BILLY GARNERS $25,000; BIDS JERSEY GOODBY

Ends Paterson Campaign in Riot of Handshakes and Dollars.

SUNDAY, TIRED OUT, MAKES GAME FINISH

Philadelphia to Hear Him To-day, Then He Leaves for Home in Oregon to Rest.

[From a Staff Correspondent of The Tribune.]

Paterson, N. J., May 23.—"Over $24,000."

That's the way George Arnold summed up the free will offering for Billy Sunday to-night.

But it is estimated that the spectacular Sunday has taken considerably more than $25,000 out of Paterson in his fifty days' campaign here. Mr. Arnold's estimate of the nickels, dimes, quarters, half-dollars and greenbacks was only an estimate after all. It did not include the money to be poured in from Hackensack, Ridgewood and Passaic. It did not include the checks everybody expects Mrs. Garret A. Hobart, Mr. Arnold and others to present. It did not include the check rumor says Elbert H. Gary has sent.

The size of the free will offering at the afternoon meeting alone can be realized to an extent when one knows that it took sixteen men an hour and three-quarters to count it up.

Paterson certainly has done well by Sunday. Philadelphia, which has 2,000,000 people, gave him $55,000. Paterson, with 130,000, gives $25,000.

Pittsburgh gave him $42,000. It has over 500,000 population. Compare that with Paterson's 130,000. Columbus gave Sunday less than Paterson. He got $20,929.58 there.

Then think of the number of "souls he saved" here. There were 59,446 regenerants in Philadelphia. Sunday yanked 13,000 brands from the burning in Paterson.

In Toledo, with 170,000 persons, he coaxed only 7,000 up the sawdust path. By the way, some one with a mind for figures has computed on a basis of results in eighteen cities that Sunday saves at the very reasonable price of $1.59 a soul.

A Second Pentecost.

Sunday's last day in Paterson was truly his triumph. He preached from morning to night. He got the money and he made a record in the trail-hitting line. Even Philadelphia never presented so many converts in a day as Paterson did this May 23, 1915.

It was estimated that almost 2,100 men, women and children walked up the sawdust to shake the evangelist's hand. Somebody there who liked to count said there were 2,000. To-night it took more than a half hour for the people to pass by. They shoved and crowded down the aisles, pushing on through the mist-clouded air, striving to reach Sunday. One of the ministers said:

"To-day's the anniversary of Pentecost. Peter brought three thousand souls to Christ that day. This is the second Pentecost."

As early as 5 o'clock this morning men and women were waiting in the Tabernacle so they could make sure of good seats for the forenoon meeting. At 8:30 o'clock the great structure was almost filled. At 9 o'clock Sunday appeared and slammed and pounded the fear of God into the people's hearts. Four hundred hit the trail.

There was a monster afternoon meeting for men only, and a rip roaring, screeching, yelling sermon on "Wild Oats and Boose." Almost six hundred men marched up the glory road.

As at all the other meetings of the day, a minister made a fervent plea that the free will offering be large and substantial. He even suggested that the ushers had blank [illegible] for those who had not enough cash with them.

"Get Sunday's Autograph."

"You can get Mr. Sunday's autograph that way as a souvenir. You'll find it indorsed on the back of the check when it comes through the banks," he suggested delicately, "and don't hide behind a one dollar bill," he added.

Even before the costless, perspiring men were filing out of the Tabernacle, women were rushing in to gain vantage points for the night meeting. Policemen stationed at the doors had to keep them in orderly lines to prevent themselves from crushing one another. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the building was filled.

Sunday did not make his appearance there until a bit before 7. In the meantime he had addressed a meeting at the Regent Theatre, which, strange to say, had only about half of its 2,500 seats occupied. It seemed as if every one wished to be in on the last and greatest meeting of all.

And the supposition was correct. The Tabernacle was crammed and jammed. Every available spot was taken up. The seats were stuffed with people. Reporters coming in late had to step over men and women crowded together in the sawdust aisles. Some men sat almost on top of the piano. Ten or fifteen were perched on the edge of Sunday's platform. There never was such a meeting in the place before.

