YANKEES WIN AND LOSE

New York Breaks Even in Double-Header with Browns.

FORD LOSES A DECISION

Errors Bring About Downfall of Wolverton's Star, but McConnell Wins Easily.

Seven thousand "fans" bade a gentle riddance to the St. Louis Browns at the American League Park yesterday afternoon, where Stovall's pets and the Yankees clashed in a double header with honors easy at the close of the day. The performance marked the farewell appearance of the Mound City burlesquers on the Hilltop grounds.

A distinct shock was thrown into the Farrell camp in the first game. After rating along nicely for seven full innings, with the score 3 to 1 in their favor, the Yankees' defence went on strike, and before any amicable settlement could be made the Browns pushed over three runs and won by a score of 4 to 3, with Russell Ford pitching. The final game was a battle of pitchers, between George McConnell and Mitchell. The New York twirler outpitched his youthful opponent and the Yankees won a well played game by a score of 2 to 1.

Even Stovall admitted that he disliked to lave a game forced on him, but the Yankees did not care a lick. Daniels, Sterrett and Paddock simply insisted that St. Louis win a game, and under the circumstances there was nothing else to do. So it happened that in the eighth inning of that eventful first game that the hard—and to a degree the effective—work of Russell Ford was undone. It must be admitted, however, that the Browns took liberties with Ford in that frame, but the three hits they got could not have done such damage had the Yankees played real, high grade baseball.

With one out, Stovall slashed one to left field for a base, and Williams followed with a single to the same place. Right there the fireworks were touched off. Daniels fumbled the ball and Sterrett, after recovering the sphere, threw for altitude and distance, the ball sailing to the grandstand. Stovall scored and Williams went to third. Compton singled, scoring Williams, and took second on the throw to the plate. He kept right on running, however, and reached third when Paddock made a glorious muff of a perfect throw by Sweeney. Kutina batted for Mowrey at this important juncture and hit one to Simmons. A nice, slow, little one. "Hack" picked it up and slammed it at Sweeney, but it was low and Compton tallied. Kutina in the interim went to second base, but Ford decided that if the fielders couldn't end it he could and, furthermore, would. He struck out Alexander and Allison.

The second game was well fought all the way through. McConnell and Mitchell pitched with rare skill for five innings before the plate was even threatened, but in the sixth frame the Browns got to McConnell for one hit, which with an error by Chase gave them one run. In the following frame the Yankees came right back and won the game by bunching four solid hits on Mitchell. McConnell held the Browns to half a dozen hits, while the Yankees combed down Mitchell for nine safe ones.

A triple by Chase, an error by Austin, a fielder's choice, and a single by Simmons scored two runs for the Yankees in the first inning of the first game. The Browns scored in the fourth on a fluke double by Pratt, which Sterrett lost in the sun, and a triple by Williams. The Yankees scored their final run in the fifth frame on a single by Ford and a double by Hal Chase. Then followed the eighth inning, when the Browns won as told before.

In the sixth inning of the second game Shotten singled to centre, and Austin was safe on an error by Chase. Shotten went to third, and when Austin saw that Hartzell had left second unprotected he at once moved up a base. Shotten at the plate died on a bounder by Pratt to Hartzell, but Austin scored when Stovall laid down a bunt. Hartzell singled in the seventh inning, and Sterrett bounced a triple off the left field fence, scoring Roy. The Princeton boy soon tallied when Sweeney singled to centre field.

WOOD SHINES FOR RED SOX

Scores Twenty-sixth Victory in Defeating Tigers.

Boston, Aug. 20.—Wood won his twenty-sixth game of the season and Boston made it three straight from Detroit by a score of 6 to 2 to-day. Dubuc's change of pace troubled the Red Sox at times, but they managed by mixing telling hits and daring base running with Tiger errors to gather half a dozen runs in instalments of two each. Ball's two doubles were especially timely. Stanage was forced to retire in the third when he was spiked by Ball on a double steal in which the latter scored. An error and a passed ball assisted Detroit to its two runs.

