TEACHERS BLAME EVE TRADITION

"Why Doesn't Controller Prate About Police Pensions?" Their Query.

COCKTAIL CHARGE CALLED ABSURD

Marriage After Retirement Nobody's Business, Says Miss Rogers.

Miss Josephine E. Rogers, a member of the Board of Education Retirement Board, wonders what sort of teachers Controller Prendergast has met. She has taught for more years than she cares to say, and has associated with a good many other teachers. She says the cocktail-drinking teacher and the underworked, overpaid teacher are unknown beings to her.

"Of course, I can't know personally every one of the 18,000 teachers in the New York schools," she said yesterday, at her home, 301 East Sixty-eighth Street. "But the Controller does seem to have an animus against teachers that I can't see any reason for. I wonder what peculiar experiences he could have had to make him feel that way about the women who are instructing the boys and girls of New York? Nobody else in the city administration is saying these things about the teachers. Controller Prendergast seems to be the whole source of the attack."

Miss Rogers said the Board of Retirement had followed the suggestions of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment scrupulously.

"They told me last year just how many teachers we could recommend for retirement. We did not exceed that number," she said. "Of course, there are imperfections in the law. The situation needs clearing. But Mayor Mitchel asked us to do nothing until the administration's investigation into the pension situation was finished. I understand that the report of the investigators has just been submitted, but, of course, nothing can be done now till the Legislature meets. Then a bill will be submitted and the bogie of bankrupt pension funds will be laid, I trust.

"It isn't true that the teachers are unwilling to have their assessments increased. They are willing to pay more if they can be assured that what they pay will be used for retired teachers, and not for other city employes. That must be settled by the proposed bill."

Miss Rogers characterized as absurd the charge that teachers had been pensioned who were able to go on teaching.

"Suppose a teacher did get married after retirement," she said. "That is what they base this charge on, I believe. Ridiculous! Whose business is it whether I marry after I stop teaching? If a teacher comes to the Board of Retirement with a certificate from a reputable physician and a letter from her district superintendent saying she is unable to teach, I can see nothing for us but to recommend her retirement. It isn't for the Board of Education to say what she shall do afterward. There might be circumstances under which it would be perfectly right for a woman not well enough to teach to marry. The pension is hers by virtue of her service."

The whole crux of the matter, Miss Rogers says, is that women can't vote.

"Do you suppose, if the teachers didn't belong to the voteless sex, the Controller would be picking on them this way?" she demanded. "Why doesn't he prate about the police pensions? Just the same condition exists there. But, no; policemen are men, and no one ever says they exceed their rights in the matter of pensions. Just as in the days of Adam and Eve, women get all the blame."

Miss Rogers was reminded that Controller Prendergast is a suffragist, and even makes speeches for the cause.

"Well, he's mighty unfair to the women teachers," she said. "And it's queer, for I understand that his wife was a teacher before she married him."

THE WEATHER REPORT

Forecasts and Records of the Last Twenty-four Hours.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Tropical storm is apparently central in or near the Yucatan Channel, moving northwest, and hurricane warnings have been continued on the southwest Florida coast. Warning messages for shipping have also been sent to all Gulf ports. The highest wind reported during the day was sixty-four miles an hour, from the east in the channel between Key West and Havana. At Havana a velocity of fifty miles an hour from the east occurred during Friday night. It is somewhat warmer in New England and the upper lake region, and high temperatures continue over the interior districts west of the Rocky Mountains. Showers will continue Sunday and Monday in the South and Southwest, while over the north districts east of the Mississippi River the weather will be generally fair Sunday and Monday except in the south portion of the Middle Atlantic districts, where local thunder showers are probable Sunday. Temperatures will not change materially.

Winds for Sunday and Monday.—North Atlantic, gentle to moderate west winds, becoming variable; Middle Atlantic, gentle to moderate, mostly southwest; South Atlantic, moderate variable, except fresh off the Florida coast, and fresh to strong off the Southern Florida coast. Tropical storm 4 p. m. apparently in or near Yucatan Channel, moving northwest; hurricane warnings continued southwest Florida coast; all Gulf shipping advised to take every precaution. Lower lakes, gentle to moderate south and southwest winds Sunday, with partly cloudy weather.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year:

	1914	1915		1914	1915