Sunday spoke of the money he got. As usual, he said he gave away one-tenth of his income, and that it was his "own business where it went."

Billy Tired Out.

"It's all in the papers. I guess I'm about the only person whose income is printed in the newspapers," he commented, laughingly. "I get an awful lot of letters asking for money. We estimate that in a year I get letters asking for nearly $2,000,000. That's for specific sums. And the letters I get asking for just any old amount would run it up to $4,000,000 or $5,000,000, I reckon."

He preached with considerable fire, but the difference between his first sermons here and the one to-night was marked. Even when he came here Sunday was tired out after his heart-breaking work in Philadelphia. As the days have proceeded he has shown less and less speed.

He began with a verse, then swung quickly into a quarter-hour-long half prayer and half goodby, in which he bade adieu to ushers, ministers, laymen, firemen, policemen, Hackensack, George Arnold, the choir, everybody and anybody.

He prayed most intimately to God, beginning as usual with his conversational, "Well, Jesus."

He told the Lord that Chief of Police Bimson was a "good old scout with his kind heart and big, open face." He spoke of "my friend, Spike Hennessy, the motorcycle cop." He told God the City Council was "kind to give the permit so the Tabernacle could run out over the sidewalk into Fair Street."

Leaves Paterson To-day.

And then the trail-hitting began. The choir sang as it never sang before. Rodey pumped his singers up and up, while the hundreds swung along the aisles. Men and women stood up on the benches to gaze at the interesting spectacle.

Sunday leaves Paterson to-morrow morning for Philadelphia, to preach in Bethany Church, which John Wanamaker attends. He may see the baseball game in the Quaker City, but at any rate he leaves for Oregon to-morrow night and expects to be at his Hood River ranch on next Saturday. Ma has already gone with the small Sunday boys to her daughter's home in Sturgis, Mich.

Paterson is the last work of the season for Sunday. He will rest until the autumn, when he opens a campaign at Omaha, early in September. In November and December he will be in Syracuse; in January and February, 1916, in Trenton; in March and April of that year in Baltimore. He is dated for Boston and Providence in the fall of 1916 and Chicago in January, 1917.

6 ACCIDENTS DUE TO MOTOR SPEED

Victims Fewer than Usual on Pleasant Sunday—Three Children Hurt.

Automobiles caused six accidents yesterday that were reported to the police of the greater city. Three victims were children. For the number of machines in the streets the total was unusually small for a pleasant Sunday.

Carl Davidson, of 444 West Thirty-fourth Street, Manhattan, was arrested at the St. George Ferry, Staten Island, on complaint of George Diamond, of 99 Broadway, Port Richmond, who alleges that Davidson's car knocked him down and then speeded away.

Mrs. Emma Dubriet, of Bement Avenue, West New Brighton, was thrown from her automobile when it crashed into the rear of a machine owned by W. A. Johnson, of Princess Bay.

As Ida Hirsch, three years old, who lives at 1558 Seventh Avenue, was crossing 110th Street she was struck by an automobile owned by Christopher Steffens, of 370 West Fifty-eighth Street. He stopped his car and took the child to her home.

An automobile owned and driven by Elizabeth Scheff, of 388 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, knocked down eleven-year-old Rachel Scherowitz, of 158 Ashford Street, while the little girl was watching the parade in honor of the dead soldiers and sailors at Cypress Hills. She was taken in the machine to the Bradford Street Hospital.

Joseph Demato, five years old, of 226 Osborn Street, Brooklyn, was struck by an automobile belonging to James I. Downing, of 229 Hemlock Street, Brooklyn.

A boy riding a motorcycle struck and knocked down Samuel Silverman, of 591 Dumont Avenue, Brooklyn, at Sutter and Alabama Avenues.

BARS ARMY CAMPS

Controller's Disapproval of Expenses Blocks Plans.

Washington, May 23. Because John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Treasury, has disapproved accounts amounting to $5,000 expended for student military camps last year, the War Department virtually has abandoned its plan for holding camps this year.

