Fragrant as a rose

When you open a jar of Pond's Vanishing Cream the Jacque Rose fragrance rises as dainty and fresh as from a real rose blossom.

This inviting perfume is only one of the several distinctive features which make Vanishing Cream so much more delightful than other preparations.

Another is the ease and rapidity with which it is absorbed by the skin. It may be applied freely without injury to gloves, veil or clothing.

Used before exposure to cold or wind, you will find Vanishing Cream the most wonderfully effective preventative against chaps, dryness and irritation, that you ever imagined.

Try Vanishing Cream for yourself. We will gladly send a little tube upon request, or a tube sufficient for two weeks' use upon receipt of four cents in stamps.

TIZ for Sore Feet

Send at once for Free Trial Package

If you have sore, tired, lame, or tender feet, corns, callouses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett of Jeffersonville. TIZ DID IT. Mr. Crockett says: "After the second treatment she walked downstairs one foot at a time. She had not been able to walk downstairs before in past five years, except by stepping down on each step with one foot at a time. This is remarkable. Send five more boxes."

"Feet so sore couldn't walk down stairs!"

No matter what ails your feet or what you have used without getting relief, just use TIZ. It's different. It acts right off. It relieves sore feet. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans out the pores and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet.

Get a box of TIZ, 25 cents at all drug stores, department and general stores, or send to Walter Luther Dodge & Co., 1223 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., for a free trial package. Not to try TIZ is to invite misery. Don't waste time with substitutes.

buy all these pretty things for! Jove! that girl can actually raise her arm! You can count the muscles," with full appreciation of this achievement.

The Advertising Manager's cheeks were glowing softly, and her breath came in little gasps. The cramped office had grown suddenly spacious, and its ceiling reared to the stars, before this miracle of miracles, the mating of thoughts.

"And when I think of the work it means, I don't wonder," laughing indulgently. "Miss Ellsworth tells me you're a frightful worker."

Miss Ellsworth. The joy just trying its wings dropped back to earth. "She—they—have you forgotten they're expecting you up there now—at a little party?"

"Are they?" said Collins easily. If only she knew how tired he was of being expected—eagerly expected—at little parties! "Why aren't you up there?" he inquired suddenly.

"Why, I—I was," she faltered unhappily; "but I left a few moments ago. I—they—I found—" Her voice broke involuntarily. The recollection was still too recent. Here was one to whom she could lay bare her soul, and she had no skill to weave veils for it.

Collins was regarding her with troubled eyes. "All my life," he said abruptly, "I've been wishing I could meet a girl who knows what a day's work means. But that doesn't mean," his jaw set, "that you should be—a packhorse. Why, you poor little girl, I don't believe you've ever learned how to play!"

There was something so tenderly, intimately protecting in his look that she could only turn aside brokenly.

"Look here!" said Arthur Collins very gravely. "I suppose I must go on to Boston this evening; but if I stop over again tomorrow couldn't you, won't you please, take dinner with me, and we'll have a little party of our own?" The Lilac Linen would not have recognized the quick note of eagerness in his tone.

OH!" cried the Advertising Manager in a choked little voice, but bracing herself instinctively. In a moment he would realize, he would be gone, and it is harder to turn back into the shadow when the sunrise is shooting glory. She raised eyes full of unshed tears; full too of something else,—life-hunger and clamor for a slice, just a little slice, of the pleasure and youth denied her. "But—but it's all a mistake," she faltered. "You can't mean me. Think of Ka—think of all the other girls you know."

"I am thinking of them," agreed Collins decidedly. "That's why I'm asking you."

"But I'm not at all the kind of girl people take out," she repeated wanly. "I'm just—not! I've no conversation. I've no dimples. I've no clothes. I know this hat is a dub!" vindictively. "I knew it when I bought it; but I had only five minutes. And I don't know Morgan loans or Assemblies or Coup Jacques. All I know," drearily, "is—white space, all smudged up with ink. And I've never been to Palm Beach, or Aiken, or even the Bellevue," with a fierce little burst of shame, "in all the three years I've been in Philadelphia I've never even been inside the Bellevue!"

Oh, he did not look mystified or appalled or astounded or pitying—not even pitying—at this shameful revelation! He just reached out naturally and gathered her tired, limp fingers into the rallying clasp of warm, vibrant hands.

"Of course you haven't been playing," he said simply. "You've been waiting—for me to teach you how to play. And we're going to the Bellevue this very evening. Not tomorrow, but tonight! I won't go on to Boston; I'll stay over. Now let's see, will six-thirty be too early for you to meet me in the Pink Room?"

diately go out before a light could be obtained from it. It may interest the reader to know that before this specific idea was hit upon by the inventor he had tried and dismissed as being no good a match that would break in two as it was struck, a match that would not light at all, and a match that would show a colored light when struck. These were rejected on the ground that they would not lure the boxed person on sufficiently, and consequently would not be sold in sufficiently large quantities to make the invention remunerative.

The patent cigar lighter came into wide use, and the Little Edisons were on the job just as quickly with a "patent cigar lighter" that, when the button was pressed, would jump out of the holder's hand.

Follow the treatment below and you can keep your skin so that you can always be proud of it.

Examine your skin closely

See if the pores have become large and clogged; if it has lost its smoothness; if it has grown colorless.

These conditions of the skin are a natural result of the constant strain imposed upon it during the winter months, when we eat heavy foods and take almost no exercise. Each Spring, the skin needs refreshing.

How to refresh your skin

Wash your face with care and take plenty of time to do it. Lather freely with Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub in gently till the skin is softened and the pores open. Then rinse several times in very cold water, or better still, rub with a cake of ice.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of an authority on the skin and its needs. The treatment with Woodbury's cleanses the pores, then closes them and brings the blood to the surface. You feel the difference the first time you use it.

Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake.

Go to your dealer's today and get a cake. Tear off the illustration of the cake shown below and put it in your purse as a reminder.
