The Conning Tower

Lines on the Greek Drama and Amsterdam Avenue.

As bard for this palladium I journeyed to the stadium
To hear the classic chorus of the far-famed Greek.
(Though when in cap and gown I was, entouthon exclouncl was
The only phrase Hellenic I had learned to speak.)

And now in this metropolis I thought of the Acropolis;
Of Athens and of Pericles's Golden Age;
Of Timon, Alcibiades, Achilles and Miltiades
And other names I've seen upon the printed page.

Think you the tragic laureate of ages old and aureate
Was worried as the poets of the present are?
For in my dull, insipid ease I wondered what Euripides
Would think about the noises of a flat-wheeled car.

"I am through with Broadway," says Mr. Al Davis. "There is nothing in it." We h. no b. for Mr. Davis's Broadway, but it is a fascinating, interesting street and there is something in it. Mr. Davis's arraignment is as logical as that of a man who, dying from having eaten four pies at a contest, says that there is nothing in this food proposition after all.

Ours is the hopefullest of natures, so we expect to live long enough to see a play in which, when a servant announces the presence or arrival of somebody, the person he announces to doesn't say—generally after apparent hesitation: "Admit him," or "Show him in," or w. to that e.

"WHOM ARE YOU?" SAID CYRIL."

"And they are often the respectable lawyers, too, men of high standing whom you would not think would do such things."

The Evening Sun is incredulous over the assertion of M. Louis Brac, a chef lately arrived from Paris, that he can débone a shad. "Monsieur Louis," the Evening Sun says, "is asking us to believe too much." A sixth of a dozen tuts! How many restaurants in New York there are where boneless shad is obtainable we do not know; the flawless, boneless shad we get at a certain Fifth Avenue and 45th Street hotel utterly satisfies us.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES: FIRST ROUND.

"It ain't a tassel; it's a missile,"

THE MAD, MAD WAGS.

Sir: Like this: She sees one of them Fifth Avenue flappers hugging one of them 4-oz. Troy Terriers and she sez to me: "My goo'ness, did you ever see such a small dog? I wonder what kind it can be."

Nonchalantly, as if it were my diurnal habit to pull the real stuff, I says: "I think it's a wrist-watch-dog." P. W.

A GLUTTON FOR TAXIDERMY.

[From the Cheyenne (N. Y.) Record.]

C. B. Hobbs is certainly some taxerdermist. He has mounted a fine deer head on his granery. Not content with that he has put in a bath tub in his residence.

The Evening Journal's make-up man, our guess is, has a conscience and a fine ironical sense. He runs the advertisement of Eckman's Alterative directly above the death notices.

A BALLADE OF STANDPATTERS.

Swiftly are fled the centuries
Since Athens' populace was swayed
To mirth by Aristophanes
And his satiric masquerade;
And Father Time long since has laid
Stern Cato's retrogressive will
At rest in some Numidian glade,—
But G. K. C. is with us still.

The flaming orthodox decrees
Of St. Bernard no more pervade
The heart of France, and from his ease
Take Peter Abelard dismayed;
No more Erasmus' long crusade
For truth is waged with taunting quill
That mercilessly ripped and flayed,—
But G. K. C. is with us still.

Gone are the thunderous certainties
With which old Samuel Johnson paid
Good blows to those his enemies
Whose thoughts into the future strayed;
And Tom Carlyle's bold hand-grenade
Shall ne'er again be hurled to spill
Their gore who wore the red cockade,—
But G. K. C. is with us still.

ENVOY.

Passed is the lengthening brigade
Of those who held the new things ill,
The old things good; yet who's afraid?—
But G. K. C. is with us still.

Epistolary candor: "Received check Tuesday. Am grateful to you for the trouble this has caused you."

The "Meet Me at the Iceberg" sign on Madison Square Garden is all right, but, as S. S. offers, it is a little indefinite these jejune days.

