YAMADA DEFEATS CLINE

Japanese Billiard Expert Outplays His Opponent.

CLOSE CALL FOR DEMAREST

Gets Best of Taylor by Narrow Margin of Three Points in Close Match.

By a bright and sparkling run of 132 in the middle portion of his string Calvin Demarest managed to defeat Al Taylor by the narrowest of margins in the continuation of the 18.2 balk line billiard championship tournament yesterday afternoon, while Kodji Yamada outplayed Harry Cline upon the tables set up in the belvedere on the roof of the Hotel Astor. Demarest won by three points, as the final score was 500 points to 497. The average of the youthful professional was 15 20-32, and his best runs 132, 56 and 49. By one of those freaks of the game Taylor, having one less turn at the table, figured an average of 16 1-31, with high runs of 73, 65 and 49.

Yamada, after the first few innings, led Cline all the way to the end of their match, which was scored at 500 points to 404. The Japanese wielder of the cue, on the whole, performed rather indifferently. His average fell to an even 10 and his high runs were 63, 35 and 34. Cline's average was 8 12-49 and his runs 65, 32 and 30. The American characterized some of the fortuate scratches of his opponent as "Japanese luck." On several occasions the diminutive Oriental played into kiss shots with marvellous precision. It was nothing short of deft juggling of the ivory globes. At other times he was unquestionably lucky, and on the whole he got the best of the rolls and the breaks of the balls. Right through the contest Yamada used the massé freely, with either the right or left hand. Whenever in doubt he sent the orbs cavorting around the table, so that Cline rarely faced anything that savored of a set-up by the widest stretch of the imagination, and was compelled to play for all he got.

Demarest, with the exception of two or three innings, wielded his cue with poor and uncertain results and only saved himself when Taylor had the match within his grasp. Twice he got into arguments with Tom Gallagher. First it was about Taylor's leaving his chalk on the table rim and in the thirty-first inning Demarest objected to Gallagher's calling a miss before the cue ball had stopped rolling. Demarest was of the opinion that he had counted on a bank shot into the corner in this inning, and it was a ticklish situation for him, as Taylor was almost at the end of his string. Gallagher ruled against him, however, and he had to retire.

The best performance on the part of Demarest came with his twenty-fifth visit to the table, when he put together his run of 132. He at once collected the globes and by dainty and true nursing along the lines counted in his most dashing style. During this run Demarest often counted ten points, hardly moving the ivories an inch from their first position. His control was masterful and he finally retired in a short follow shot, easy enough in itself, but which missed because Demarest was endeavoring to maintain his faultless position.

Working out runs by close and delicate nursing, Willie Hoppe defeated George Slosson by 500 points to 234 in the first of the matches decided in the evening. The execution of the younger player was swift and sure. His average was 23 17-21 and his best runs 122, 91 and 82. Slosson's average was 11 14-20, with high runs of 50, 43 and 29.

It was on his sixth turn at the table that Hoppe opened the streak of brilliancy which was to overwhelm the veteran. By rapid manipulation of the ivories along the lines and in the corners Hoppe reeled off 122 before he retired because of an overplayed spread draw. He was at the table almost immediately again, and the same fluent carroms came from his cue for 91.

Ora Morningstar defeated George Sutton by the score of 500 to 385 in the other evening match. Morningstar performed in sensational fashion, overcoming a most discouraging lead by putting together a run of 167 on his twenty-fourth turn at the table.

This figure is the high record run of the tournament and tops by one carrom the run which Slosson made against Demarest. Morningstar's average was 16 20-30 with other high runs of 62, 52 and 38. Sutton's average was 12 25-30, and his best runs 91, 82 and 58.

Sutton began in fair stroke, and by his usual deft handling of the globes soon had Morningstar trailing him. The latter did not appear to correctly judge the speed of the table and experienced all sorts of trouble in making the ivories respond to his cue.

Finally, when seemingly defeated, Morningstar ticked off his big cluster of 167. It was filled with showy masses and cross table shots and he rang all the changes on balk-line position as he worked through it. In attempting to hold position he finally bungled a draw to the cushion and retired.

Morningstar thereafter played strongly, finishing with a collection of nervy shots across the foot of the table.

The matinee matches will begin at 2 o'clock to-day, Yamada meeting Taylor and Cline engaging Slosson. In the evening Hoppe will play Morningstar and Sutton meets Demarest.

DRIGGS ADELPHI'S STAR

Scores Two Touchdowns That Defeat "Poly Prep."

BOTH TEAMS FIGHT HARD

Intercepted Forward Passes Play Major Part in Close, Gruelling Struggle.

