THE WEATHER REPORT

Forecasts and Records of the Last Twenty-four Hours.

Official Record and Forecast.—Washington, July 6—The disturbance that was off the South Atlantic coast Sunday has passed northeastward, and Monday night its centre was off Cape Cod and moving toward the Grand Banks. This storm has caused local rains in Southern New England and the middle Atlantic states and strong north to east winds off the Southern New England coast. Storm warnings are displayed on the New England coast. Scattered showers are also reported from Florida, Arkansas, the plains states and the middle Rocky Mountain region; elsewhere fair weather continued. Temperatures continue moderate for the season throughout the Atlantic states, and are generally near or slightly above the seasonal average elsewhere. With the exception of widely scattered showers in the Mississippi Valley and in the southeastern states, the weather will be generally fair Tuesday and Wednesday throughout the country. No important temperature changes are indicated for any part of the country during the next forty-eight hours.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday—North Atlantic, strong east, shifting to north and northwest; middle Atlantic, moderate variable, mostly north; south Atlantic and Gulf, light to moderate variable; Great Lakes, light to moderate variable.

Forecast for Special Localities.—Eastern New York, partly cloudy to-day; to-morrow fair.

Western New York, Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, partly cloudy to-day and to-morrow.

Southern New England, cloudy to-day, probably preceded by showers; to-morrow fair.

Northern New England, cloudy to-day, preceded by showers on the coast; to-morrow fair.

New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia and Virginia, partly cloudy to-day and to-morrow.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year:
