, former head of the directors of the Carnegie Trust Company, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Davis to serve not less than four years and eight months and not more than eight years and eight months in state's prison for appropriating for his own use a trust fund of $149,000. He was convicted last week by a jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

Although Cummins has never been convicted of crime before it was evident that Justice Davis wished to impose upon him the heaviest indeterminate sentence that was possible under the law. Cummins seemed unconcerned when he heard the sentence. Before he left his cell in the Tombs Cummins gave out this statement:

"When my appeal is heard I will be able to prove my innocence. I have sufficient evidence not yet introduced to clear my name of any complicity in any crime or misappropriation of money."

In giving his pedigree to the clerk of the court, Cummins said he was born in Tennessee, was fifty years old, married, had had religious instruction, was a moderate drinker and that his mother was still living.

Justice Seabury, of the Supreme Court, issued an order on District Attorney Whitman yesterday to show cause why a certificate of reasonable doubt in Cummins's case should not be issued next Monday morning.

District Attorney Whitman announced yesterday that the trial of Charles H. Hyde, former City Chamberlain, for alleged bribery, would begin on the first Monday in January in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

CURB BROKERS EXPELLED

Five Dismissed by Association for Non-Payment of Dues.

Five members of the New York Curb Market Association have been expelled from membership for non-payment of dues, which amount to $25 a year. These are the first cases of expulsion since the curb association was formed about a year ago, and are regarded as a warning to the members that drastic punishment will be meted out to any who fail to live up to the rules. The men who were dropped were George W. Gumpert, jr., Percy T. Hill, E. M. Horton, E. R. Hudson and Louis Levy.

This is the second time Mr. Levy has been disciplined by the curb management. Eight months ago he was suspended for three months on a technical charge of failing to notify the association of a change in his address.

MRS. CAMPBELL PROSECUTES MEN.

Henry Kronenthal, a Bellevue Hospital nurse, was fined $2 for disorderly conduct by Magistrate O'Connor in the Jefferson Market court yesterday. He was arrested on Thursday evening on complaint of Mrs. Katherine Campbell, secretary of the Bide-a-Wee-Home. Mrs. Campbell was trying to arrest Edward O'Donnell, a driver, because he kicked his horse, when, she said, Kronenthal interfered with her.

O'Donnell was fined $5 by Magistrate Corrigan. A third man, Louis Newman, was arrested on a charge of assault, preferred by Mrs. Campbell, and held in $300 bonds for examination next Tuesday. Bail was furnished.

"CURLY JOE" PAYS BILLS

Dr. Thos. Cassidy Proves Frank Witness Regarding Himself.

NEVER WORKS, HE SAYS

Has Innumerable Creditors, but Doesn't Know What He Owes, He Testifies.

Thomas Cassidy, brother of "Curly Joe" Cassidy, Democratic boss of Queens County, was examined yesterday in the City Court in supplementary proceedings on a judgment obtained by Weber & Heilbroner, haberdashers. Like other judgment debtors under similar circumstances Cassidy, who is a doctor, but does not work at the profession, told most completely what he did not have, and was even more frank than other men under supplementary examination.

For instance, he said he had never done anything in his life. With the political conditions that prevailed in Queens County this latter statement was not inconsistent with the fact that Cassidy was formerly Supervisor of the Bureau of Complaints at $2,100 a year. Cassidy said his brother Joseph had been supporting him, even paying his board at the Hotel Astor, where he stayed three months. Now he is living at the home of his brother at Far Rockaway.

The memory of the witness was not always good, and he could not say with certainty whether he owed $20,000 or $25,000, but anyway he said he had "innumerable creditors," with no money to pay them. It was only through his brother that he was able to be in the City Court, for Joe gave him $1 to pay his expenses.

Cassidy said he had lived with his brother for six years. With the exception of his stay at the Hotel Astor he has been at Far Rockaway all the time. He said: "I have been at the Hotel Astor since then, but have not the slightest idea as to time."

