Carroll Brown Pitches Too Well for Browns

Cast-Off of the Athletics Carries the Yankees to Victory.

RICKEY FAILS TO AID LATE RALLY

Aggressive Manager Makes His First Playing Appearance for This Season.

BY HEYWOOD BROUN.

Even Branch Rickey could not save the St. Louis Browns yesterday, but he gave them a hard ride. Compared to Rickey, Hughie Jennings is as silent as Patience on a monument. Branch told his runners when to run; he shouted to his outfielders where to play, and advised his pitchers what to throw, and finally, still having a few foot pounds of unexpended energy left, he went in and took a smash at the ball himself. He even tried to coach the umpire, shouting "Inside!" and "Outside!" to guide old Tommy Connolly, but in spite of all these efforts the Yankees won by a score of 6 to 4. A fine rally in the fourth by Chance's men overcame an early lead.

One would hardly pick Connie Mack as a seller of baseball bargains, but from his showing yesterday Carroll Brown was a splendid buy. Pieh was Chance's first pitching selection, but Caldwell hit for him in the fourth and Brown pitched the last five innings. In that time he struck out seven men and allowed only two hits. The Yankees were compelled to beat not only the Browns, but the weather as well. Rain fell in the latter half of the second inning, and the hostilities were suspended for twenty minutes.

Branch Rickey has introduced many new things to professional baseball and dropped many others. The pitchout he uses not infrequently, but the "bawl-out" and the "curseout" have no place in his system. The Browns are still a drinkless and a smokeless team, but Dr. Pease does not intend to do any boasting until they move higher in the race.

Gambling is also under Rickey's ban, but the men are allowed to play casino for white beans. Earl Hamilton has won 1,872 beans, and his team mates are beginning to ask, "Now that you've got them, what are you gonna do with them?"

Browns Begin the Attack.

Spurred on by Rickey's never-ending chatter the Browns began yesterday's game as if they were going to settle things in a hurry. Their first run was hammered home in the second inning. After Clarence Walker, the slugger, had hit vainly at three curves Leary walked. On a hit and run play, Austin banged a safe one that Truesdale headed off with a great stop, but no play was possible, and Leary went to second. Lavan hit a grounder to Maisel and Austin was forced at second base, while Leary went to third.

Rickey at once called for a double steal, and the play went through smoothly as Sweeney made a high throw to Peckinpaugh. Leary scored and Lavan went to second.

The rain came down while the Yankees were at bat, in the latter half of this inning, and a recess was taken for twenty minutes. Out came the sun, and the Browns and Yankees followed. Rickey's men proceeded to get what seemed to be a safe lead, for they scored twice in the third inning. With one out Shotten walked and Pratt singled to centre.

On a run and bunt play Gus Williams dropped the daintiest sort of a hit on the third base line and the bases were filled. Clarence Walker singled to left, bringing home Shotten and Pratt. Williams was out in trying to steal third base, and Pieh tossed out Leary.

Baumgardner Wabbles in Fourth.

Baumgardner is a sedate and serious right-hander and Rickey showed anguish and surprise when the pitcher grew unsteady in the fourth inning. In fact, he gave him much too short a shrift. Cree drove one through Pratt, and after Mullen had flied to centre Cook received a base on balls. Sweeney bunted and Austin's throw to Leary was a bit wide, filling the bases. Baumgardner had three balls and two strikes on Maisel, and then the little third baseman lined a clean single to centre field which scored Cree and Cook.

Bill James, a tall young man from the Pacific Coast, hurried to the box, and sent Sweeney and Maisel one base further on their journey by making a wild pitch. Caldwell came in to bat for Pieh and dusted a single down the first base line and Maisel and Sweeney registered two runs, which put the Yankees in the lead.

Carroll Brown, who made a short and inglorious beginning with the Yankees on Saturday, took up the pitching burden for Chance in the fifth and proceeded to strike out men. The Yankees added to their lead in this inning when one run was scored on Cree's single, Mullen's sacrifice and Cook's hit to right.

Weilman, who is even taller than James, took the mound for St. Louis in the seventh, and in the eighth the Yankees found him for a run. Brown did it. Cook was hit and Sweeney sacrificed, and then came the pitcher with a clean hit to left which scored the runner.