Adelphi Academy, playing a strong, consistent game, defeated the football eleven of Polytechnic Preparatory School in one of the keenest and best scholastic games seen this season at Washington Park yesterday afternoon by a score of 14 to 6. It was on an intercepted forward pass that Adelphi scored the first touchdown, throwing the Poly team on the defensive and making it fight an uphill battle for the remainder of the game. Poly scored their touchdown in the closing moments of the fourth period.

Driggs, the Adelphi fullback, intercepted one of Poly Prep's forward passes on his own 35-yard line soon after the third period started, and raced sixty-five yards to a touchdown. A successful pass, Du Tremblay to Cochrane, resulted in Poly's lone score. Driggs added the winning touchdown to Adelphi's score when he broke away for another brilliant run of forty-five yards, which rested the ball on Poly's three-yard line, and then scored on the next play.

Driggs, indeed, was the rock on which the Poly eleven struck and then broke. His running was remarkable, and when the inferior grade of interference which the Adelphi backs gave is considered it was little short of wonderful. Repeatedly he crashed into the Poly line absolutely alone, but, picking his openings with rare skill, he was able to go through for long gains. His dash for forty-five yards, which was turned into a touchdown later, was made on a direct plunge through tackle from right formation. Time and again he ripped through the line or circled the ends for gains which varied from ten to fifteen yards. His punting was also excellent. Twice, against the wind, he drove the leather forty-five yards.

Five thousand school lads and girls were on hand with banners, streamers and unbounded enthusiasm. Led by a corps of lusty lunged leaders and a brass band, the cheering sections kept up an incessant racket. After the game was over a band of Adelphi "rooters" walked across the field bearing a casket on which was inscribed, "Here lie the hopes of Poly Prep."

Adelphi won the toss and defended the west goal, with a brisk wind at their backs. Poly kicked off. After a series of plays, varied by an exchange of punts, Adelphi worked the ball down to Poly's 10-yard line, where the Gray forwards braced like a stone wall. Poly got the ball on downs and Du Tremblay booted it out of danger for the moment. The half ended with no score.

In the third period Poly started like champions, and had the ball down to Adelphi's 35-yard line, when Du Tremblay tried a forward pass. Driggs, however, was in the path, and, catching the oval, ran to the goal line, sixty-five yards away. Shortly after the fourth quarter started Adelphi worked the ball down the field until it rested five yards from the goal line, with a first down. Adelphi charged and fought fiercely, but on the fifth down the oval was still three inches by actual measurement from the last chalk mark. Du Tremblay's boot averted danger, but only for a moment. On the next play Driggs rammed through tackle for forty-five yards, and after a shift play failed crashed over the line for a touchdown. He kicked an easy goal.

Fighting a fight of forlorn hope, Poly went in and played their best game in the last few moments. Two forward passes were caught for long gains, one by Jim Meenan, when three Adelphi men were set for it. Then when the whole team shifted over to the side lines, the ball on the 25-yard line, Cochran ran out all uncovered and caught Du Tremblay's perfect pass for a score.

"Big" Bill Edwards, of Princeton, was among the spectators.

NEWMEN PILES UP SCORE

Hamilton Soundly Trounced by Fast Heavy Team.

The heavy Newmen team proved too much for Hamilton Institute yesterday at Hackensack, N. J., beating them by a score of 27 to 0. The victors played a plunging game throughout.

After the first kickoff Hamilton rushed the ball to the 20-yard line, only to lose it on a fumble.

Harris and Murnane played well for Hamilton, but Newmen's line was too strong for them. Rohan and Nelson played a star game for Newmen.

PRIZE TO MISS HOLLINS

Wins Gross Score Award by Safe Margin on Links.

FIND COURSE A HARD ONE

Mrs. Blumenthal Net Winner in Women's One-Day Golf Tourney at Oakland Club.

Although she unintentionally disqualified herself for a play-off for the best gross score at Salisbury last Monday by leaving before the field had half finished, Miss Marion Hollins, of Westbrook, made up for it yesterday by easily taking the gross award in the one-day tournament over the links of the Oakland Golf Club. Miss Hollins's 96 was four strokes better than the efforts of Mrs. N. P. Rogers, of Baltusrol, and Mrs. Lawrence Swift, of Englewood. Mrs. Henry Blumenthal, of the Century Country Club, was the net winner with a card of 101—9—92.

Delightful, but hard, was the verdict of the women when asked how they liked the course, and the scores proved that Oakland with its hills was a difficult proposition. Miss Hollins's 96, in fact, was the only score less than 100 out of a field of twenty-five players, including many who have been prize winners this season.

Most of the Westbrook girl's difficulty was on the greens. She drove excellently, getting fine distance and direction most of the time, while her middle game was good.