The camps have been warmly supported by Secretary Garrison, and it is expected that Congress will be asked for legislation permitting expenditure of public funds for them. Three were to have been held on military reservations—Plattsburg Barracks, New York; the Presidio of San Francisco and Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. A site at Ludington, Mich., had been selected for a fourth camp.

SUBWAY TIED UP AN HOUR

Short Circuit Stalls Traffic Above Ninety-sixth Street.

All Broadway subway traffic north of Ninety-sixth Street was suspended for more than an hour yesterday morning, when a cable short circuited at Broadway and 143d Street, blowing out a manhole and filling the tunnel with smoke.

Passengers were much excited by the sudden stalling of all trains, but subway employes quieted them by explaining that there was no danger. Surface cars were jammed with the usual subway patrons and several times police had to intervene to check fights which ensued when passengers tried to clamber aboard the already overfilled cars.

The short circuit is believed to have been caused by the recent heavy rains, which rotted the insulation of the cable.

VETERANS HONOR DEAD

Soldiers of Spanish War Attend Vespers at St. Patrick's.

The annual memorial vespers for the Spanish War Veterans who have died during the last year was held yesterday afternoon in St. Patrick's Cathedral. The Rev. Father William B. Martin, assistant rector, in greeting the veterans, said:

"Such organizations as yours can do much in these perilous times to increase the patriotism of our young men. Whatever is in store for us we can say, as Christians, we are one with our honored President, as the occasion may demand."

The Rev. Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the 69th Regiment, delivered the sermon. He emphasized the readiness of Americans to respond to the flag.

Coney's Joy-Mill, Newly Oiled and Painted, Grinds Out 100,000 Happy Holiday Seekers

Bathing suits of 1915 on view at Coney's opening.

Crowds Pour in from Sunrise to Dark as Merry-Go-Rounds, Dance Halls and Fakers' Concessions Separate Light Hearts from Grist of Nickels.

Coney Island opened its doors yesterday and threw away the keys. Shutters were removed from the last refreshment dispensary, the merry-go-rounds were oiled, dancing floors waxed and concession holders worked twenty-four hours coaxing the last loose nickel from the 100,000 crowd that paid 10 cents to the B. R. T. to get there and as much to get away.

Saturday was the day scheduled for the presentation to the public of the city's most popular little seaside resort. It rained. The loss to the persons whose business it is to see that the mob goes away happy was thousands of dollars. Yesterday, however, the lost fortune was retrieved. From early in the morning until after sunset every train from Manhattan was jammed. The Iron Steamboats, inaugurating their season, worked at capacity.

The water was fine. Some of the bathhouses delayed their opening until Memorial Day, but those who were renting suits found the demand large. At Brighton and at Coney Island the beaches were thronged with bathers and medicine ball heavers as long as the sun shone to disperse the slight chill that the bathers brought with them from the surf. In the memory of the oldest oldtimer never was there a May Sunday that brought out such a number of women bathers. At some spots along the beach they outnumbered the men.

While the crowd was the largest so far this year, it was the most orderly. The Coney Island police station, a fairly busy spot over warm week-ends, was as quiet as a plot in Greenwood Cemetery. There was almost nothing doing. Only one accident was reported, when W. E. Baker, of 3201 Surf Avenue, Coney Island, overturned his touring car in trying to avoid running it to a boy on a bicycle.

For the four or five hundred persons who visited Luna at its official opening Saturday night at least five or six thousand passed through the gates of the amusement park yesterday. Attendants in vivid crimson jackets ushered the pleasure seekers through the portals, inside of which they found many new thrillers, as well as the old ones done over and brought up to date. Thousands of gallons of red and white paint and perhaps a million electric lights converted the resort into sparkling magnificence. All the old glitter, glare, glamour and ragtime was in the atmosphere.

The official dopester estimated the crowd at an even 100,000.