GIANTS BACK IN FORM

Make Clean Sweep of Series with St. Louis Cardinals.

HARMON POUNDED FREELY

Snodgress's Triple and Three Singles by Wiltse Play a Big Part in Victory.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

St. Louis, Aug. 20.—The Giants made a clean sweep of the series with the Cardinals by winning their third victory here this afternoon. The score was 5 to 1. They made free and effective use of their bats with men on bases, and hit the curves of Rob Harmon almost at will. George Wiltse, on the other hand, while hit hard at times, was at his best in the tight places, and kept the home team at a respectful distance. Since the Chicago Cubs had little trouble in downing the Phillies in two games in the Windy City, the Cubs gained a notch, and are now five and a half games behind the Giants.

Fred Merkle was unable to play because of the injury to his knee, and Fred Snodgrass covered first base in capable fashion during his absence. Immediately after the game the Giants caught a train for Chicago, where they will meet the Cubs in a single game to-morrow.

Snodgrass and Larry Doyle were contributing causes to the defeat of the Cardinals. Between them they drove home four of the five runs scored. George Wiltse answered for the last run with the second of his three hits. Snodgrass made only one safe wallop, but that one drive was a triple in the third inning, when Chief Meyers and George Wiltse were on the lines waiting for some such thing to happen. In that same frame Doyle scored Snodgrass with a single. Taken all in all, Harmon had a most miserable time of it, and ten good, solid hits rang off the bats of the New York men at a time when they were most needed.

While the Cardinals treated the offerings of Wiltse with a degree of familiarity that bordered closely on contempt, still they were not capable of accomplishing much when the veteran southpaw laid himself out to pitch. They wriggled out of the horsecollars by bunching two singles and a double in the eighth inning, but the game was pretty safe by that time, and Wiltse had let down in his pace. Also, two men were out at the time, and when he thought that trouble threatened he soon got Hauser to lift a weak little fly to the safe and sure Jack Murray. Wiltse gave only one base on balls.

The defence of the home team wobbled badly in spots, and gave the Giants a little extra leeway. Their bobbles, however, had little bearing on the result, although they aided in one run scored by the opposition. Oakes, Wingo and Huggins made plays that are not recognized in the most select baseball society. The Giants, on the other hand, played the game for all there was in it. Hypercritical scoring perhaps might have charged Fletcher with an error in the ninth inning, when Bliss dribbled a slow, twisting roller to him. Larry Doyle, Beals Becker and Wiltse himself were all over the field, and mowed down everything that happened their way.

The scoring began in the third inning. Meyers was in collision with a pitched ball and took his base. Fletcher sent a long fly to Magee, which was caught only after a long run, and Wiltse singled to right field. Then Snodgrass smashed the ball on a line into left field for three bases, bringing Meyers and Wiltse home. Larry Doyle clamored for his share of the spotlight, and he won it by singling to right field, scoring Snodgrass. Becker singled, causing more consternation, but Murray hit into a double play.

In the fifth frame Fletcher drew a pass, and after Wiltse laid down a bunt and Snodgrass died on three hearty swings on the ambient atmosphere, Doyle singled and scored Fletcher. Larry ended the inning by trying to steal second base, with disastrous results. A couple of fine little errors helped the Giants in their quest for runs in the seventh inning. Herzog singled, and when Oakes let the ball filter through his legs Charlie took second. He advanced to third when Huggins maltreated a bouncer by Fletcher, and all hands were safe. Wiltse inserted his second single at this point and scored Herzog.

A double by Smith and a single by Konetchy scored the lone run for St. Louis in the eighth inning.

CUBS IN DOUBLE VICTORY

Phillies' Pitchers No Puzzle to Chicago Batsmen.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Philadelphia was defeated by Chicago in a double header to-day by scores of 6 to 1 and 13 to 3.
