GIANTS RIDE ROUGH-SHOD OVER PHILLIES

Rube Marquard Wins Tenth Game in a Row in the Morning Battle.

CRANDALL ALSO IN FORM

Pitches New York to Its Ninth Straight Victory Before a Big Crowd in the Afternoon.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Philadelphia, May 30.—The Giants fell into a soft spot so honey sweet with victory here to-day that success began to cloy. They took two games from Dooin's men to make a Philadelphia holiday and accomplished the same with such facility that the 30,000-odd "fans" who saw both games were about ready to call the National League pennant race settled and to ask for new deal. Why mention the fact that the Cincinnati Reds, New York's closest rivals, dropped two more games to Chicago? The Reds have almost ceased to be a menace to the minions of McGraw. The result of the morning game was 7 to 1, while that of the afternoon stanza was 6 to 1.

In making it nine straight victories for the third time this season the Giants were commanded by the great Rube Marquard and the convalescent Otis Crandall. Marquard curved the ball over in the curtain raiser and captured his tenth consecutive victory, three of which have been won from the Phillies. Crandall was pitted against a bevy of Quaker pitching beauties in the afternoon contest, which the largest crowd of the season turned out to see. Alexander was his principal opponent. Dooin also used Chalmers, Shultz and Brennan as well in the encounter, but he couldn't pick a man who could give Crandall a fight.

Marquard was hit rather freely by the Phillies, but his masterly work in the pinches made the drives count for little. Nine saffies were corralled off his benders in that first game, but after the first frame, where three were bunched for the only run the Phillies scored, the lanky southpaw sailed along smoothly. He struck out seven batsmen in all, making Dooin's followers look foolish whenever a hit was badly needed.

Seaton was his opponent, but the youngster did not prove such a difficult proposition for the visitors, who gathered up ten hits. Three of these were picked up by Fred Snodgrass, but Larry Doyle was the one who clinched the victory with a double in the seventh inning, which scored one run and led up directly to two more. The five errors which the Phillies made behind Seaton contributed considerably to his downfall.

Crandall was the master of the Phillies at all times during the afternoon fray, allowing only five hits and giving one pass. For the first time this season Dooin sent Chalmers to the firing line in the hope that he would show some of the skill he revealed last year. But not so. He passed the first three men that faced him and paved the way for three runs, which were enough to win the game then and there.

Alexander relieved Chalmers before a man was retired, but errors by the Phillies accounted for the trio of tallies that followed. The visitors gathered two more runs off Dooin's stars by clean hitting before he stepped aside to let Brown bat for him in the fifth. Shultz then took up the burden, being greeted by Crandall's double and Devore's single, which netted another run. Shultz gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh, and Brennan finished the game, holding the visitors runless.

The Giants outclassed the Phillies in every department of the game. They made seventeen hits in the two games count for thirteen runs, while the best the home team could do was to score two runs on fourteen hits. Three errors for New York to nine for Philadelphia bespoke a vast difference in fielding. The pitching of Marquard and Crandall was far superior to anything the home team could show.

The Phillies were the first to score in the morning game. Paskert was easy, but singles by Titus, Magee and Luderus filled the bases. Walsh walked, bringing in a run, but Downey forced Magee at the plate, while Doolan forced Downey at second. A single by Becker and a pass to Herzog with two out gave the Giants a run in the second. An error by Walsh on Devore's rap and singles by Doyle and Snodgrass filled the bases to start the third. Josh counted when Murray forced Snodgrass at second. Red was out trying to steal, while Becker lifted to Titus.

Snodgrass's single in the sixth, Titus's error on Becker's drive and Herzog's single added another. Doubles by Fletcher, Doyle and Murray, Marquard's single and a pass to Snodgrass netted three in the seventh. Snoograss was hit in the ninth and Murray singled. The two executed a double steal. Snodgrass taking third, to cross the plate when Becker flied to Paskert.

In the second game Chalmers started off by passing Devore, Doyle and Snodgrass in a row. Alexander came to the rescue and fanned Murray. Magee muffed Becker's fly, letting Devore and Doyle count, while a wild throw by Moran to catch Beals napping at first enabled Snodgrass to tally. Becker took third, but was caught at the plate when Herzog tapped to the infield.

Fletcher's double and Devore's single added another run in the second, while Murray's double and Becker's single swelled the total in the fifth. Crandall greeted Shultz with a double in the sixth and Devore got a life when the pitcher threw his bunt wild to Luderus, Otis taking third. Doyle's single scored Crandall.

The Giants left for home to-night to open a series with the St. Louis Cardinals at the Polo Grounds to-morrow.

BROOKLYN SMITES BOSTON

Rucker Steps Into Breach and Quells a Rally.

SMALL HOLIDAY GATHERING

Kent Holds Braves for Six Innings, but Weakens and Nearly Loses Game.

Kent, the young pitcher of the Brooklyn Superbas, pitched in faultless style for six innings of the game with the Boston Braves at Washington Park yesterday morning, but he blew up in the seventh inning and soared to such great heights that before the inning was over Dahlen derricked him and sent G. Napoleon Rucker into the box to save the game after five runs had been hammered over the plate. The Georgian was in good form and allowed only one hit, this a home run by Jackson to the outlying district of Gowanus Canal, Brooklyn's classic body of water. Despite the rally the Superbas managed to gather eight hits, and, aided by four errors, won by a score of 7 to 6. Rain prevented the game scheduled for the afternoon.