At one stage in the examination he said that he did nothing for his brother in return for his support, but later declared that when he went to the Hotel Astor it was always on business for his brother Joseph. He added: "I do real estate business for my brother. I get nothing for my services."

Cassidy said his weekly expense at the hotel had been "anywhere from $28," but he did not know the maximum figure. He knew that it was not $100 a week. This was the first time he had been examined in supplementary proceedings, Cassidy said.

Asked to mention one of his many creditors, Cassidy named the estate of Herman Jacoby. "I don't know the address. Of the amount of my indebtedness I have not the slightest idea. Probably $20,000 or $25,000, maybe more." Nor did he know what became of the considerations for this indebtedness.

Further on in answer to other questions the witness gave this biographical account of himself. "I do nothing. I never did anything. I am about thirty-two years old. I have no calling nor business. Never had any business. I am married, but not living with my family. I have no family. I do not support my wife. She does not support me. I am supported by my brother, Joseph Cassidy. He has supported me all my life. At times he has given me money for the purpose of furnishing me with clothes and personal furnishings. I am indebted to my brother for all his advances. I have no idea of the amount. I have not the slightest idea who supports my wife. I supported my wife until 1903. Never since. I practice no trade or profession. I am not a licensed physician. I am a medical physician. My bills were paid by my brother for my accommodation at the Hotel Astor."

Cassidy intimated that when he contracted the bills his intentions to pay were the best, but he had little prospect of raising the money to do so. He said: "I took a gamble as to my means to pay Weber & Heilbroner for my purchases. My brother provided me with a living, but why should he pay for this bill which I contracted?"

His bills at the Hotel Astor, the witness explained, he usually paid in cash, but that his last bill there had been paid with checks from brother Joe. "I employ no valet," he said.

REAL ESTATE MAN ARRESTED.

George R. Euell, at one time secretary of the Manhattan Real Estate Company, was arrested yesterday on an indictment charging him with complicity in the scheme to defraud investors through misuse of the mails, for which the members of J. C. Gavigan & Co., Mary L. Dugan and Herron Bayley were indicted several days ago.

EAGLE BY EXPRESS, $25

Washington Zoologist Accuses Companies of Overcharges.

PREPAYS $40 ON A GOAT

Tells Interstate Commerce Commission Excessive Rates on Live Animals Are the Rule.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, at a hearing on complaints of overcharges by express companies, held yesterday in the rooms of the Merchants' Association, No. 54 Lafayette street, received some expert information on the prices charged for shipping live animals for zoological gardens.

Cecil French, a zoologist, of Washington, offered testimony on specific cases of overcharge on live animal shipments, but Walker D. Hines, counsel for the express companies, put in the objection that such shipments were so unusual that it was unfair to base arguments on them.

French did not seem to think there was anything unusual about the shipments with which he was familiar, however, and was very positive in his statements that such shipments were persistently overcharged.

"We shipped a live eagle from Washington," he said, "and though the steamship company charged only $1.25 for food and maintenance, the United States Express Company charged $25.50 to transfer the bird from the boat to its destination, when the charge should have been only $10."

For a live goat shipment to Hagenbeck's circus, in Germany, Mr. French said, the express company demanded a prepayment of $40, when the actual cost should have been much less. Going down in the scale of size, a field mouse sent on a little journey by express cost him $3.55 in charges, when the correct charge should have been 35 cents.

Speaking generally, Mr. French declared that in the last four years 50 per cent of the shipments of live animals were overcharged, and in the last year he thought at least 25 per cent of the shipments were overcharged.

Mr. Hines objected to any general statements, particularly as based upon experience with shipments of the nature handled by Mr. French, but Commissioner Lane sustained the witness, remarking that the commission had on its files correspondence covering a great volume of overcharges on all kinds of shipments.

"We will give you access to these," he said to the representative of the express companies, "but we want it distinctly understood that the express companies shall not adopt any methods regarding these men who have made complaints to us that will cause them to complain again."

The Commissioner added that it had come to his knowledge that when an express company got the name of a complainant pressure of one kind and another was brought to bear upon him.