Our obeisances to the girls. When they decided that this was to be a white fur summer, they were evidently in the meteorological know.

This morning's lastline, in an effort to get results, is reprinted by request.

Besides, what sort of weather do you expect in June, anyway? F. P. A.

How many parents are there in New York too poor to get their children out to the country for a few days this summer? It would be hard to answer the question definitely, but they probably number many more than for several years.

This seems to be indicated in the number of applications made to the Tribune Fresh Air Fund for outings for children up to the present time. Up to and including Saturday of last week the fund had been asked to provide for 14,985 boys and girls.

The requests were not made by the poor themselves—many of them are too proud to seek such assistance. They were made for the children by sixty-nine organizations interested in child welfare in Manhattan and The Bronx and about one-third as many more in Brooklyn.

Help for 20,000 Children.

As far as Manhattan is concerned, this is about one-half the number of organizations that usually make applications for places for the children in whom they are interested. Most of the others will no doubt file applications within the next two weeks. If they do the number of children for whom outings are asked will be increased to about 20,000.

The number of outings asked for to date is larger than is usual at this time of the summer. The final total for the season will undoubtedly exceed that of past years.

The applications received are not mere mass requests. Each one includes in its total only the individual children for whom and with whom the workers of the organization have been working during the winter.

The plans of the Tribune Fresh Air Fund for sending this army of boys and girls from the tenements to the country for fortnight or longer outings are well in hand.

Part of the children will be sent to ten fresh air homes. These, with the capacity of each for the season, follow:

Amherst Hill, Ardsley, N. Y.	2,100
Sherrill Knapp Home, Lindenhurst, Conn.	1,200
Camp Home, Camp Hill, N. Y.	500
St. Mary's Home, Lenox, Mass.	500
Pine Brook Home, Deposit, N. Y.	400
Camp Lincoln, Deposit, N. Y.	300
Children's Home, Middletown, N. Y.	200
Camp Cozy, Verona, N. J.	200
North Shore Shelter House, Huntington, Long Island	175
The Cottage, Fishkill, Conn.	125
Beach Home, Cutchogue, N. Y.	100
Total	5,800

The number of boys and girls that can be provided for in this way is definitely fixed and is not subject to expansion to any great degree.

What of the remaining 9,635 for whom application has already been made, and the others for whom outings will be asked later?

These children will be sent to the families of the farmers and villagers in the country who are now being asked to receive them free for fortnight visits—the Tribune Fund to pay their railroad fares. In at least seventy-five different localities in New York, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania the Tribune Fund has organized local Fresh Air committees, which are, or soon will be, at work arranging for parties of children to be received in their communities.

Other communities can be organized for this sort of work if it is found necessary. The number of boys and girls who will be received in this way will be limited only by the money which the Fund is able to obtain for railroad fares.

Railroads Aid Good Work.

Arrangements have already been completed with every railroad running out of the metropolitan district to carry the Tribune's Fresh Air hosts at reduced fares. The rates average about one-half the regular fares for children, and are good for distances up to 500 miles. The transportation bill for the 9,500 sent away by the Fund in 1914 was $15,667.02.

It may be taken as an indication of the attitude the public is assuming toward this work, in view of the exceptional needs this year, that one of the railroads included in the statement above is granting the reduced rates for the first time. Owing to the extremely heavy summer travel over its lines, it has never before felt justified in opening them to Fresh Air traffic. This year it is joining with the other roads to help meet the situation.

The whole amount of work which the Tribune Fund can accomplish during this summer for the boys and girls of the tenement districts will be directly proportional to the support accorded the work by the public. If funds are made available, each of the Fresh Air homes will be run to its capacity during the entire season, and thousands will be sent rejoicing to kind-hearted country people. If funds are not generously contributed, it will be necessary to curtail both branches of the work before all the children are cared for.

CHURCH CORPS DEFY WAR

Will Hold World's Sunday School Convention in Tokio.