"How do we fix the figures?" he asked. "We do not have to calculate. We have been here so many years we know the size of the mob by looking it over. Once we used to round up the number of persons who came on the elevated trains and trolley cars and allow for those who came afoot, in carriages or in automobiles. On the hottest July Sundays it seldom ran above 250,000. Now we do not have to. Surf Avenue is the indicator. To-day, when the sidewalks just accommodate the crowd, it numbers about 100,000. When it overflows to the car tracks it is 200,000. When the whole avenue is jammed count in 50,000 more."

N. Y. MAY BE NEW ZION

Major Mandell Makes Prediction at Israelite Convention.

Leon Sanders was elected president of the New York branch of the Alliance Israelite Universelle, an international organization of Jews, at its annual convention in the Educational Alliance Building yesterday. The retiring president is Major Kaufman Mandell. He said:

"The world crisis has increased the importance of the New York branch, and this importance will grow from year to year. The centre of Judaism, if it is not in Zion, may within a few years be New York, and this will entail upon us American Jews, and especially upon the members of the alliance, such enormous responsibility that our imagination just now almost recoils from its comprehension."

FIVE RABBIS JOIN IN PLEA FOR FRANK

Jewish Leaders Ask Governor of Georgia to Commute Sentence to Life Imprisonment.

Five of the most prominent rabbis of New York have appealed to the Governor and people of Georgia to commute the death sentence of Leo M. Frank to life imprisonment, so that an opportunity may be given him to prove his innocence in the future.

Dr. Maurice H. Harris, president of the Eastern Council of Rabbis, yesterday appealed for clemency, not as a Jew but as a citizen for a citizen. Rabbi Stephen S. Wise maintained that friends of Leo M. Frank would be just as eager to secure his condemnation if they were certain that he was guilty.

Because two justices of the Supreme Court rendered a minority decision Dr. Silverman, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, said he thought there was sufficient doubt on which to base another trial for Frank. Dr. Rudolph Grossman, president of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers, pleaded for Frank on the ground of justice, but not that of mercy.

The thousands of persons who have appealed to the Governor of Georgia should indicate to that executive that there was reasonable doubt as to Frank's guilt, according to Dr. Samuel Schulman, rabbi of Temple Beth-El.

Patrolman Burggof knocked a glass containing poison from the hands of Hugo Steffanini, who attempted to commit suicide in Central Park. Steffanini is a prisoner at Flower Hospital.

The Putnam County Grand Jury has decided that when Philip D. Nicoll broke into a summer house near Kent, N. Y., to spoon, he was not committing burglary. He has been released from custody.

William Grist, of 307 East Fifty-seventh Street, fell overboard while asleep on a stringpiece, at the East River and Forty-ninth Street. He was rescued by Charles Beller, a volunteer lifesaver. Grist was taken to City Hospital suffering from submersion.

Boys who started a steam roller going at Mahopac, near Peekskill, were unable to stop the machine, and it crashed through a bridge into the water.

"Iphigenia" at Piping Rock.

The production of "Iphigenia in Tauris" which was to have been given Saturday at the Piping Rock Club, was postponed until this afternoon. The performance will begin at 4:30 and end at 6:30 p. m. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the Country Home for Convalescent Babies, at Sea Cliff, Long Island.

MAHER GETS PRIZE FOR FIREMAN PLAN

Deputy Chief Wins Over 5,000 in Efficiency Scheme Contest.

Deputy Fire Chief Patrick Maher, of the 11th Division, has received the administration medal offered last July by Fire Commissioner Adamson for the best suggestion for improving the efficiency of the fire fighters. The Commissioner received more than 5,000 suggestions from members of the force.

Deputy Chief Maher urges the introduction of a system of rating for firemen based on a man's working record. He proposes that the department keep records such as will distinguish between the skillful, energetic and efficient members and the mediocre and indifferent ones. The purpose is to give the best men the benefit of their superior skill, ability and initiative when they enter examinations for promotion.

The plan will be developed by a special board of officials and officers of the department appointed by the Commissioner. The plan is deemed to be of the highest value by Commissioner Adamson and department officers for the increased stimulus it will give the force by its incentive to every man to win promotion.