She was bunkered at the long third, and at the dog's leg ninth she topped her drive into a convenient point of woods and had to take four more shots before she could get on the green, finishing the outward journey with three puts, for a total of 50. Other than these two instances, her extra strokes had to be taken on the greens.

It was much the same story on the easier and shorter inward route. The seven at the long sixteenth was through indifferent work on the green, while the six at the home hole was caused by four tries at the cup. She was on the green in two, the hole being 218 yards and uphill.

With the ball lying to the extreme right edge, she ran it as far to the other side on her first attempt, and on her second came within six feet of the hole. She missed that, too, finishing the last nine holes in 46. She had fine threes at the 235-yard fourth and at the 189-yard thirteenth, where she drove the green. Her five at the long sixth and her four at the twelfth were capital.

Her card follows:

Out .....5 6 7 3 5 5 5 6 8—50
In .....5 4 4 3 6 5 7 6 6—46—96

The scores follow:

	Gross.	Hcp.	Net.

DARKNESS HALTS THE GAME

Kingsley Piles Up Score on Pingry Just the Same.

Darkness called a halt in the second period of the football game between Kingsley School, of Essex Fells, N. J., and Pingry School, on the former's field yesterday. The score was 27 to 6 in Kingsley's favor. The Pingry eleven was an hour late in taking the field.

Boggren, the Pingry halfback, intercepted a forward pass on his own 5-yard line, and skirted the Kingsley left end to dash 85 yards for a touchdown.

Kingsley scented a short game and rushed the Pingry eleven throughout. The forward pass was used continually in puzzling formations.

The line-up follows:

Kingsley (27).	Position.	Pingry (6).
A. Maxwell	L. E.	Harris
McIntosch	L. T.	Toeritz
Goggin	L. G.	Bosch

HARD PRACTICE ON HEIGHTS

New York University Will Have New Quarter To-day.

Practice for the New York University football team yesterday afternoon in preparation for the game with Rhode Island State College to-day on Ohio Field was strenuous. For the first hour of the afternoon's work Olcott, as usual, had a punting practice. After that the 'varsity was lined up against the second team in stiff scrimmage until it was too dark to see the ball.

ALL HAIL KING HORSE!

Show Opens at the Garden with a Private View.

DECORATION EFFECT NOVEL

Visitors See Great Hall Turned Into a Scene from Old Japan.

After an absence of nearly a year "King Horse" came into his own at Madison Square Garden last night. To be sure, the twenty-eighth annual show, under the direction of the National Horse Show Association of America, does not begin until 2 o'clock this afternoon, but for all that many of the blueblood in horsedom were there, and a few went through their paces on the tanbark—that is, after the steam roller made its noisy exit.

At the "private view" last night the visitors were surprised to find the Garden transformed into a miniature Japan. The boxes and the seats back of them are arranged in terraces, while the dividing line between these and the boardwalk is an imitation stone wall supporting a bamboo partition. The roof imitates a vast expanse of blue sky, and along the sides of the promenade are rows of giant Japanese cherry trees in blossom, the branches arching toward the centre and meeting at the sides, where they support vines of wistaria in bloom.

This is the first time in the history of the association that decoration along such lines has been attempted, and the verdict among the critics last night was that in producing a novelty the management had certainly succeeded, but whether or not the present color scheme will meet with as much general approval as past efforts, considerable doubt seems to exist.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt will give a luncheon for the foreign officers and udges of the show in the clubroom at 1 o'clock this afternoon. After inspecting the decorations and ring last night visitors were entertained in the dining room at the Madison avenue side.

The programme for to-day follows:

Afternoon—2 o'clock, judging fifteen novice harness horses, Class 42; 2:20, judging six pairs of Shetland ponies in harness, Class 76; 2:50, judging twenty novice saddle horses, Class 85; 3:20, judging thirteen novice roadsters, Class 25; 3:50, judging eight ponies, children to ride, Class 103; 4:05, judging ten polo ponies, Class 108; 4:20, judging eleven ladies' saddle horses, ladies to ride, Class 93; 4:50, judging thirty-nine hunters or jumpers, first section of Class 136; 6, recess.

Evening—8 o'clock, judging nine saddle horses, Class 87; 8:20, judging fourteen novice harness horses, Class 44; 8:50, judging twenty-eight novice saddle horses, Class 86; 9:20, judging fourteen militia mounts, Class 111; 9:50, judging thirty-nine hunters or jumpers, second section of Class 136.