Regardless of the fact that almost half its delegates represent countries now at war, the World's Sunday School Convention, it was announced yesterday, will definitely be held in Tokio in the fall of 1916. The World's Association, which recently met in New York in special session, says so many plans have been made that an adjournment is impossible.

Two conventions have already been held, in Jerusalem and Rome, and it is expected the next gathering after that in Tokio will take place in a South American city.

$100,000 TO HOSPITAL

Gift Announced at Exercises at Englewood Institution.

Englewood, N. J., June 6.—The feature of the exercises at the dedication of the new additions to the Englewood Hospital this afternoon was the donation of $100,000 by Mrs. Donald Mackay and Mrs. Elbert A. Brinkerhoff in memory of their husbands, who had been bosom friends. Just before Mr. Mackay's death he gave to the city a handsome park that bears his name. This gift was announced yesterday.

A gift in memory of Dumont Clark was that of $2,500, made by his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Case.

Mrs. Dwight Morrow was in charge of the exercises this afternoon. Addresses were made by Mayor Vernon Munroe, President Arthur Marsin, of the Hospital Association; F. C. Walcott, of the board of governors, and Superintendent Miss Edith J. Clapp. The Rev. Charles E. Scudder offered prayer.

WATCH ACTORS AT WORK.

Guests at Briarcliff Lodge See How Films Are Made.

The filming of scenes of "The Seven Sisters," by Charles Frohman's famous Players' company at Briarcliff Lodge, afforded guests an interesting form of entertainment last week, and for four days the tennis courts and golf links were deserted. Miss Marguerite Clark acted the principal part, supported by a company of twenty-two people. Briarcliff Lodge represents a castle in the play and the taking of the night scenes in the daytime proved amusing to the audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kirke Porter and Miss A. M. Hegeman, of Washington, are at the Lodge for their usual season stay. William Couch Stuart is entertaining C. Stuart Linton, of London. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Low are at the Lodge for the spring season. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gilbert, of Springfield, Mass., are at the lodge for a week's stay and have as guests Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert, of Detroit, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Bemis, of Springfield. Additions to the list of arrivals of all-season guests include Mrs. J. Edward Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Jurgensen and Mrs. Robert L. Major, Mrs. Edward Kemp and Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Munor, Mrs. Adrian H. Joline and Miss Susan Vail, Mrs. John B. McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Reed, Mrs. W. H. Hurlbut and Miss A. Hurlbut, E. T. Byrne and daughter, Mrs. C. F. Wittemore, Mrs. E. Whitlesey and Miss E. Campbell, Mrs. Leon Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Edlitz and Miss Grace Edlitz, Hamilton Odell, Mrs. F. J. Easton and Miss I. W. Easton. Mrs. J. H. Waverly Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Moore, Dr. and Mrs. J. Bentley Squier and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dadnum.

ART BRIEFS

The exhibition of drawings in chalks after famous paintings by A. Dickson Patterson, R. C. A., of Montreal, at the galleries of White, Allom & Co., 19 East Fifty-second Street, in aid of hospital funds for the Allies, will remain open during the present week because of the great interest it has awakened.

More than 100 of the 160 pictures by young artists that are to be exhibited from June 20 in the galleries of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's studio building, 8 West Eighth Street, have been delivered, and the others are expected in the next forty-eight hours. The theme, "Labor," which the artists have worked upon was suggested by John W. Alexander in May, a short time before his death.

Some rare Americana from the library of Stephen Van Rensselaer, together with additions from other sources, including an important series of rare Session Acts and Laws, will be sold on Thursday morning and afternoon by Scott & O'Shaughnessey, Inc., at the Collectors' Club, 30 East Forty-second Street.

NEWS OF PLAYS AND PLAYERS

New Century Music Hall Opens August 2—Some of the Attractions.