The awards made to firemen for excellent service under this plan are to be entirely distinct from those made by the Board of Merit for heroism in saving life at fires. Other suggestions of special merit and value came from Captain Charles E. Field, of Hook and Ladder Company 107, and Captain Albert Reid, of Engine Company 73.

Captain Field suggested a system of daily physical drills, which will also be put into effect shortly in order to keep the firemen up to the high physical standard required of them upon entrance into the department. Captain Reid described a plan to prevent hydrants from freezing in winter by placing a chemical solution inside the hydrant.

The department will continue experiments in this line next winter. Thirty other members of the uniformed force received honorable mention for their suggestions.

DRUG SALES CUT SALOON PROFITS

Commissioner Bell Says Many Forsake Liquor for Cocaine—"Movies" Better.

The saloonkeepers of greater New York, particularly those of Williamsburg, have a grudge to settle with the manufacturers and sellers of drugs. According to George H. Bell, Commissioner of Licenses, who spoke at the St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Church, West End Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street, last night, the proprietors of saloons are beginning to complain because so many persons are changing from the liquor to the drug habit.

Commissioner Bell said that in one Williamsburg dance hall 175 users of drugs had been caught. He explained that the cocaine and opium users of the city were constantly on the increase.

In describing the work of his department, Mr. Bell said that since July 9, 1914, every moving picture house in greater New York has been made absolutely safe. He gave great credit to the individual members of the National Board of Censorship and to the 120 members of the Vigilance Committee whose reports had eliminated many of the evils surrounding the attendance of children at moving picture performances. Mr. Bell said that there are 150,000 children in greater New York who go to moving pictures daily.

JEWS IN HUNGARY ASK AID

Pupils in Rabbinical Schools Starving, Says Appeal.

Several rabbis in Hungary have sent an appeal to New York for funds to save pupils in the Hungarian rabbinical schools from starvation. Louis Friedman, of 115 Broadway, gave out the appeal yesterday. It reads:

"In the name of the Torah and its students, we wish to appeal to American sentiment to raise immediately aid, preferably foodstuffs, to save our pupils from starvation. Bread made of corn costs now one crown a kilo. This speaks for itself of our condition. Galician and Russian Polish students have come to us with their wives and daughters for safety from the Cossacks, and we have to feed them, too. Hungary is the centre of Jewish learning to-day. Save it for future generations."

Contributions may be sent to Count Dumba, Austrian Ambassador at Washington; Count Stephan Tisza, Premier, at Budapest, or Rabbi Okebu Schreiber, at Pressburg, Hungary.

SAYS MRS. CARMAN SHOULD HIDE FACE

Mother of Mrs. Bailey Assails Acquitted Woman's Stage Intentions.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Hempstead, N. Y., May 23.—Mrs. Jennie E. Duryee, mother of Mrs. Louise Bailey, who was shot to death last June in the office of Dr. Edward Carman at Freeport, was greatly disturbed to-day when informed that Mrs. Carman had decided to go on the stage to recover the fortune she spent in defending herself against the charge of murder.

"To think that Mrs. Carman would exploit herself and go on the stage and make money reciting experiences she has been through is more than I can understand," said Mrs. Duryee. "How any person with any refinement would do anything like that is beyond me. It's horrible to speak of.

"I should think she would want to hide her face instead of going on the stage. Some people will want to see her, but not many, I think. It's just too dreadful to think of. I did not think that she could be so brazen to go before the public.

"I cannot forget my dear girl, and to think that a person accused as Mrs. Carman was will make efforts to obtain money from this notoriety is too awful to think of."

Mexican Teachers Arrive.

On the Ward Line steamship Monterey, in yesterday from Vera Cruz, Havana and Nassau, came fifty-three Mexican school teachers who have been sent here on authority of General Carranza, the provisional President.

They will leave this city to-day for Boston, where they are to study American methods of education.

GIRL TRAFFIC FEUD WAS GALUCCI'S END

Pretender's Bullet, Police Think, Closed Reign of Harlem's "Slave King."