PENN STRONG ON DEFENCE

Carlisle Indians Will Meet Stiff Resistance To-day.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Philadelphia, Nov. 15.—The University of Pennsylvania eleven took its final signal practice prior to the game with the Indians this afternoon on the links of the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, at Chestnut Hill. Andy Smith was very much pleased with the showing of the men. Gus Zeigler, the former Mercersburg coach, was on the field helping Smith train his men. Gaston and Wolferth were also out to instruct the players.

Marshall will play quarterback to-morrow, and Harrington and Minds will play the halfback positions, with Captain Mercer at fullback. Young and Jourdet will play the ends, Wilson and Dillon the tackles, Journeay and MacNaughton the guards, and Simpson will play centre. This is the strongest defence that Pennsylvania can muster, and with the men in good condition the Red and Blue is optimistic over the prospects.

Smith gave the men a short but snappy drill this afternoon. Cold weather put new life in the Pennsylvania team, and the work to-day was very encouraging.

JOHANNSEN IS ELIGIBLE

Declared Member of Irish-American Athletic Club.

Frans W. Johannsen, of Finland, who, running under the colors of the Irish-American A. C. won second place in the senior metropolitan cross-country championship on last Saturday, was declared a bona fide member of the Irish-American Athletic Club and eligible to compete for the club by the Metropolitan Registration Committee at a special meeting last night. Johannsen's eligibility was questioned because he is not a citizen of the United States, and represented Finland in the Olympic Games in Stockholm last summer.

Final decision will have to be made by the National Registration Committee to determine whether or not Johannsen became a non-resident member of the club after representing his country in Sweden. The cases of Tom Collins and J. J. McNamara, who were suspended for competing in the Mayo Men's games, were tabled for further consideration. William Powers, of the Irish-American Athletic Club, who was declared a professional, also applied for reinstatement, but his case was also tabled.

TIMELY BITS OF SPORT

Murphy May Make Johnny Evers President of Club.

DREW NOT A PROFESSIONAL

Sam Harris Comes Out with Announcement That He Hopes to Buy Phillies.

So well pleased is Charles W. Murphy, president of the Chicago Cubs, with his new manager, John J. Evers, that yesterday he said it was possible that Evers would become the chief executive of the club.

"Evers may become president of the club," Murphy declared. "I am planning a trip around the world, and if I go I will make Evers head of the club, as well as manager. He is fitted for the position, for he has the brains to grasp anything."

Should Evers make good as president, Murphy further said, he might not resume the presidency after his globe-circling trip, but become chairman of the board of control.

The mysterious "W. J. K." of Springfield, Mass., who declared a few days ago that he would file charges of professionalism against Howard P. Drew, the 100-yard national champion, has written another letter to the Amateur Athletic Union, saying that his first communication was misunderstood. He asserts that the negro high school champion is not a professional, but is contemplating joining a money playing football eleven. The second letter, which is in the same handwriting as the first, but this time signed "W. D. K.," reads as follows:

"Nobody claims that Howard Drew is a professional, and I didn't want to be understood that way, but that he is thinking of playing with a football team which professionals play on. Kindly correct that mistake."

Sam H. Harris, the theatrical manager, announced yesterday that he was negotiating for the purchase of the Phillies. Mr. Harris said that negotiations were opened about two weeks ago with President Fogel of the club by Jack Gleason, acting in his behalf. Later, Mr. Harris said, Mr. Gleason took the matter up with Charles P. Taft, owner of the ball club's park, in Philadelphia. The negotiations, he said, were still pending.

"We are waiting to learn the lowest price the owners will take for the club," Mr. Harris said. "We should want to buy not only the club, but the 'ball park' as well."

LOAN SHARKS CONVICTED

Subterfuges to Evade Usury Laws of No Avail.

Max Katzman, representing the Co-operative Business Men's Association, and William Greenberg, of the George F. Williams Company, were convicted in Special Sessions yesterday of violation of that section of the banking law dealing with usury.

Julius Levinson, of No. 228 Lincoln avenue, Brooklyn, testified that on November 3, 1910, he borrowed $75 of the co-operative association, through Katzman, and agreed to pay back $86 50 at the rate of $1 a week. The interest in excess of 6 per cent was supposed to be in payment for stock in the association. Levinson got the stock, but found it of no value.

Clarence E. Hunt, of No. 202 Fenimore street, Brooklyn, a fireman, was the complainant against Greenberg. On April 5, 1912, he borrowed $45, and was to pay back $60 in four months. In his case the contract stated that the $15 excess was in part payment for a diamond pin. He did not get any pin.

The case of May Quinn, employed by the Chesterkirk Company, was postponed to enable counsel to file briefs. Counsel for Miss Quinn alleged that the Chesterkirk company was a Maine corporation, and under the laws of Maine a usurious debt was collectible.

Court Accepts Pugilist's Mother on $30,000 Bond.