The latest revised edition of the Century Opera House, now become the Century Music Hall, is evidently to be something different from what New York at present possesses. It was announced yesterday that the top floor will be devoted to a large dance hall and restaurant and the concrete floor will be taken out and a dance floor substituted. The kitchen for the building will be located where the stage now stands, in the so-called rehearsal room. There will be a wide promenade overlooking Central Park, to be open to the air or inclosed, as the weather permits. In the building there will be about fourteen dining rooms, many of them private, and some large enough for small banquets. The two tower rooms will be converted for the use of the New York Yacht Club and the Automobile Club of America, while on the lower floor will be the Horseshoe Room, for the use of the directors of the Metropolitan Opera House and the directors of The New Theatre Company. A huge bar, like those at the Empire and Alhambra, in London, will be built on the main floor, with tables and a dance floor, and an orchestra in one end. The cost of renovating the top floor will approximate $50,000, and with the silverware, china and napery, enough to serve 1,000 guests, the cost of all this will approach between $150,000 and $200,000. It is expected that the building will be ready for the opening of the revue, "Town Topics," by August 2, and the rest of the building a week or two later. The chorus of the revue will begin rehearsals June 21 and the principals June 28.

Miss Anna Pavlowa has at last surrendered to the "movies." She is to appear in a version of Auber's "The Dumb Girl of Portici" under the direction of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. The interior scenes will be begun on July 3 in Chicago, during the engagement of Pavlowa in that city, where a company of forty-seven will be used. Following the Chicago engagement a special train will take the company to Universal City, near Los Angeles, where the outdoor scenes will be staged.

Miss Marilynn Miller will celebrate to-morrow evening her first anniversary as a member of the Winter Garden company, and in honor of the event she has invited all the members of the company to a supper on the stage. Caro Miller, her father, will be the toastmaster, and the souvenirs will be miniature duplicates of the ballet skirt worn by her at the age of four, when, known as "Mlle. Suga. Plum," she danced for the first time in public.

A new Frohman-Belasco production, arranged by David Belasco and Charles Frohman before the latter was lost on the Lusitania, is to be produced by David Belasco. The play is entitled "The Girl," and is the work of George Scarborough.

"The Girl" will be produced at Atlantic City on June 28, and the cast will include W. H. Thompson, John Miltern, Lowell Sherman, Ermita Lascelles, Arthur Lewis and others.

Miss Julie Opp, who has been ill for the last two and one-half years, is about to return to the stage and resume her place as leading woman to her husband, William Faversham. After Mr. Faversham's tour in "The Hawk" Miss Opp will be a member of an all-star cast that Mr. Faversham is organizing for next spring to present a series of Shakespearian plays.

Miss Geraldine Farrar, who has been engaged by the Lasky Feature Film Company to appear in a series of photo-dramas under its management, will leave for the Lasky studios, in Hollywood, Cal., this morning. Miss Farrar leaves in a private car, accompanied by Morris Gest, her personal manager, a number of friends and several servants.

The quarterly dinner of the Modern Drama League will be held on Tuesday evening at The Sign of the Torch, 146 East Nineteenth Street. The guest of honor will be Miss Hedwig Reicher, who will discuss "The Modern Drama and the Freie Bühne." At the end of the dinner Miss Muriel Hope will read Galsworthy's "Justice."

The Sir Douglas Mawson motion pictures will be seen again at the Lyric Theatre for an indefinite run, beginning on Thursday afternoon. These pictures will be remembered from their exceedingly amusing comedians, the humor of whose antics put to shame the breed of Broadway comedians.

Five hundred members of the American Surgical Trade Association, now in convention at the Hotel Astor, will see Montgomery and Stone in "Chin Chin" at the Globe Theatre to-night. The party will occupy the orchestra floor and the boxes.

JACKSON—HOWE.