ITALIANS WITH BANDS TO ATTEND FUNERAL

Three Cadets Will Be in Court To-day as Detectives Start on New Procurer Trail.

Glosue Gallucci, known to Harlem as the "King of White Slavers," was slain a few night ago primarily because of inroads he was making into a district controlled by a business rival in his line. This is the theory of the police. With the arrest of three of his agents Saturday for selling five girls for $50 Deputy Police Commissioner Lord is confident that to-day important developments will prove:

That there is a large number of men handling girls for immoral purposes.

That they have no set place of meeting, but gather nightly in the coffee houses along Third Avenue and the intersecting streets of Little Italy, in Harlem.

That these coffee houses are really established to furnish places where cadets may meet their "slaves," who pay weekly tribute for the protection they pretend to give the girls.

When Police Commissioner Woods organized the special squad under Deputy Commissioner Lord his one order was: "Show how these white slavers operate, then clean out the places which harbor them." This was several months ago. Deputy Commissioner Lord said that if given a year's time and a sufficient force he would show that the city of New York could be freed of these dealers.

"It is there you find that the dealer thrives," he said. "He visits the tango parlor, acquaints himself with young girls who have more time on their hands than is good for them and is soon introduced as a social acquaintance. He dances well. He knows how to wear his clothes.

"Many of the girls he meets are well supplied with money from overfond parents. You can readily see how one step leads to another in their downward path. It is while a girl is on the road to be ruined by one of these cadets that she either gives way to his persuasive tongue and disappears or boldly declares independence of home ties and influence."

Joseph Spota, known as "Sport"; Ralph Guarano and George J. Spica, the white slavers caught Saturday, will be brought into court this morning, charged with compulsory prostitution. They stolidly refused to talk yesterday. Their arrest, following the successful close of a deal which they thought would have established them as procurers in the Riverside section of 145th Street, had stunned them. Louis Rosenberg, the slaver arrested Thursday, also comes up for a hearing to-day.

William J. Enright, the detective who, with Detectives Hughes and Foley, has landed eight slavers in jail, is now on the trail of another band.

"No, we can't reveal the name of 'Miss Smith,' who worked with us," he said yesterday. "When we arrested Louis Abrams, the Bronx white slave dealer, six weeks ago, a woman we used was photographed and her picture and name appeared in a newspaper, contrary to orders. Her usefulness to us ceased right there. We'll take no chances now. 'Miss Smith' will not talk."

Glosue Gallucci's funeral will be held this morning from his home above his coffee house at 319 East 109th Street. His body will be taken to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, 115th Street and First Avenue, where a solemn high mass of requiem will be said. The funeral party will then cross the Astoria ferry and proceed to Calvary Cemetery.

Members of several Italian societies and their bands will turn out to march in the funeral procession, the police say.

SLAVE CASE STARTS NEW DRUG INQUIRY

Federal Agents Will Use Cadet Prisoners to Furnish Information on Dope Trade.

The Federal authorities have asked the Department of Justice agents in Chicago whether Louis Rosenberg, one of the "white slavers" who was arrested on Thursday, is wanted there on a similar charge. According to detectives, Rosenberg told them he had ruined a miner's daughter, seventeen years old, and was being sought by the Chicago men.

Working on the assumption that some of the prisoners now in the hands of the Federal authorities are intimately acquainted with the business of drug distribution among women of the underworld throughout the United States, an investigation will begin to-day. Harold A. Content, Assistant United States Attorney, will conduct it.

"James Kling," alias "Doctor Ellis," now under arrest, is said to be connected with a drug ring that has supplied prostitutes. Sophie Price, who was arrested on Saturday, is also expected to furnish valuable evidence.

Polish Benefit Postponed.

Mme. Marcella Sembrich, who has taken the lead in a movement to raise funds for the stricken residents of Poland, announced yesterday that the entertainment to raise relief money scheduled for Wednesday, has been postponed indefinitely. Mme. Sembrich said that she and the other members of the committee in charge have not had time to make the necessary arrangements. Contributions, she added, have been most generous.