Rickey's rally came in the ninth. Austin was safe on Maisel's high throw, which sent him to second base. Rumler hit for Lavan and struck out, but Howard, who pinched in place of Agnew, doubled to right, scoring Agnew.

Rickey then made his first appearance of the year in a playing role and was out from Truesdale to first. Peckinpaugh threw out Shotten.

Cole, on account of his recent good pitching, received a day off, and so he spent a busman's holiday watching the game from the press stand.

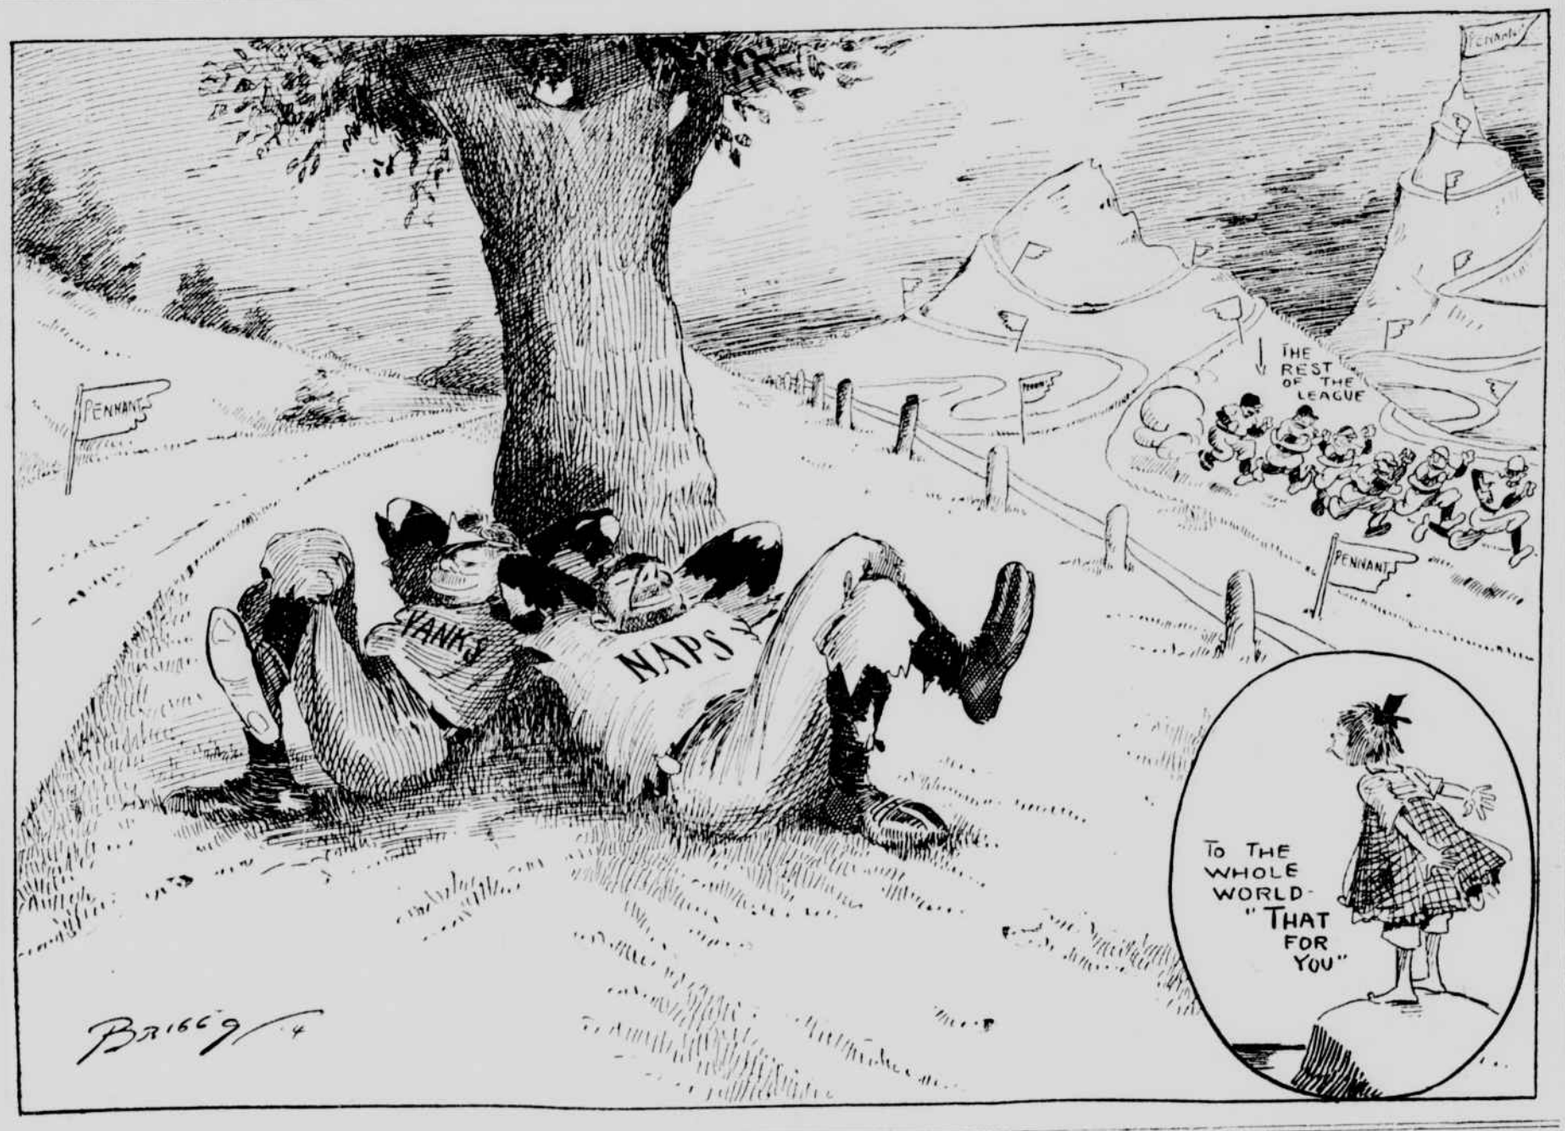
THE STANDING IN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE



TIP TOPS CLIMB TO THIRD PLACE

Take Double-Header at Expense of the Pittsburgh Feds.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Pittsburgh, July 16. The Brooklyn Tip-Tops, winning both games of a double-header from the Pittsburgh Rebels here this afternoon, moved up into third place in the dash for the Federal League pennant. The Brooklyn team is now within striking distance of the Indianapolis Hoosiers, and Bill Bradley believes that before August 1 he will be in second place. The visitors won the first game by a score of 6 to 2 and the second at 5 to 2.

The sensational work of the Brooklyn team has won recognition from the baseball enthusiasts throughout the country. Not alone has it won six straight games from the Rebels, but has won fourteen out of the last sixteen games played. Not only are the men hitting the ball for keeps, but they are playing real baseball in the field.

Superbas Win Two and Climb in League Race

Robinson's Players Move Up to Sixth Place at Cost of Pittsburgh Pirates.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Pittsburgh, July 16. Out of the dust and ruin of the lowly seventh place, the Brooklyn Superbas rose to-day, and falling on the Pittsburgh Pirates hip and thigh in both games of a double-header gained sixth place. Just how long they will hold their lofty position is a matter of conjecture, but Wilbert Robinson has high hopes. And just to show that a brigade or two of hostile players cannot scare them, the Superbas fought their way to victory over superior numbers. Pittsburgh used fifteen men in the first game, but lost by a score of 4 to 3. In the second game sixteen men were incapable of making more than two runs, while the Superbas made five.

Zach Wheat stood in the breach for his team in the first game. Coming up to the bat with the bases full, he laced out a two-bagger which drove all the runners home. With a lead to work on, Pat Ragan, who replaced Rucker in the box had little trouble in seeing his mates through. Brooklyn scored its first run in the sixth on Rucker's single, a sacrifice and a double by Daubert.

Two hits and an error by O'Mara gave the Corsairs a run in the first frame, while errors by Cutshaw and Hummel gave them two more in the seventh.

The Superbas reversed the order in the final game. Rather than play a waiting game, they flashed out and scored four runs in the opening frame. O'Mara opened fire with a triple, and in a trice singles by Daubert, Wheat, Cutshaw and McCarthy, along with a sacrifice fly by Smith rang out and the damage was done. A pass to Daubert, a single by Myers and a squeeze play with Cutshaw laying down the bunt, netted Brooklyn the final tally of their string in the fifth frame.