The marriage of Fred Jackson, author of "A Full House" and many short stories, and Miss Florence Elizabeth Howe, daughter of John W. Howe, of the editorial staff of "The New York American," took place yesterday at the home of Alfred E. Aarons, on Wright Avenue, Bayside, Long Island. The ceremony was performed by Supreme Court Justice Mitchell L. Erlanger. Alexander A. Aarons was best man and Miss Zelda Shuster maid of honor.

Among the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson, of Pittsburgh, parents of the bridegroom; Mrs. J. Mk Jackson, a sister-in-law; Arthur J. Jackson, a brother; Mrs. John W. Howe and Mrs. Alexander H. Aarons.

Mr. Jackson and his bride left on their honeymoon, which will be spent at Atlantic City.

"BEAR NO BABIES FOR WAR"—WISE

Rabbi Advises Women To Be Sure They Will Not Be Butchered.

MEN IN TRENCHES ENVIED, HE INSISTS

Tells of Need of Organization for Protection of Sex in Industry.

Speaking at the Labor Temple last night on the "Organization of Women in Industry," Rabbi Stephen S. Wise declared that women should refuse to bear children except with the assurance that they be not butchered in war.

"Women do not reckon of war in terms of money," he said, "but in terms of life and suffering. The present state of Europe shows conclusively the need of women in government. Think of it not one woman in the world has been asked whether or not there should be war; yet they bear a burden that is harder than that of men.

"People say to me that women are not in the trenches, that they are not being cut to pieces and mutilated as the men. That may be true; it is true. But I tell you that the women of Europe to-day envy the men who have the right to die. Women have no such right; they have only the right to live and suffer; to live in a wretchedness for which they were in no wise responsible, with those they love torn from them, and many of them live on with memories that are worse than death. Theirs, I tell you, is the greater suffering.

"For this suffering, for the way in which they have borne this burden, they should in future be granted participation in the government which brings it upon them. I hear it said that only women of property and means should be given the vote, but I would rather give it to working girls, who cannot protect themselves, than to people like Mrs. Harriman or the benignant Mrs. Hetty Green, who can."

There was laughter at this point. Then Rabbi Wise asked any anti-suffragists in the room to leave. A few men trickled out, the rabbi sarcastically encouraging them to go.

"I was asked here to speak about the organization of women in industry," he continued, "and to show you the necessity of such organization. I call to your attention a bill brought into the Legislature of this state. This bill provided that women be allowed to work seventy-two hours a week in the canneries or twelve hours a day. Had the women of that industry been organized, had they been formed into an efficient trade union, such a bill would not have been introduced, and if it had been the women so organized would have been able to protect themselves against it.

"Had these women been properly organized they would have secured better working hours than they have at present."

Here Rabbi Wise digressed into the duties of the Church, which he said were "not so much to bring men into a house of worship as to enrich their lives, to make them less dreary and more interesting."

"If the Church is divorced from the mass of working men and women it is not worth saving," he shouted, and the crowd, swollen by now to more than 800, heartily applauded. The rabbi closed with his admonition to women, "who should not bear children except they have assurance that these be not slaughtered in war."

FATHER T. A. REID 50 YEARS A PRIEST

Celebrates Golden Anniversary Mass in Church of St. Ignatius, Brooklyn.

To mark the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, the Rev. Thomas A. Reid, S. J., celebrated a solemn high mass at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the Roman Catholic Church of St. Ignatius, Carroll Street and Rogers Avenue, Brooklyn.

A procession of clergy marched from the rectory to the church, where the Rev. D. Hickey, as deacon; the Rev. D. Donaldson, as sub-deacon, and the Rev. P. J. McHugh, S. J., as master of ceremonies, assisted Father Reid with the mass. The Right Rev. Bishop Charles McDonald, of Brooklyn, was in attendance, as were Monsignors McNamee, Taaffe, O'Hara, Duffy, McEnroe, O'Hare, McGolrick and fifty clergy from all parts of the diocese. The Rev. Father John Belford preached the sermon.