"The shipper finds it extremely disagreeable to get along with the agent of the carriers after he makes a complaint of that kind to us," he said, and then warned the counsel for the companies that anything of that kind in the future would result in action by the commission.

W. H. Chandler, assistant manager of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, took the stand to relate instances showing that the interstate rates were higher in many cases than the rates set by the state commissioners in the different states.

F. B. Deberhardt, secretary of the Merchants' Exchange, offered in evidence a list of reports from various concerns, such as local New York City express companies and department stores, stating the elements of cost.

Mr. Deberhardt had tabulated also a list of the complaints, classified according to their nature, that had been sent in to him by members of the exchange.

The hearing was adjourned to this morning at 11 o'clock, after Commissioner Lane had announced that he had extended the time in which the express companies might put in their answer from December 1 to 15.

LAWYER ASSAILS ROOSEVELT

Protests Against Clients' Illustrating 'Miscarriages of Justice.'

Theodore Roosevelt's article in "The Outlook" which used as an illustration of certain "miscarriages of justice" the case of Frank Brach was answered yesterday by Martin P. Lynch, the man's lawyer. Brach was tried before a jury in the County Court, Kings County, early in the week on the charge of criminally assaulting Alma Stopaner. Agnes Waugh, also an alleged victim of the prisoner, testified. The jury disagreed upon the case. The man is now awaiting a new trial. Mr. Lynch said:

Laying aside the perhaps flippant suggestion that it [Colonel Roosevelt's article] may have been written for the South, it none the less must have its bearing upon the future trials of the young man whose defence I have conducted with the honest belief that he is the victim of youthful exuberance, a zealous police force and hysterical women, themselves the victims of strong mental suggestions.

This young man has yet to undergo another ordeal before the court, and, believing as I do in his innocence, I cannot do less than enter my protest against an endeavor to prejudge this case and influence public sentiment.

Judge Fawcett held John Tanhus, a tailor, and Charles Dixon, a bartender, in $2,500 bail each for assault on Mary Maskowitz on October 7, when they were arraigned before him on indictments yesterday in the Kings County Court.

COHALAN COMMITTEE PAID $4,681

Other Election Expenses Filed with the Secretary of State.

Albany, Nov. 24.—The Daniel F. Cohalan Campaign Committee, which advocated the election of Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, of New York, certified to the Secretary of State to-day that it received $6,945 and spent $4,681. George J. Gillespie and John Delehunty contributed $500 each.

Herbert T. Ketchum, who was defeated for election as Supreme Court Justice in the 2d Judicial District, filed a statement showing he spent $2,602. He received $500 from W. H. English.

Franklin S. Patridge, treasurer of the committee which aided the candidacy of Henry De Forest Baldwin, fusion candidate for Supreme Court Justice in the 1st Judicial District, certified he received and spent $1,076. The largest contributors were Roger Foster, James Byrne and Franklin B. Lord, jr., each giving $250.

Edward I. Lindgren, chairman of the Kings County Socialist party, certified he received $1,643 and spent $1,031.

VISITORS IN CHILDREN'S COURT

Judge Lindsey and New Appointee of Gov. Foss Watch Proceedings.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of the Denver Juvenile court, visited Children's Court yesterday, spending about an hour on the bench with Chief Justice Russell. He said that he expected to return to New York in about a month, and would spend at least two weeks in and about Children's Court.

Another visitor was Daniel O'Conner, Commissioner of Criminal Reform, of Boston, recently appointed by Governor Foss to reorganize the Municipal Court system in that city. He is making a tour of the principal cities of the country investigating the various systems of juvenile reform.

TO MOBILIZE NAVAL MILITIA

Theoretical Problem Prepared by Verbeck.

Albany, Nov. 24.—There is now in process of solution by the naval militia a problem prepared by Adjutant General Verbeck in the nature of a theoretical mobilization of that branch of the state's forces on a supposed call by the President. This problem was prepared and issued to the naval militia without any preliminary notice to them, and is intended to test the preparedness of the several officers to execute the duties which would be required of them in such an event and to develop any weak points which may exist in the normal condition of the naval militia should it be unexpectedly called out for active service.