The day was threatening, and only 2,000 "fans" were on hand to witness the affair. Just to show how loyal a Brooklyn crowd can be, the "fans" stood up in the ninth inning and rooted heart and lungs for Boston to at least tie the score in that frame and win out at leisure. McDonald, the infielder of the Braves, was called to the home plate by Ownie Yingling, and while his team mates gathered in the mid distance was decorated with the highest insignia of the Knights of Columbus. The crowd was slightly in doubt as to just what was going on, but they cheered just as if all were in on the deal.

Although Hess was no great puzzle to the Brooklyn batters, he might well have pulled the game out of the fire, but in order to win almost any game you've got to stop kicking the ball around, and this Boston absolutely refused to do. It so happened that not a few of their blunders came when Brooklyn had runners on the paths and so made the high road to the plate easy of access.

While the Brooklyn defence was far from perfect, they managed to refrain from making any costly plays when Boston had men on the paths. Wheat dropped a wicked smash off Sweeney's bat in the seventh inning, when there was a runner on third, but it was a long hit and the runner would have scored anyway.

It was not all ragged, however, and a few of the athletes made plays which merited the unstinted applause of the crowd. Sweeney had a busy time at the keystone sack and made the most of his half dozen chances. Jackson roved about in the outfield and made three neat captures, while Daly was kept on the go to get four. Spratt had three chances in all, but muddled two of them in the most approved fashion. Spratt made amends in a measure for his inability to hold the ball by his sturdy work with the bat. He poled out two singles in four times up, while Kirke and Daubert did as well.

The scoring was started by Brooklyn, who put three runs over the plate on a pass to Daly, an infield out, a hit batsman, Daubert's double and a single by Wheat with Hummel's out at first. They scored again in the fifth inning on an error by Spratt and a daring steal home by Kent, which rivals the performances of Leon Ames. In the following frame they collected three more hits on a single by Daubert, Hummel's triple, a base on balls to Tooley and a single by Phelps, which was in turn followed by an infield out by Kent.

Then came the explosive seventh inning. With one out Jackson singled and Devlin was passed. Spratt bounced a little one to Kent, but Smith muffed the throw at third and the bases were filled. That gave Boston the chance, and they improved on it so well that before the inning was over five runs were scored and Kent had been banished, while Nap Rucker entered the fight. In the following frame Jackson larruped the ball for a home run into the corner of left field, but that was all. When the team came up for the ninth frame the crowd rooted for them, but in vain. Rucker retired the side on half a dozen pitched balls.

REDS LOSE TWO GAMES

Continue to Slide by Going Down Before the Chicago Cubs.

Chicago, May 30.—Chicago made it four straight victories over the Cincinnati Reds here to-day by winning both games of a double-header at 3 to 2 and 8 to 4.

The Cubs slaughtered Bagby and Smith early in the second game, obtained a lead of six runs and never were in danger of defeat.

Frank Schulte, 1911 champion home run hitter of the National League, made his first circuit smash of the season in the first game, scoring a runner ahead of him.

Cincinnati has now lost ten out of the last eleven games played.

CARDINALS POUND O'TOOLE

Almost Take Two Games from Pirates When Marty Weakens.

Pittsburgh, May 30.—The Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals broke even in the Memorial Day double-header played on Forbes Field here to-day. The Cardinals rushed away with the morning game and downed the Corsairs by a score of 8 to 3, only to go down to defeat in the afternoon by a score of 9 to 7.

Marty O'Toole, the $22,500 pitcher, who has yet to show his worth, was lucky to get away with the verdict in the afternoon struggle. Robinson had to enter the game in the ninth inning, after O'Toole had given three bases on balls and allowed three hits to produce as many runs, with the bases full and two out. Robinson hit a batter and forced home another run, but wound up the inning by striking out Bliss.

REMEMBER BASEBALL MEN

Graves of Pulliam and Powers Decorated in Louisville.

Louisville, May 30.—Departed baseball heroes were remembered on Memorial Day here. While flowers were being strewn on the graves of the Grand Army of the Republic veterans in the federal burying grounds, two mounds in local cemeteries, under which rest all that is mortal of Harry Pulliam and "Mike" Powers, were decorated with garlands. Flowers for Pulliam's grave were sent here by the American Baseball Writers' Association. Those for Powers's grave were sent by the Philadelphia Athletics.

BOSTON WINS ONLY ONE

Walter Johnson a Stumbling Block to Red Sox.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Boston, May 30.—Boston captured the morning game of the double-header at Fenway Park to-day, and downed the Senators after a bitter pitching duel, by a score of 3 to 2. Engle, a youngster who received a trial from Griffith, pitched a rare brand of baseball and held the hard hitting Red Sox to four hits. He failed to receive the proper kind of support, however, and errors were largely responsible for the runs scored against him. Bedient, who was on the mound for Boston, allowed only five hits.

The afternoon game was sung to a different tune. Washington sent forth Walter Johnson, the speed marvel of the league, and Boston went down to defeat by a score of 5 to 0. Johnson was in rare form, and retired thirteen men on strikes. O'Brien was easy for the Senators, who hit him almost at will.

Johnson's sensational stop of a liner from Lewis's bat in the sixth frame was the feature of the defensive work.