Father Reid, while seventy-three years old, is as vigorous as his youngest parishioner. He was born in New York, in old St. Peter's Parish, on Barclay Street. He made his preparatory studies in St. Charles's College, Maryland; classical studies at Mount St. Mary's, Maryland and theological studies in the North American College, in Rome. He was ordained in Rome by Cardinal Patrizzi, on June 19, 1865.

Many gifts of gold were received by Father Reid, which he will give to a fund started to help the young seminarians who are working their way through college. A reception will be given Father Reid to-morrow night at Loyola Hall, on Rogers Avenue, at which many of his friends will gather to do him homage.

CHILD WELFARE DAY SET

Clergy of State Asked to Lend Assistance on June 20.

Albany, June 6.—In the educational campaign for the saving of babies' lives Sunday, June 20, has been designated by the State Department of Health as "Child Welfare Day." Clergymen of all denominations throughout the state have been asked to co-operate with the department in giving to mothers such information as will effect the welfare of the child.

The campaign, says the announcement, brought about a decrease last year in the infant death rate from 137 to 112 per thousand births, this showing that approximately 1,400 deaths of infants were prevented.

AT SOUTHAMPTON

Weather Interferes with Social Activities of Cottagers.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Southampton, Long Island, June 6.—The continued cool weather has put a damper on social activities. Cottagers who are here for the season are kept indoors on account of the temperature.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Metcalf Thomas are at their place on the Dunes. Mrs. Mortimer Grinnell is occupying her house on Halsey's Neck Lane, and Mr. and Mrs. Lucien H. Tyng are here for over Sunday at their bungalow on Shinnecock Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Worden have arrived for the season, as have Mr. and Mrs. Lyttleton Fox, who are occupying the Schermerhorn East cottage. Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Hoyt, jr., are expected this week on the Shinnecock Hills. Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Claflin and Miss Beatrice Claflin and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Dalziel are at their cottages on the Shinnecock Hills.

PALISADES FERRY READY

Route from Dyckman St. to Park Will Open Thursday.

Hackensack, N. J., June 6.—The new Dyckman Street-Englewood ferry will be opened on Thursday, giving the upper part of New York direct communication with the Interstate Park. The boards of trade of Englewood and the newly organized Dyckman Street Board of Trade are arranging a parade to celebrate the opening.

It is planned to run boats across the Hudson on a twenty minute schedule on weekdays and a five minute schedule on Sunday. Following the organizing of a ferry company, several jitney bus lines will be operated on the Manhattan side. At present there will be no ferry house on the Englewood side, since the Interstate Palisade Park Commission is restricted by statute to two years in granting concessions.

FATHER BLAKE DIES; NOTED FOR CHARITY

Head of St. Vincent's Home for Boys Suffered Breakdown from Overwork.

The Rev. William L. Blake, director of St. Vincent's Home for Poor and Friendless Boys, Brooklyn, died in St. Catharine's Hospital yesterday after a short illness.

Father Blake was born in Swedesboro, N. J., on September 13, 1865. He was educated in the Sacred Heart College, Vineland, N. J., and took his seminary course in St. John's Seminary, Brooklyn.

Ordained priest on June 1, 1894, he was assigned to St. Patrick's Church, Long Island City. He became director of St. Vincent's Home in 1899.

At that time the work of the home was carried on in a small private house in Poplar Street. The roomy institution at State Street and Boerum Place to-day, giving shelter, food and clothing to 200 boys, is the result of Father Blake's labor.

The strenuous exertion of his work undermined the health of Father Blake. Nine weeks ago he succumbed to a nervous breakdown. For a time his condition improved, but complications set in which he could not withstand.

He leaves three sisters, Anna Blake, Mrs. Theresa Martin and Mrs. N. Costello, of Brooklyn, and two brothers, George and Maurice, of Camden, N. J.

The funeral procession, accompanied by the board of directors, St. Vincent's Home Band and the Knights of Columbus, will go from the home to St. Joseph's Church on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Burial will be at Camden, N. J.