Rochester, Nov. 24.—Lieutenant Commander Walbridge, of the 3d Battalion, naval militia, received an order from headquarters at Albany this morning for all officers and men of the Rochester division to report at the armory at 7 o'clock to-night, ready for active service in New York City. Forty rounds of ammunition have been set out for each man.

Captain Robert P. Forshew, commanding the naval militia of the state, said last night that the orders would affect some nine hundred men, practically all of whom would be in this city to-day.

"Although we only received our first intimation of this move on Wednesday," the captain said, "the adjutant general now has in his hands all the details of how the designated movements will be carried out. Six hundred and fifty of the men belong to the New York division. The rest are coming from Buffalo, Rochester and Brooklyn.

"I expect Adjutant General Verbeck in the city to-morrow, and he will probably issue immediate orders for the completion of the manœuvres. This will necessitate the moving of about 80 per cent of the men to certain points of Long Island mentioned in the original instructions. If the orders come to-morrow, as expected, the whole movement should be finished by Sunday. There will be two ships employed in the game—the Wasp and the Gloucester—both of Spanish War fame."

MRS. SITTIG'S CHRISTMAS TREE.

The Christmas Tree Society, organized for the purpose of providing presents and entertainments for the destitute children of Brooklyn on Christmas Day, asks cooperation in making this a Merry Christmas for poor little waifs who otherwise will not know what Christmas means.

Last year this society, headed by Mrs. Frank Sittig, received $668.36 in cash and more than $2,000 worth of gifts. "He who gives quickly, gives doubly."

If of a morning we talk evening suits and fur overcoats—

Or motoring coats—

If we talk handsome Scotch tweed and cheviot suits—

Or say a word only to boys or to youths—

Or don't talk at all about the sort of clothes you yourself want—

Just remember we sell everything man or boy wears, and everything ready-to-wear—

With no "ifs" or "buts" to butt in should by any chance anything prove disappointing—"your money back."

THE WEATHER REPORT.

Official Record and Forecast.—Washington, Nov. 24.—The storm that was central over the Great Lakes Thursday has moved to the New England coast and it has increased greatly in intensity. It has caused rains and snows in the north Atlantic states, rain in the south Atlantic states and snow in the Great Lake region, the Ohio Valley and the mountain districts as far south as Eastern Tennessee and Western North Carolina. High winds occurred Friday afternoon on the south Atlantic coast, and increasing winds were reported from the middle Atlantic and New England coast Friday night.

Storm warnings were displayed Friday morning on the Atlantic coast from Eastport, Me., to Jacksonville, Fla.

Over the region from the Mississippi Valley west to the Pacific coast the weather remained fair during the last twenty-four hours.

Decidedly colder weather prevails over the region east of the Mississippi River, except New England, and Friday night freezing temperature prevailed as far south as North Carolina, South Carolina, Northern Georgia and Northern Alabama. Over the plains states, the Mississippi Valley and the Northwestern states, and a reaction to higher temperatures is in progress.

The indications are that the weather will be fair Saturday and Sunday over practically the entire country.

The temperature will be lower Saturday on the immediate Atlantic coast. It will rise Saturday in the Mississippi Valley, Saturday and Sunday in the lake region, the Ohio Valley and the Gulf states, and Sunday throughout the Atlantic states. The temperature will be moderate Saturday and Sunday over the plains states and the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions.

Steamers departing Saturday for European ports will have high west winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

Forecast for Special Localities.—For Northern New England, clearing and colder to-day; fair Sunday; high northwest winds.

For Southern New England, fair and much colder to-day; fair Sunday; high northwest winds, diminishing.

For Eastern New York, fair and colder to-day; fair Sunday, with rising temperature; high northwest winds, diminishing.

For Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, fair and colder to-day; fair Sunday, with rising temperature; brisk northwest winds, diminishing.

For West Virginia, fair to-day; fair and warmer Sunday.

For Western Pennsylvania and Western New York, fair to-day; fair and warmer Sunday; moderate west winds.
