FACTORY LAWS A SEA OF DOUBT

State Commission, in Its First Session, Hears Many Complaints.

OWNERS SAY THEY ARE OVERBOSSED

"Do It," Commands One Official —Then Another Warns Him, "Do It if You Dare."

L. B. Prahar, a Brooklyn manufacturer, put this question to Lieutenant Governor Robert F. Wagner and his associates on the State Factory Commission at its first hearing in City Hall yesterday:

"If you were a manufacturer and the Labor Department came along and ordered you to put up a platform on the roof of your factory—

"And if then the Fire Department dropped in and ordered you not to tempt people to commit suicide by supplying them with such an easy means as that platform would afford, what would you do?"

"You can search me," said the Lieutenant Governor, after some moments spent in reflection, and the members of the commission nodded approval.

"What did you do?" asked Mr. Wagner.

"I did nothing," replied Mr. Prahar, "and now I am under $200 bail because I did not put up a platform which the Fire Department would have torn down at once and probably prosecuted me for putting up. Can you beat it?"

This ended Mr. Prahar's narrative of his woes encountered under the existing labor laws, but the commission evidenced its sympathy by directing him to submit his troubles in writing and promising to see what could be done about them.

The commission listened to the testimony and the views of a large number of witnesses. In only one thing did they all agree: that the present labor laws were sad affairs and needed all sorts of amendments. The amendments suggested were as numerous and conflicting as the witnesses themselves.

Yesterday's was the first of six hearings to be held by the commission, which consists of Robert F. Wagner, chairman; Alfred E. Smith, vice-chairman; Charles M. Hamilton, Edward D. Jackson, Cyrus W. Phillips, Robert E. Dowling, Simon Brentano, Samuel Gompers and Mary E. Dreier. Abram I. Elkus and Bernard L. Shientag are its counsel.

In speaking of the work of the commission Chairman Wagner said: "If any manufacturer, working man or real estate owner believes that there are provisions in the law that are not working fairly and reasonably, now is the time for him to let us know how he thinks the law should be amended. We want to give every one a square deal."

George W. Olvany, formerly a deputy fire commissioner, appeared for the Real Estate Board.

"We wish to be relieved from the terrible yoke which has for years hindered real estate operations!" he exclaimed.

"I have not heard of a 'terrible yoke.' What do you mean?" asked Mr. Smith.

"I mean the multiplicity of inspections," retorted Mr. Olvany. "That is the yoke, and that is the thing which must be remedied. We urge the changing of the laws so that the Building Department only will have jurisdiction. Everything that the Labor Department does is merely a duplication of what the Building Department is doing."

G. Richard Davis, representing the Allied Real Estate Interests, protested against the "unfairness of making the manufacturer of non-inflammable articles take the same precautions as the manufacturer of celluloid," and Mr. Prahar, already referred to, said that he manufactured metal goods only, yet he had to spend $15,000 in the last two years in alterations to his factory to comply with the orders of the Fire and Labor departments.

Mrs. Irene O. Andrews, the first witness and a secretary for the Association for Labor Legislation, said the industrial board rather than the courts should be empowered to review cases growing out of infractions of the factory law.

"The law should be reflexible," asserted Maurice Wertheim, of the Industrial Board, "and the board needs more power. Take the details out of the law and put them into an industrial code. Make the board an important body or wipe it out. Since I got out of office on December 1 I recommend that the salaries of board members be raised to $3,000."

Rudolph Miller, Superintendent of Buildings, indorsed in a general way the recommendations made by Mr. Wertheim.

Others who spoke were John Williams, secretary of the Industrial Board and former Labor Commissioner; Alfred R. Conklin, former Assemblyman, and Alois B. Kokul.

QUOTING HIS ELDERS.

From The Houston Post.

"Don't you know you ought to be spanked? What do you mean by holding my watch beneath the hydrant?"

"Why, you told Mr. Smith just yesterday that you had to soak your watch every once in a while."

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Deputy Chiefs of the 1st to 7th Divs., inclusive, to Marine Div., and 10th to 12th Divs., inclusive, will each detail twelve men, and the Deputy Chief of the 8th Div., six men, and direct them to report to John Kenlon, chief of the Hose Maintenance Bldg., at 10:30 a. m., June 24, 1914 (white gloves to be worn).
